Death of Tariff Predicted in Senate Monday

SMOOT DEMANDS FINAL SHOWDOWN ON DEBENTURES

Will Ask Chamber To Release Conferees From Pledge To Uphold Two Contested Points.

DEMOCRATS SEE MOVE TO DEADLOCK

Say Republican Senators and President Now Realize Country Is Opposed and Hope for Defeat.

BY D. HAROLD OLIVER.
Associated Press Staff Writer.
WASHINGTON, May 16.—(P)—An answer to the question whether the tariff bill will be put to a final vote in conference will be given by the senate on Monday.

The decision will come on a resolution by Senator Smoot, republican, Utah, chairman of the senate conference committee, seeking a release from informal pledges binding that committee to the senate's debenture and flexible clause.

Smoot offered the resolution today as the only means of getting the bill back to the senate without the conferees having to sign another partial agreement.

Prior to its introduction, democratic leaders assailed the house republican managers, asserting on the floor that they wanted to see the bill fail. Smoot replied that all the house conferees wanted was "free and full conference" but he agreed with Senator Simmons, democrat, North Carolina, that the managers of the other branch refused to co-operate in bringing that about.

To have signed another partial report to get the bill back in the senate would have forced separate votes on the disputed provisions in the house which already is on record against them. So is President Hoover.

The house leaders renewed their ultimatum at a conference with the senate group today that negotiations were off until the senate conferees gave a free hand to work out a compromise.

The resolution was the only way out of the tangle. Realizing that his defeat will mean death for the tariff bill at this session, republican leaders immediately began a spirited drive to immediately the necessary majority to put it over. The resolution was agreed upon at a conference of republican leaders called by Senator Watson, Indiana, the floor leader.

Democrats and republican independents, who wrote the debenture and legislative flexible clauses into the bill over President Hoover's protest were making no claims of victory, but were laying plans to carry on a spirited fight.

They were prepared for the contest today as republican leaders had announced the issue would be placed squarely up to the senate late in the day. These plans were abandoned, however, when the conferees failed to decide upon the procedure in time for action.

Senator Harrison, democrat, Mississippi, one of the conferees attacked the republicans on the floor for failure to bring the matter up as planned.

"I know there are certain republicans who were enthusiastic about this bill who have heard from the country and now are trying to kill it," he asserted.

Senator Simmons said the majority conferees of the senate have "not faith to abide by their promise."

"I do feel that the republican conferees of the other branch have been rather obstinate."

"Their action indicates they do not care to have this bill passed," he said.

England Arrests Hundreds in India

Georgia Entry in Oratory Contest in Pittsburgh.

KENTUCKIAN WINS ORATORY CONTEST

William Turner First and Carolyn Russell Second in Pittsburgh.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., May 16.—(Special)—Miss Carolyn Russell, daughter of Chief Justice Richard B. Russell, of Georgia, and youngest sister of Richard B. Russell, Jr., speaker of the Georgia house of representatives, placed second in the regional oratory contest held in Carnegie hall here tonight. She tied with William Turner, a student at the University of Kentucky, for first place but he received two firsts out of three ballots and under the rules no consultation of judges was necessary.

Miss Russell's showing in the contest won her a tremendous ovation, especially in her splendid and eloquent handling of her extemporaneous subject: "The three great compromises of the constitutional convention." Turner's extemporaneous subject was to tell how and for what terms the president, members of congress and members of the supreme court are designated.

Miss Russell, who won the state finals in the contest sponsored by The Constitution, was accompanied here by her mother, Mrs. Richard B. Russell. In the state finals, she won Georgia districts and she was pitted in the regional contest tonight against representatives of seven states.

William Turner, winner, will be given a free trip to Europe this summer and will compete in the national finals at Washington for the honor of representing this country in the international finals. Winners in the other six zones will accompany the southern and central zone winners on the European trip.

Judges in the contest tonight were Dr. Frank B. Trotter, Morgantown, W. Va., president of the University of West Virginia; Dr. Charles Henry Ambler, professor of history in the University of West Virginia; and Judge Frank W. Nesbitt, attorney, of Wheeling, W. Va.

Other contestants besides the winner and Miss Russell were Robert L. King, of Birmingham, Ala., representing the Birmingham Age-Herald; winner of third place; John Clement Fitzgerald, Hudson Falls, N. Y., representing district "X"; Miss Margaret Louise Royall, representing Florida; E. Stanley Goldman, representing the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette; and Elmer Snyder, representing the central Pennsylvania area.

By a two-to-one decision, the University of Georgia Friday night won the debate from Georgia Tech on the question: "Resolved, that the use of the injunction in labor disputes should be discontinued."

Tech speakers were H. W. Spar and Charles Tompkins, while the Georgia winning team was represented by Frank Costagney and Duncan Graham. Dr. M. L. Brittain presided.

Zeppelin To Begin New Voyage Sunday

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Germany, May 16.—(U.N)—With the arrival of the first passengers, the Graf Zeppelin was almost ready today for the start Sunday of its trans-Atlantic flight to South America and the United States. Dr. Hugo Eckener, in charge, said the flight would begin late Sunday afternoon or evening, depending on wind conditions.

Discards Kid Glove Policy in Civil Disobedience Campaign in Favor of Long Sentences.

BY FRANCIS LOW,
United News Correspondent.

BOMBAY, India, May 16.—(U.N)—Wholesale arrests at the Dharasana salt depot tonight followed the passive resistance of the police against Mrs. Sarojini Naidu, civil disobedience leader, in her "raid."

The authorities rounded up 224 volunteers on a charge of unlawful assembly.

Mrs. Naidu, removed by the police, finally admitted her mission had failed. She said she would return to Bombay in a few days.

The arrests tonight followed proof that the gentle effect of feminine leadership on India's uprisings against British rule had failed to prevent the nationalists from fighting with the police as the Dharasana salt raid ended.

As a result nine violent volunteers were injured and the police continued firmly in command of the situation where they had remained passively for a day and a night preventing the projected raid on the government's salt depot.

Mrs. Sarojini Naidu, leader of the raid and of the entire civil disobedience movement, now that Mahatma Gandhi and his lieutenant, Abbas Taji, have been jailed, was removed from her chair by the side of the road, and the volunteers got into action immediately.

They had sat in the hot sun for a day as their woman leader talked jovially with her friends—and the raid got nowhere. The authorities had politely refused to permit Mrs. Naidu to pass, and she, apostle of Gandhi's non-violence creed, had positively refrained from inciting her flock to action.

But the authorities today decided the sitting-out contest should come to an end. They surrounded Mrs. Naidu's little band and moved them away from the vicinity of the salt depot. Mrs. Naidu was placed in a motor car and conveyed to the camp of volunteers, half a mile away.

Mrs. Naidu, back at camp, said the authorities had been most courteous, and that they had provided her with a good bed last night.

The importance of women in this oriental nation's uprisings was stressed again when Miss Kamaladevi Chattopadhyaya, prominent among the Gandhi leaders, was released from nine months and two weeks simple imprisonment. She is a sister-in-law of Mrs. Naidu, recently named to lead the raid Sunday on the Dharasana salt depot, a suburb of Bombay. Miss Chattopadhyaya was arrested as she prepared to board a steamship to raid the salt depot.

About 100 volunteers also were taken into custody, but subsequently released.

Reports said the rioting at Mymensingh had resulted in 30 injured, including 28 police. The police fired into a mob in dispersing volunteers.

Five rioters were reported injured in a clash with police at Calcutta. An inspector of police in Calcutta also was said to have been injured.

At Sholapur, disturbed hill town 220 miles southeast of Bombay, 15 were sentenced today in connection with recent riots. They were given various terms and fines. The president of the Sholapur congress committee, named Japa, was sentenced to seven years at hard labor and fined 2,000 rupees (about $700).

The secretary of the Sholapur congress was council, Jadhav, was given years at hard labor and a 3,000-rupee fine (about $1050); and the head of Sholapur municipality, Mankhand Shah, was given six months imprisonment, and a 10,000-rupee fine (about $3500).

Georgia Debaters Defeat Tech Team

By a two-to-one decision, the University of Georgia Friday night won the debate from Georgia Tech on the question: "Resolved, that the use of the injunction in labor disputes should be discontinued."

Tech speakers were H. W. Spar and Charles Tompkins, while the Georgia winning team was represented by Frank Costagney and Duncan Graham. Dr. M. L. Brittain presided.

The following typewritten announcement was issued after the meeting: "The stockholders of the Coca-Cola Company, pursuant to notice, met at the offices of the company in Atlanta, at 2:30 p. m. Friday and voted to dissolve the domestication of the company in Georgia."

CANNON REFUSES RIGHT TO PRESIDE AT DALLAS MEET

Relinquishes Gavel Because of Charges; Methodists Decide To Retire Bishops at Age of 72.

DALLAS, Texas, May 16.—(P)—The object of an investigation by the senate lobby committee and also a church committee as the result of alleged stock market speculations, Bishop James Cannon, Jr., of Washington, D. C., today stepped aside as presiding officer of the general conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, south.

It was not, however, until after the rank and file of the conference delegates had applauded him vociferously that Bishop Cannon, whose turn it was to act as president for the day, turned the gavel over to Bishop W. B. Beauchamp, of Atlanta.

Bishop Cannon explained he did not wish to preside "because of matters known to this conference," referring to charges of stock market gambling preferred against him by 22 prominent lay delegates, including Joseph Daniels, former secretary of the navy.

Election of three new bishops for the Methodist Episcopal church, south, was voted tonight by 106 episcopacy committee in a meeting at which no consideration was given the stock market gambling charges against Bishop James Cannon, Jr., of Washington, D. C.

Bishop Cannon declined to discuss the action today of Charles W. Tuttle, federal district attorney at New York, in granting permission to the senate lobby committee to examine all records of his transactions with two New York brokerage firms.

He said it would not seemly for me to comment on any of these personal matters," the bishop told news action.

The episcopacy committee in exonerating Bishop Cannon and two other bishops of a charge of undue political activity in the 1928 presidential campaign dropped up during the conference session in connection with the market speculation accusation.

Bishop H. M. DuBoise, of Nashville, resigned from the Methodist Episcopal church, south, after the conference. He said he and other bishops, who were cleared of the political charge, had "traded" with anti-Catholicism.

COCA COLA BOARD VOTES TRANSFER

Stockholders Approve Plan To Dissolve Domestication in Georgia.

Moving to effect the annual saving of a sum estimated at $500,000 due by the Coca-Cola Company under the Georgia statutory income tax law, stockholders of the company Friday voted to dissolve the domestication of the company in Georgia.

A petition seeking the surrender of domestication was filed later in the afternoon in Fulton superior court by Harold Hirsch, Marion Smith and John A. Sibley, attorneys for the company, and set for hearing by Judge E. D. Thomas on June 16. The petition set out that 783,940 shares of common stock owned by the company were transferred to the company in Georgia.

The effect of such a step, it was learned, will be to save the company payment of the state income tax on all profits except those made in transactions actually carried out within the limits of the state of Georgia.

The move, which was presaged in announcements of the stockholders' meeting last week, will not affect the location of the headquarters of the company, which is incorporated in Delaware in Atlanta, but will only affect its legal status as a taxpayer of the state, according to a statement made at that time.

No comments on the vote of the stockholders, or elaboration on the effect of their action, was made in the announcement given Friday of the business transferred by the stockholders. The following typewritten announcement was issued after the meeting: "The stockholders of the Coca-Cola Company, pursuant to notice, met at the offices of the company in Atlanta, at 2:30 p. m. Friday and voted to dissolve the domestication of the company in Georgia."

It's Derby Day In Ole Kaintuck

Heads Baptists

Dr. W. J. McGlothlin, president of Furman University at Greenville, S. C., has been elected president of the Southern Baptist convention at the annual meeting in New Orleans.

There is no north and south on the turf, but there is an east and west. Sectional lines are bluntly drawn tomorrow for the 56th Kentucky Derby when the annual civil war of the racing world will be waged over Churchill Downs.

No Derby in recent years furnishes such a melodramatic punch as this one.

Gallant Fox, the big blood bay bruiser from the east, and his pilot, Earle Sande, premier jockey of these United States, have captured popular fancy as few teams have ever done. Sande, trained down to a riding weight but little under the Derby impost of 125 pounds after a season of unprofitable experience as a trainer, made a spectacular comeback by riding the Fox to victory in the Preakness stakes. That settled it.

The favor Gallant Fox had earned by an earlier victory was fired into flaming enthusiasm. Now Gallant Fox will bear the red polka-dot colors of William Woodward to the post with the hopes of the east and part of a begrudging support of the west on his blunt nose. The other eastern candidate—Ned O. Crack Brigade and his pilot, Earl Sande, were considered sprinters, but not only the horses but the general burning demands of the Derby distance of a mile and a quarter.

The east is staking all its hopes on the staunch blood of Ballot and his fast horses which are classed as westerners. Most of them were bred and born right here in the Blue Grass and hold not only the hopes but the general affection of the hard-boots, as the Kentuckians are called.

Tannery, a blond chestnut colt with the staunch blood of the Kentucky, is the equine machine gun that is given the best chance to turn back the big, red colt from the east. Tannery is owned by Ed Pritchard, of Lexington, Ky.

Big Boy Pritchard might be called just a poor farmer who raises race horses and needs the money. Every-

BAPTISTS RENEW DRY WAR PLEDGE

Will Fight All Wets; Seminary Head Deplores Bible in Public Schools.

NEW ORLEANS, May 16.—(U.N)—Bible teaching in public schools was opposed today by Dr. John R. Sampey, president of the Southern Baptist Theological seminary at Louisville, at the third day of the Southern Baptist convention here.

Dr. Sampey, commenting on the report of the convention's education committee, said:

"We do not believe that tax-supported schools should have religious teaching, but should be purely secular. It is not fair to force Jewish and other non-Christian children to listen to Bible reading when their taxpaying parents object."

He urged support of Baptist denominational schools so that Baptist children could have the advantage of Catholics in securing religious and secular training side by side.

"I would not let any subject be taught in a Baptist school unless the teacher had on his desk a copy of the Bible for reference to the word of God," he said.

The education committee of the Anti-Saloon league, advocated ignoring straw votes and denounced the national referendum movements and "dry critics."

The report recommended recognition of the "right of labor to organize," a nine-hour day, child labor laws, and a five-and-a-half-day week, in the most inclusive treatment of labor problems yet made by a Baptist social service committee.

Lynchings were deplored in the report, and the London naval arms pact was approved. Greater use of the radio by Baptists to replace "jazz and tawdry advertisements" was also recommended.

The education committee reported 25,000 students enrolled in 88 Baptist schools and colleges. A plea for more money to foster growth was made in the reports of the Baptist Bible institute, the Southern Baptist Theological seminary, and the Southwestern Theological seminary.

The question of the status of Arizona as northern or southwestern Baptist territory, long a fly in the ointment of possible union of the two, was again opened when President McGlothlin ruled that Arizona delegates could be seated at the conference, as they were for the first time last year.

FIVE ARE INJURED IN AUTO COLLISION

Norcross Woman, May Have Fractured Skull. Negro Driver Arrested.

Five persons were injured, one seriously, late Friday when the automobile in which they were riding collided with another car driven by Wilson T. Lamar, 204 Jackson street, N. E., negro, at the intersection of Georgia avenue and Pulliam street, S. E. The injured were residents of Norcross.

Those hurt were: Mrs. Walt Ray, 43, driver; Mrs. J. B. Adams, 45; Miss Sue Wood, 16; Miss Sarah Adams, 17; Helen Adams, 7.

Mrs. Ray was the most seriously hurt, suffering a possible fracture of the skull and other injuries. Mrs. Adams was badly cut about the face, neck and shoulders and a small bone in a leg was fractured, while the other occupants of the Norcross car were bruised and cut to a lesser degree. All except Mrs. Ray were treated at Grady hospital and released.

Conflicting stories were told to investigating officers, the members of the Norcross party declaring they were traveling east on Georgia avenue when the negro's car is alleged to have struck the Norcross machine, turning it over several times and leaving it standing bottom-up on the pavement. The negro, however, told officers he was traveling on Georgia avenue and that the other car was proceeding along Pulliam street when it struck the bumper on his machine, causing Mrs. Ray to lose control.

The negro was not located until some time after the accident. He had gone to the home of an officer whom he knew, and the latter turned him over to headquarters where he was given a copy of charges alleging reckless driving. The officer said the negro told him he remained at the scene of the accident, helping extricate the injured, until he became frightened at the attitude of a gathering of white men who, he said, became menacing.

SENATORS PLAN TO GRAFT RIDERS ON NAVAL TREATY

Admirals Oppose Pact as Reed and Robinson Defend It—Reservations to Be Sought.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—(P)—Two admirals, speaking bluntly the mind of the navy general board, attacked the London naval treaty today in a running exchange of opinion with members of the senate foreign relations committee.

The two officers, Rear Admirals Mark L. Bristol and Hilary P. Jones, aroused to a hammering counter-attack the two senators who as members of the American delegation to London signed their names to the pact. For two hours questioning and answer were thundered across the committee table, with both sides standing their ground.

Simultaneously it became known that a small group of senators already were verging toward a proposal to attach reservations to the treaty, and that Ambassador Dawes, also one of President Hoover's delegates to London, was coming home. The belief prevails in high official quarters that General Dawes will confer with both friend and foe of the treaty while in Washington, although the president himself announced that this was not the purpose of the trip.

Admiral Bristol told the senate committee on behalf of the general board, of which he is chairman, that the treaty provided for three fewer eight-inch gun cruisers than the board considered safe as a minimum, and substituted six-inchers which the navy did not want. Admiral Jones agreed, saying the American delegation had made a concession at a "vital" point.

Aroused by this opposition, Senators Robinson, of Arkansas, and Reed, of Pennsylvania, who sat on the delegation, collaborated in a searching cross-examination, disputing many statements made by the admirals and questioning the wisdom of the conclusions of the general board.

A navy memorandum of last September to contradict testimony that the navy wanted only eight-inch gun cruisers. Both Senators Reed and Robinson

CENSUS DISCOVERS ROOSEVELTIAN HEN.

A hen still laying eggs at an age when its fellows have been boiled, roasted and their tough-boned remains used for soup, was reported in Atlanta Friday. The report came through the local census bureau which, bound by the census law, is required to report on its enumerators, could reveal nothing of the hen's lineage or connections, except that it lived on a farm near Edgewood, and at the age of 11 years was still accounted a good layer.

YIELDS HEAVILY. GEORGIA "CORN" FARM

Harvest time came early this year for Walter S. Caffee, Bibb county farmer, and the yield was good, too. Moreover, labor didn't cost him anything, federal prohibition agents did the work. Raiding the Caffee farm, agents dug up 130 jugs of "corn" in a field behind the house, all planted in neat rows about a foot apart. The agents didn't know potatoes when they saw them and kept hunting corn, this time in the potato patch. They found 53 gallons. In the chicken yard they dug up 42 gallons and unearthed 20 more gallons from the peacan orchard. Caffee was committed to district court under $1,000 bond.

"BLIND" MARRIAGE LASTS 52 YEARS.

Fifty-two years ago Mrs. Blake L. Woodson arrived in Kansas City, Mo., to marry Minor I. Woodson, then a young lawyer whom she had never seen before. Yesterday she celebrated her eighty-first birthday and reported that she is still happily married.

UGLIEST MAN LAUDS LOOKS.

"I was born ugly and I seem to have grown uglier every day of my life. I have a face like a monkey, the big old red nose and a nose out of all proportion to the rest of me." This is how James Y. Alexander, a factory hand of Nottingham, England, described himself as he announced an ugliness contest open to all except circus freaks. "And," he added deliberately, "I am the ugliest man in all England."

ARE FARMERS AND "SLOW" FOLK.

A Canaan (Conn.) farmer's tractor broke down Tuesday and he had to have parts in a hurry. He took an airplane, flew to Springfield, Mass., the nearest large town, taxied to a local tractor salesroom, and a few minutes later went back home in the same airplane.

OFFICIAL CAPACITY WAS NOT INVOLVED IN DEALS, IS CLAIM

Reuben Arnold Draws Statement That Money Was Given to "Influential Citizen."

SESSION IS MARKED BY HEATED CLASHES

Boykin Accuses Arnold of Making Farce of Trial; Adjournment Is Taken Until Monday.

The first indication of the Walter C. Taylor defense came Friday afternoon when his chief of counsel, Reuben Arnold, in cross-examination of a prosecuting witness, made no effort to force the witness to recant direct testimony that he paid Taylor two bribes, but drew from him the statement that the payments were made to Taylor acting as "an influential private citizen and political power" and not in his official capacity as city clerk.

The witness was Andrew P. Calhoun, who testified that he paid Taylor $250 and $200 to influence the defeat of two proposed ordinances tending to prohibit the operation of billiard and pool rooms in Atlanta.

In addition to the claim that he had approached and dealt with Taylor as an individual and not a public officer, Mr. Arnold also drew from Calhoun the assertion that Taylor had not asked him to keep the matter a secret and apparently made no effort to hide their business relations.

Calhoun was the last witness of the day and on conclusion of his cross-examination an adjournment was taken by Judge Virlyn B. Moore before a jury in whose court Taylor is on trial for bribery, until 9 o'clock Monday morning. At the conclusion of Friday's session the state had completed presentation of its direct testimony on four of the 17 transactions in the 25-count bribery bill, save the corroborating testimony on the third and fourth in which Calhoun is the prosecuting witness.

Earlier in the day the defense had concluded its cross-examination of former Councilman Cecil G. Allen, of the second ward, the prosecuting witness in the first and second transactions, and had offered as corroborating evidence the testimony of S. A. Osborn, real estate man; E. L. Barnes, deputy city clerk, and J. C. Chappell, an employee of the First National bank.

The day's session was marked by heated clashes between Mr. Arnold, of the defense staff, and Solicitor-General John A. Boykin and Special Prosecutor William Schley Howard, the state's attorneys claiming that the

Valentino's Relatives Ask New Executor

LOS ANGELES, May 16.—(AP)—Charged by the brother and sister of the late Rudolph Valentino with mismanagement and misappropriation of the film star's estate, George Ullman today was temporarily suspended as executor. The action was taken by Probate Judge Charles Crail.

Ullman, who had been Valentino's business manager, was named executor of the estate after the actor's death in New York in 1926.

Valentino had $164 in the bank when he died, and more than $200,000 in debts, chiefly due on mortgages on various pieces of property. Ullman took over the management of several Valentino motion pictures which had not been released. Out of the income from these the debts have been paid, considerable amounts of money given to the heirs and some money accumulated for them. No estimate of the present amount of the estate has been made.

NEW YORKER ARRESTED FOR ALABAMA THEFT

WILMINGTON, Del., May 16.—(AP)—Joseph B. Garrett, 34, New York city, today was held in $1,000 bail for the federal grand jury by United States Commissioner A. F. Polk on a charge of the theft of an automobile from the J. E. Barnes Company of Mobile, Ala.

He and a 19-year-old girl of Mobile were taken into custody by state police here Wednesday night as they were motoring from Mobile to New York. The police say Garrett told them he and the girl expected to be married in New York. The girl has been turned over to the Travelers' Aid here. An effort will be made to get her back to Mobile.

Her name was not immediately available.

Police Strike Blow At Chinese Bandits

AMOY, China, May 16.—(AP)—Foreign police tonight dealt a blow to communistic banditry in Fukien province and possibly in all south China, by raiding three houses within the foreign settlement. Documents seized indicated the places were the headquarters of the Fukien reds and probably the south China directing bureau of outlaw armies that have ravaged Fukien, Kiangsi and Kwangtung provinces for several months, looting, burning and massacring.

Russian participation in the communistic organization of China was considered established by the raid, as among the documents confiscated were community text books, lectures, pamphlets, posters and essays, all of Russian origin. They were being translated here into the Chinese language.

Papers seized contained complete records and future plans of reds in every part of Fukien province.

Mrs. Gould's Slayer Refused New Trial

The Georgia supreme court Friday denied a new trial to Emory Vanduzon, Atlanta negro convicted of the murder of Mrs. Jack Gould, wife of a Chappell street grocer, and sentenced to death.

The killing occurred the night of last November 2. At the trial Vanduzon fought the case on the grounds of mistaken identity.

He will be resentenced by the Fulton superior court as soon as the order of the higher court has been received.

The supreme court also affirmed a life sentence given Will Mitchell, convicted in Randolph county of the murder of Steve Moreland. While Mitchell contended that he shot Moreland as the latter attempted to force his way into his house, the state submitted evidence that Mitchell was shot at a place some distance from the house.

Marine Hero Dies

NEW YORK, May 16.—(AP)—Ernest A. Jensen, retired gunner's sergeant, who won the congressional medal of honor in the World War and represented the marines at the burial of the Unknown Soldier at Arlington, will be buried with a military funeral tomorrow.

Mississippi House May Vote $5,000,000

JACKSON, Miss., May 16.—(AP)—Receding partially from their "cash and carry" plan of financing the roads proposed under the Stansel road act, house leaders this morning proposed that $5,000,000 in short term notes be issued for immediate road construction work in order to assure "re-establishment of federal aid for Mississippi."

Under the bill, offered by Representative Horace Stansel, who authorized the general highway plan bills, the short term notes would be issued for not exceeding five years, to be repaid out of the state's share of the gasoline tax money.

It provides that the counties get two cents of the gasoline tax and the state the remainder; under the present law the state would thus get three cents per gallon, but Mr. Stansel commented that "if the senate does the big thing and passes the 6 cent gasoline tax bill now, before them, we can really finance a road program."

Serving Asparagus

BY JESSIE MARIE DeBOTH.

Asparagus is one of our choicest vegetables, and in some sections, through steady shipping from various localities, the season is long. The large thick stalks now in market show the growers' vast improvement over nature's slim, and sometimes skimpy product. For soups and sauces the slender strips do well enough, but to serve "au naturel," the bigger the better.

If the vegetable comes to the kitchen at an inconvenient time for preparation, loosen the bands on the bunches, let cold water run into the bag containing them, pour off, close top and place in the refrigerator. It will then keep fresh and crisp overnight, if necessary. An hour or two before cooking, rinse the asparagus and immerse in plenty of cold water. Soaking will remove the sand easier than scrubbing. It is less wasteful to break off the tough ends than to cut them, as the break naturally comes at the proper place and the knife may cut off too much or too little. The ends may be evened, for appearance. Many cooks scrape off the bracts, but this is not important. Cook in boiling salted water, or steam over the water. It takes almost twice as long as boiling, but is easier to handle. The stalks may be boiled upright in the lower part of a double boiler, with the inverted inset for a top. In this case tie them loosely or use one of the flexible holders made for the purpose. A broad, flat kettle must be used if the stalks are to lie straight.

Be watchful that they do not overcook as this means loss of both flavor and color. In the flat cooker a pair of kitchen tongs will lift them without breaking, and allow for complete draining. These tongs are especially useful in handling baked potatoes and convenient for other purposes also.

If asparagus is to be served on toast, cut the bread lengthwise of the loaf in uniform slices, and butter generously when toasted. Place in the hot serving dish, pile the stalks carefully on top, and hits of butter and serve at once. When served without toast, use plenty of butter. The tip ends, cut three or four inches long, serve best, the other part being reserved for a different service, such as a scallop, omelet, or soufflé. Cut in inch lengths, with an equal bulk of thick white sauce (part chicken stock helps a lot) and bound with a beaten egg for each cupful of the mixture. This may be steamed in loaf form, making a delicious hot dish, both attractive and nourishing. Soft crumbs may be used to extend and add body.

Cream of asparagus soup is delectable with the added flavor of meat stock or bouillon cubes, and a little whipped cream on each service. Sprinkle the cream with paprika for color contrast, and serve crisp soup sticks or golden brown croutons with the soup.

Any left over asparagus may be coated with French dressing before putting it away. Then, at serving time, enlivened with finely chopped pickle, capers and parsley. Either fresh or canned asparagus responds kindly to this treatment.

For special service, when paté shells prove too rich, or expensive, round rolls may be scooped out or regular cases made from bread. For these, we cut the slices at least two inches thick, then stamp out large rounds. With a smaller cutter pushed part way through, the center crumbs can be readily scraped out with a fork, leaving ample space for any desired filling. Shake off all loose crumbs and brush the sides and top with soft butter. Just before serving, place them in a moderately hot oven to crisp and color. Place the short lengths of asparagus in the cases and pour in and around them a smooth cream sauce made with part asparagus stock, flavored with lemon juice and a dash of cayenne. Beaten egg yolk makes for delicacy and a sprinkle of chopped ripe olives or toasted almonds adds interest.

A few words on the preparation of strawberries may seem superfluous—and probably are to nine out of ten housewives. Perhaps they will bear with me for the sake of the tenth one. Having recently seen large bowls of hulled berries standing neglected in cold water, words almost fail me! To begin with, when berries are delivered they should be turned out at once. Even a hasty inspection will locate a spoiled berry or bit of mold, which given time and opportunity gets in its contaminating influence on its neighbors. Then spread the fruit out, a perforated pie pan or wire frying basket makes a splendid container, until time for the berries to be washed. Sandy fruit needs washing through several waters. Use two large pans, placing the berries in the water, never turn water onto them, as it may crush or bruise them. Stir them about with the fingers and handle without crowding. Lift out in clean water and repeat until the final water looks clear. Place in a wire basket or colander to drain, never heaping them upon each other. For quick draining, spread out on paper toweling or soft cloth and roll about gently. With the wire colander, however, the berries dry in 15 or 20 minutes, and are then ready to use. A moment's thought will reveal that a hulled berry in water loses flavor quickly. A small knife or berry huller removes caps and any spoiled parts. Better too cautious than casual, as a bit of overripe fruit is sometimes responsible for considerable distress. For table use large baskets make a splendid container, as usual, as a bit of overripe fruit is sometimes responsible for considerable distress. For table use large baskets make a splendid container, as usual, as a bit of overripe fruit is sometimes responsible for considerable distress.

Boy Tossed on Top Of Hood in Crash

When he attempted to make a turn off Peachtree street into Sixth late Friday afternoon the bicycle young Lloyd McWhorter, 552 Whitehall street, was riding skidded on the car track and went one way and McWhorter another. The lad was thrown, police reports say—on top of the hood of an automobile driven by Miss Alice Davis, 250 Eleventh street, N. E., and thrown right off again. He was not seriously hurt.

Salmon Cannery To Spend Million In Ad Campaign

SEATTLE, Wash., May 16.—(Special.)—A million dollars will be spent advertising canned salmon beginning immediately, it is announced by Arthur W. Wittig, chairman of the advertising committee of the Associated Salmon Packers of Seattle. The Associated Salmon Packers of Seattle is said to represent the majority of the total salmon industry in the Pacific northwest and Alaska, having an annual pack estimated in value at $65,000,000. Newspapers will be the primary medium used in the advertising campaign, according to the announcement, and the packers are contemplating a three-year advertising program.

Revenue Collectors Attend School Here

Thirty-two deputy collectors of internal revenues Friday began a week's classroom instruction at the federal building. The men are drawn from Georgia and South Carolina. The purpose of the instruction, it was said, is to instruct them with the latest court decisions, and with new forms for returns and other duties.

Entrance Fee and Qualifies as Candidate.

Captain W. J. Speer, state treasurer and one of the few remaining Confederate veterans at the state capitol, Friday paid his entrance fee and qualified as a candidate for renomination to that office in the September democratic primary.

Friends of Captain Speer, who returned to head the treasury in 1911 after having served a previous term of four years, expressed confidence Friday that he would have no opposition in the primary, pointing out that it has been a customary thing for him to be renominated biennially.

One of the strong arguments for his continuance in office, political observers about the capitol said Friday, is that every governor and every general assembly since he has been state treasurer have commended his administration and praised his fine business ability, his knowledge of state finance and his strict accountability.

Baptist Church Wins Suit Against City

The city of Atlanta should not have stopped construction of the Western Heights Baptist church at English and Bellwood avenues last year, the supreme court ruled Friday in a decision upholding an injunction brought by members of the board of trustees of the church.

City officials claimed that the city had title to a portion of the lot. Evidence in the case was to the effect that Chief of Police James L. Beavers had stopped the work of grading the lot, and that threats of arrest if the work was continued had been made.

The suit was instituted by J. E. Bowden and other trustees.

HOOVER TRIP TO WEST CALLED BARNSTORMING

Wheeler Sees President's Proposed Mountain Journey as Bid for Votes.

WASHINGTON, May 16.—(AP)—Commenting on President Hoover's proposed western trip, Senator Wheeler, democrat, Montana, has observed that "this is the first time that a president of the United States has felt it necessary or even advisable to resort to a barnstorming excursion to win the people back."

In a statement issued through the democratic national committee, the Montanan noted that the Washington Star, "considered one of President Hoover's most dependable journalistic spokesmen," had published last Sunday an article asserting that the western trip was planned as an effort to win public confidence in the administration.

"There is confidence on the president's part," he quoted the Star, "that the grumblings in various quarters of the country are directed at congress and not at him."

"It may be," Senator Wheeler said of this, "that the presidential charm is so great, the presidential logic so convincing, that he may be able on his projected western tour to convince the country that the wickedness of congress is at the base of all these things that have distressed and disturbed the country and that he himself is still the miracle worker, still the tower of efficiency, still the solver of all possible problems, for whom they were asked to vote two years ago.

"We of the democratic party may have a biased view in our estimate of the president's coming good-will tour. The prospectus may not seem particularly inviting to the congressmen in his party who are facing election in November, but they ought to be comforted by the thought that their own ill-luck in having their president campaign against them should not stand in the way of the re-election of a crumbling idol."

"It is not difficult," said Senator Wheeler, "to trace the causes of the disappointment of the country at the Hoover administration. He has been hesitant, to put it mildly, at expressing himself on the tariff, with the result that the country is now threatened with having imposed on it an increase of a billion dollars a year in the cost of living because he could not, or would not, assert his leadership in his own party. His administration practically has been a blank and the country holds it against him that after his glowing promises in the campaign it finds no question settled and no relief from the conditions he pledged himself to remedy."

The Montanan also observed that the Kansas City Star, "which has been his most consistent supporter in the west the other day carried an article questioning whether the dissatisfaction with him in the east was not equally strong through the agricultural country."

"There is confidence on the president's part," he quoted the Star, "that the grumblings in various quarters of the country are directed at congress and not at him."

Gas Company Spends $3,750,000 for Pipe

The Southern Natural Gas Corporation Friday announced that orders for pipe involving approximately $3,750,000 have been placed for extension of the company's lines in the southeast.

It was announced also that work on the transmission line extensions to carry natural gas into Mobile, Selma, Montgomery, Auburn and Opelika, Alabama; Macon, Milledgeville and Griffin in Georgia; and Jackson, Biloxi, Pascagoula, Laurel, Hattiesburg, Moss Point in Mississippi, "and perhaps other cities in the three states" had been begun. The company plans extensions costing $15,000,000 this summer.

The National Tube Company was awarded a $2,575,000 order, and the A. O. Smith Corporation an order for approximately $1,000,000 worth of pipe.

Serpents Entertain Drum Corps Sunday

The Military Order of Serpents will entertain the D. A. V. Drum corps as special guests of Fasig Lair, No. 1, at a basket picnic Sunday, May 18, at the home of Stephen A. Gayarre, thrice infamous and inferior guru, 40 Waters avenue, in Hapeville.

Truck Used To Loot East Point Grocery

After tearing off the locks that secured the entrance to the establishment, robbers late Thursday night hauled off more than $1,000 worth of groceries and tobacco, as well as rifling a cash till of about $20, from the J. A. & J. M. Smith grocery store, on Washington street, East Point, it was discovered Friday.

Two burglars did not take the trouble to attempt to break open a safe in the store which was said to have contained considerable currency. Investigation developed that the loot was carried away in a small truck backed against the front door.

More Overcast Skies To Hover Over City Today

Continued cloudy weather and showers through today was forecast Friday by C. F. von Herrmann, head of the local office of the United States weather bureau.

Friday's temperature ranged from 62 degrees to 77. The temperature noticeably fell early in the afternoon with increasing cloudiness, bringing the mercury down to the neighborhood of 72 degrees.

Today's temperature, it was said, will be similar to that of Friday.

Dr. Thomas P. Hinman Is 'Holding His Own'

GREENLAND EXPEDITION ENCAMPED BY GLACIER

BERLIN, May 16.—(AP)—Professor Alfred Wegener's Greenland expedition today was reported to be encamped near the small settlement of Unkussigat on a peninsular fronting upon Kangerujuk glacier, in a delayed radio dispatch dated May 9.

Professor Wegener, widely known meteorologist of Graz University and an authority on Greenland, plans an exhaustive study of meteorological and geological conditions in the ice fields and of possibilities for establishment of an air route base on the ice fields. He hopes to ascertain the thickness of the ice and to test his theory of the shifting of continents.

Just one of the ten million*

*A prominent surgeon estimates that over ten million people in the United States are suffering from ailments of this nature.

—suffering from troubles caused or aggravated by harsh toilet tissue

Habits of personal cleanliness have very little to do with the origin of rectal trouble.

For even the most immaculate run the risk of serious illness every time a harsh or chemically impure toilet tissue is used.

Yet despite this serious danger, in thousands of homes you will find toilet tissues utterly unfit for bathroom use.

Some are glazed, sharp-edged. Some are covered with tiny slivers. Some are even chemically impure—made from reclaimed, waste material.

Scott Tissue, Sani-Tissue and Waldorf are famous bathroom tissues specially processed to satisfy the three requirements doctors say toilet tissue must have to be safe: absorbency—softness—chemical purity. Each sheet is made up of millions of "thirsty fibres."

These specially treated fibres, soft and clothlike, are extremely absorbent. Without this absorbent quality, thorough hygiene is impossible.

Scott Tissues are made from fresh, clean materials. No harmful dyes. No waste material. They are sanitary. Fully sterilized—and absolutely safe to use. It doesn't pay to be careless in this bathroom essential. Always insist on Scott Tissue—Sani-Tissue or Waldorf.

Scott Tissues

NOTE: Scott Tissue and Waldorf are the two largest selling brands in the world. Sani-Tissue is the new popular priced white toilet tissue embodying the famous thirsty fibre qualities.

Westminster Drive Extension Is Urged

Council Monday will be asked to petition Fulton county to widen and extend Westminster drive across the railway culvert into Boulevard, on recommendations of the streets committee of council, and at the same time the finance committee will be requested to take the necessary steps to provide $6,500 to widen sidewalks on Hunter street between Whitehall and Pryor streets.

A committee headed by George West appeared before the committee seeking the Westminster drive improvement, while another committee under the leadership of G. C. Jones, of J. M. High Company, and A. O. Randall, secretary of the Atlanta Improvement Association, requested the sidewalk widening on behalf of the merchants along Hunter street.

File Suit To Collect Peace Bond of $200

Suit to collect $200 on a peace bond posted by J. T. Snipes was filed Friday in Fulton superior court.

The petition is directed against Snipes as principal and Joel Lunsford as surety, and alleges that Snipes broke the peace when he went to the home of E. E. Gilleland, of 1781 Howell Mill road, and concealed himself in the room occupied by Mrs. Frances Snipes, estranged wife of Snipes. Snipes turned on the lights in the room suddenly and drew two pistols, threatening his wife, who shot and wounded him, the petition charges.

During the same week Judge Virlyn B. Moore will operate on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday the sole division of criminal court scheduled for that period. The case of Joe Carr and M. H. Powers, charged with attempting to incite insurrection, a capital offense, has been set before Judge Moore for Tuesday of that week.

Expresses Appreciation to Kellogg Company for Relief

If you are troubled with constipation, this letter from Mr. John J. Mulligan, 300 So. Cicero Avenue, Chicago, Ill., will interest you:

"This is simply a letter of appreciation for the wonderful results I have obtained through the use of Kellogg's ALL-BRAN."

"For years, in fact ever since my return from France, I have been troubled with constipation and its companion ills. I tried numerous remedies in vain. Finally in desperation, not wishing to be a slave to laxatives all my life, I turned to Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. The results were remarkable—in fact the next day long-hoped-for relief became a happy reality."

The Kellogg Company has received thousands of similar letters in praise of ALL-BRAN, the product that is positively guaranteed to relieve both temporary and recurring constipation. Now available both in the improved krumbled cereal and the new Biscuit form.

It also adds needed iron to the diet and builds health.

Eat Kellogg's ALL-BRAN with milk or cream... in soups, salads and fruit juices... in cooked foods and hot breads. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

represented the latter firm in its petition to locate the large storage tanks within the inner fire limits on spur tracks.

The board took the petition under advisement and announced a public hearing would be held on the proposal at the next regular meeting of the board at 7:30 o'clock at night June 20.

C. J. Bowen, city building inspector, and Chief John Terrell, of the Atlanta fire department, opposed installation of tanks of such large capacity on the grounds that it creates a fire hazard.

The Southern Oil Stores was denied the right to install similar tanks in Atlanta several months ago, but has reopened the fight to come to Atlanta.

Mr. Knower claimed that the company would sell nominally two cents under the current market price because of the fact that operation costs by large storage would be reduced to a minimum.

CRISP'S MASTER SPEECH.
The amazing inequities of the pending tariff bill have not been, and cannot be more plainly exposed than was done by Congressman Charles R. Crisp in presenting the views of the democratic minority in the house of representatives.

Having been associated with the house of congress for 28 years and being one of the leading democrats on the ways and means committee which frames tariff bills, the background and experience of Congressman Crisp made him the fit spokesman to voice the democratic repulsion of this unprecedented tariff attack upon the great body of American workers and consumers.

The democratic doctrine of today was perfectly stated when Congressman Crisp said:
"I favor tariff duties levied in sufficient amount to furnish reasonable protection for American products, and to equalize the difference in cost of production here and abroad, and a tariff bill is written on that basis it protects the American manufacturers."
Then he went on to say that this pending bill "is not written on that formula. This bill is protection run mad, protection carried to an absurdity." And that is the bill which the senate must refuse to pass, or the president have the grit to kill with a veto, or the millions of consumers, taxed an extra billion dollars by it, repudiate at the polls in November by electing a congress pledged to repeal it and substitute a just American measure. To that latter end no better and more lucid campaign document can be spread through the nation than the speech made on May 4 by Congressman Crisp.

FIGHTING FARMERS.
In no uncertain words the American Farm Bureau Federation, through its president, Sam H. Thompson, has let it be known that the efforts of the so-called "middle men" to undermine the effectiveness of the federal farm board, will not be allowed to go unchallenged.

Here are some of the brilliant declarations in an open letter sent out by Mr. Thompson:
"Organized agriculture faces a serious challenge.
"Great selfish, speculative business groups have joined forces to secure repeal or nullifying amendment to the agricultural marketing act.
"The agricultural marketing act, which became a law of the land on June 15, 1923, represents the result of seven years of toil, sacrifice and bitter battle on the part of the farm people of this country. It is the first step in the adoption of a national policy that will enable farm people to live and earn on the same basis as the other economic groups of this country.
"Under this act the federal farm board has been created and has been authorized for less than a year but already these speculative groups have, year by year, profited at the expense of agriculture through the fluctuation in the price of the produce of the farm, see the handwriting on the wall. They have openly and definitely declared war on this policy.
"It is up to the organized farmers of the nation whether this policy shall stand or whether it shall be destroyed."
It is an encouraging sign for an organization representing the agricultural interests of the country to thus boldly throw down the gauntlet to those seeking to handicap a government agency in its efforts to bring relief to the farmers of the entire country and once more place the tillers of the soil on an equality with laborers in other lines of endeavor.

One of the main contributing causes to the present almost tragic condition of so great a portion of our farmers has been a lack in the past of energetic and united opposition on their part to things that would work to their disadvantage and equally vigorous seeking after better marketing conditions for their products.

There can be no gainsaying that the united farmers of the United States could gain for themselves practically anything that was desired, but until they band themselves together in a unanimity of spirit and desire they may expect to have to rely largely upon the efforts of the government to pull them out of the slough of despond into which they have fallen.

The stand of the American Farm Bureau is therefore encouraging as evidence that the farmers are waking up to the fact that they are themselves largely responsible for their present economic condition. It is to be hoped that this farm organization, and all other similar organizations, will continue actively and energetically to fight for the profits which by all rights should go to our agriculturalists.

THE MORROW EXPLOSION.
The frank stand taken by Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow, as a candidate for the republican nomination for United States senator from New Jersey, in favor of a repeal of the prohibition amendment of the constitution, will interest the people of the whole country no less than those in New Jersey.

It has been inevitable for some years that eventually a leader must arise in one party or the other to champion the sentiment for a new deal on prohibition. The polls taken by the Literary Digest and other journals in their regions reveal a strong feeling among the people for the repeal of the eighteenth amendment and the substitution of a more practicable policy of treating the nation's liquor problems.

Mr. Morrow is the most formidable proponent of that substitute policy who has entered the controversial arena and if the people of New Jersey endorse him by nominating and electing him to the United States senate, the immediate assumption will be that the war against the prohibition amendment will come on in earnest with his advent into that body.

The Morrow proposal is said to be in direct opposition to the position of President Hoover, which statement remains to be verified. But it will encounter the heroic opposition in the senate of such powerful republicans as Borah, Wesley Jones, Norris and many other of the pronounced dry senators of his party. Morrow unquestionably voices eastern republican sentiment while Borah and Jones speak for western republican opinion. And since the war between the two elements is inevitable, the democrats will do well to keep hands out of the fight until the republicans fix their national attitude upon the prohibition issue.

TEXAS WILL STAY SOLID.
The reported proposal of Congressman Jack Garner, of Texas, democratic house leader, to split the great commonwealth of Texas into five states is fantastic and interesting. It sounds like a Garner joke to give a jolt to Senator Joe Grundy and his tribe by threatening to put eight more democratic low tariff senators into that Grundyzed body. But the joke will evaporate easily.

A like proposal was mooted soon after the democrats of Texas had ended the "reconstruction" rule in that state back in 1874. The idea then was to increase democratic power in the national senate, but the reaction of the Texans of that day was intensely hostile to the proposal. They wished to sanctify and preserve inviolable the territory, history and fame of the old Republic of Texas and the fact that they owned the "largest state of the American Union"—an empire in itself.

On the present territory of Texas there could easily be laid out five fairly large and self-supporting states. That would mean 10 United States senators, but would not mean more representatives in the house of congress than the Texas people have now. The census of this year will give them two more representatives, making 20 instead of 18 as at present.

The feeling of the elder Texans and their descendants is sure to be strongly against any division of the state, even though the five states should be called Central Texas, North Texas, South Texas, East Texas and West Texas. A legislative campaign upon the division issue would be one of the hottest and most spectacular ever staged upon American soil and the outcome certainly an overwhelming defeat for the proposal.

Bishop Cannon probably realizes now that running a church and a political campaign at the same time is something like riding two horses in opposite directions.

Dock McBride thinks home-brew may be legal, but some people find it lethal.

Anti-War Serum.

We in Europe were treated the other day to a radio-emission from Berlin in which two gentlemen discussed the question, "War and Peace." It was noticeable so far as debate about war has definitely entered into a new light. Until yesterday war appeared as the accused criminal before the bar, so to speak. Now the courage to defend war. But in this radio discussion, which is called symptomatic of the new era by a Berlin review, the gentleman who defended war was definitely more aggressive of the two. He was simply idealizing war, if not deifying it. War, he said, was fate. It had nothing to do with human plans or emotions. The Kaiser-Britain pact all parts were ludicrous. Man could prevent war no more than he can prevent an earthquake or a tidal wave. And then this radio debator declared that war was an act of God. "God sends us war," he said. It seems on the whole that not enough war books have been written yet, and that the world is in need of a Remarque and Hemingway and so others have not pictured the bestiality and the gruesome and the insanity of war sufficiently. "We Germans had to lose the war in order to win the nation." Old Parisian royalists' salon babble. Sacrificed human beings, blood shed, torments, empires, provinces, pulverized billions, ruined prosperity, blasted happiness, all those lost realities against a phantom "We won the nation." This is one of the illusions with which the peoples are being consoled by the brute nationalisms. War is no more God-willed than famines were a hundred years ago, or plague epidemics in the middle ages. Serums were invented and the epidemics stopped. The statesmen and men of good will everywhere who watch their work with anxiety, are not all situated in places where one once found will be applied. It's name is known already. It is called: No!

Tourist Problem.
Which European country shall have the profitable pleasure of entertaining the greatest number of American tourists this summer? The question is a burning one in Europe and is asked on all sides. The present-day tourist has been a tourist before. He is a "repeater." Wherever he has been received well he will come again; wherever he has been received ill he will pass by. One hundred million of French resorts have been meeting in Biarritz to consider how to attract the tourist to France. They came to the conclusion that in order to attract him they must advertise, a very wise conclusion on condition that they advertise in newspapers. But nothing was said of the best means of retaining the tourist from year to year. For that purpose also advertisement is essential, but it is of a different form—advertising by word of mouth. From tourist to tourist the word travels fast: In such a place they overcharge you; in another they do not feed you well. No advertising, however lavish, in whatever medium, will do what the word of mouth of a tourist once he has been treated well and he departs satisfied, he will not "repeat."

Mr. Shaw's Motor Car.
We are so often reminded of Mr. George Bernard Shaw's simple and severe tastes in food and drink that it is a pleasure to learn from a trade communication that he is not quite so stern with himself in the matter of transport, says the Manchester Guardian. "Mr. Shaw, it is announced, has recently purchased a new 30-h.p. straight-eight limousine with a body specially built to his order." Perhaps you imagine, so the paper goes on, that this body will have built into it the special intellectual unyielding seats in order that the famous note of "being different" may be worthily supported, and that nothing will detract from the intellectual enjoyment of sheer speed? Oh, dear, no. "There are no occasional seats" (a nasty one for the comrades who might slouch hopefully on the off-chance of getting a lift), and the sample room inside the body is entirely devoted to the provision of comfortable leg-room and deep luxurious seating. A new system is employed in upholstery, which includes sponge-rubber to give soft but firm support. There is a good length of Mr. Shaw, but it sounds as though he ought to be able to roll up in this craft without any uncomfortable creases.

nanner and tone of Mr. Arnold's questions to the witnesses appearing during the morning to be farcical. The cross-examination of Mr. Taylor by Allen and Barnes Mr. Arnold at times directed his questions in such a manner as to evoke laughter from the crowded courtroom and to bring the judge general and local audience to their feet with the plea that Judge Moore curb the opposing counsel's conduct.

"Mr. Arnold is attempting to make a farce of the whole trial," Mr. Boykin charged on one occasion. "The state's whole case is a farce," the defense lawyer countered.

Judge Moore issued a warning to all attorneys interested in the case, saying that he did not want to have to call any of them down for their actions in court.

In the direct examination, conducted by Solicitor-General Boykin, Calhoun testified that on two occasions, in 1923 and 1924, he had called upon Taylor in the interest of opposing the two pool hall prohibiting measures which had bobbed up in council, the first resolution asking for a legislative act to amend the city's charter to such an extent that the pool halls might be prohibited and the second providing that the prohibition of the pool halls be limited to those sections of the city where the owners or prospective owners were unable to get the approval of their operations from owners of all property within one block each way of their establishments.

"When did you first see Mr. Taylor about these matters?" Mr. Boykin asked him.

"Early in 1923, when there was a resolution before the council, sponsored by Councilman J. Allen Couch, asking the charter amendment to prohibit the operation of billiard, pool and bagatelle tables in Atlanta," the witness responded.

"How did you come to enter into any agreement with him?" was the next question.

"I read in the paper of the proposed ordinance and went at once to Mr. Taylor's office at the city hall," Calhoun replied. "I told Mr. Taylor,

LOOKING AND LISTENING

Dwight Morrow and His Stand for the Total Repeal of Prohibition.

The speech of Ambassador Dwight Morrow, who is a particular favorite and chum of President Hoover, in announcing his campaign for the republican nomination for senator from New Jersey, will evoke lively comment from all parts of the country. Morrow stated squarely that he favors the repeal of the 18th amendment by the adoption of a new amendment which will again remit the question of "what to do about liquor" to the several states of the Union.

Very naturally there will be sharp curiosity to learn how far apart are the views of Hoover and those of his friend Morrow on this acute issue of prohibition. There has arisen lately a strong suspicion that the president's feeling about the enforcement of the 18th amendment is not far different from that expressed in his speech by Morrow.

Carrying a Pig in a Poke.
The Anti-Saloon league, its allies and the church bodies, have been very lavish in indorsing "the attitude of President Hoover" on prohibition, without knowing what it actually is. They have said some things for campaign purposes that tickled their fancy and have led them to believe and claim that he is "100 per cent" in his support of prohibition. However, who are very intimate with him and who doubt very seriously that he is even 61 per cent in love with the liquor traffic.

They were those who led Cap. Stuyvenberg, of the "Association Against the Prohibition Amendment," to write to a clergy to effect.

But, of course, we the amendment exists President Hoover, as oath-bound, avers that it should be respected and he will use whatever power he has to enforce it. Less could not be expected of him.

The Voting Majority Is Dry.
Up to date no one can rationally deny that the majority of the voters of the union are dry. The prohibition complex in the national congress proves that.

There are 435 members of the house of representatives at Washington and their districts cover every square foot of the 48 states which constitute the Union. All the qualified voters of the nation live in those districts and all the qualified voters of the nation live in those districts and all the qualified voters of the nation live in those districts.

Meeting With Couch.
The solicitor-general then went into a meeting between Calhoun and J. Allen Couch, though the court would not permit him to bring out any of the details of the meeting between them, other than to testify that there was a meeting between the two men at the city hall.

"Did Mr. Taylor send you to see Couch?" Boykin asked.

"He did," Calhoun replied.

"Did you see him?"

"I did," Calhoun replied.

"State what, if anything, he did while you were in his office after you had talked with him about the matter."

"He picked up the telephone and called the city hall."

The solicitor-general made an effort to get further into the details of a defense objection was sustained. Mr. Boykin then went into the second transaction between Calhoun and Taylor, which occurred two years after the first.

A LITTLE C. L. OIL TO KEEP THE VALVES SMOOTH.

In our terrible talk about growing pains the other day if you have any children at your house and missed that talk you'd better dig it up and read it—I intimated I shouldn't worry much if I had to live in foggy, chilly, cloudy old England instead of the sunny, bright and sometimes delightfully warm United States, because I had a notion I could stave off the rheumatism by ingesting a cod liver oil ration, which, as I believe but of course do not know, would compensate pretty well for the deficiency of sunlight in the English sunlight or that fragment of it which gets to the Englishman's skin. England being in the same latitude as Labrador is not so far from the line of fog to discourage them. The more oblique the rays the smaller the proportion of ultra-violet light. Really we ought to give the English a lot of credit for learning up and being as cheery as they try to be under the circumstances.

Damn it, this is a talk about rheumatism. You cannot know how it pains me to use the term at all, after the years of doctoring and what vain struggle I've made to find that there is no such ailment and the term is just an ancient name that we have to use because people are so dumb generally about medical matters. Even the doctors still use the term rheumatism or rheumatic fever, and the doctors know that it is not a disease, but a symptom, a climate or exposure to chilly conditions, or a doctor knows that it is not a disease, but a symptom, a climate or exposure to chilly conditions, or a doctor knows that it is not a disease, but a symptom, a climate or exposure to chilly conditions.

In the majority of cases, whether the manifestation be mere inflammation of joints, chorea, growing pains, heart trouble or whatnot, the disease is first established themselves in the tissues, and thence in time find their way to the particular tissue or organ for which they have an affinity, by way of the blood stream.

If the victim had the highest attainable immunity against the primary toxic infection, the chances are he would never develop any such ailment or ailments as those mentioned in the preceding paragraph.

One thing we know now is that the ultra-violet rays of sunlight, if they can reach the naked skin, aid the individual in developing immunity against such infection.

Another thing we know now is that pure cod liver oil is the richest natural source of vitamin A, and vitamin A gives the body something quite as essential as, if not actually identical with, the influence of ultra-violet rays.

Therefore, he it resolved—or, rather, it is not obvious that if one can't get his fair share of ultra-violet on the naked skin, a little ration of cod liver oil will help him to keep the heart valves clear and smooth and also help to keep the joints from creaking and complaining.

them at the bank. The bank undoubtedly has a record of the payments.

"Then how is it that you have the money in your possession?" "Well, Allen would bring me the money and I would take it to the bank."

"I do not recall," I had so many dealings with Allen and he always was so prompt that I really never could recall him or kept track of how he made his payments. All I know is that he always made them."

Resolution Offered.
Hewlett then went into Osborn's business enterprises and drew from the state statutes a resolution offering to purchase the site for the proposed city hall.

"You loaned Allen money while he was making an effort to pay the money to the city clerk," Osborn declared. "I am positive," Osborn concluded.

Petition Identified.
The state put Deputy Clerk Barnes on the stand to identify the petition of the Georgia Power Company for the removal of its tract from the city of Atlanta.

Allen previously had admitted he had been bribed, and also to identify the city clerk in so far as it pertained to the duties of the city clerk.

Letters From a Bald-Headed Dad to a Flapper Daughter

BY ROBERT QUILLEN

My dear Louise:
This morning, for some reason not made known to me, you were at outs with the world.

Following the usual procedure in such cases, you wore a look that lowered the temperature in your vicinity at least ten degrees, and your one of voice when you replied to questions was venomous enough to poison the day for everybody in the household.

So I have a little crow to pick with you and a few remarks to make concerning fair play. I do not agree with those who maintain that a child should be grateful to its parents for board and lodging, nor do I think young people under obligation to respect the old.

When parents are rearing a child into this world of trouble and hardship, the very minimum of decency obligates them to care for it and train it until it is ready to fend for itself. The child owes them nothing on that score.

As to youth's duty to respect age, that obviously is an invention of old people to get something without earning it. You don't respect an alligator or an egg because it is ancient, for the mere fact of age doesn't make anything respectable.

You should respect old people if they are worthy of respect, not otherwise—which is to say that you are free of any obligation to respect me unless I earn your respect, in which case you will give it to me without thought of obligation.

In short, I don't want you to love me or be courteous to me as a matter of gratitude or duty, and I don't want you to think well of me merely because I'm your dad.

If your family are a name in the family is fine, but right is more important than kinship and relatives who are respectable deserve no more loyalty than strangers who aren't respectable.

If people want your loyalty, let them earn it. And that brings me to the crow I had to pick. Picture our family as a little clan adventuring in the big world to get a living.

It is a hard world full of keen competitors and tricksters and dangers, and getting a living in such company is no easy job. Under present conditions the only member of our family who is capable of bringing home the bacon is you.

When he goes out in the morning to lick the world, leaving his women safely tucked in at home, he needs every weapon and shield and bit of armor he can find.

As a good sport and loyal comrade, your part is to help buckle on his armor and warn him of weak spots and bring him a stirrup cup to make his heart stout.

He fights for you and brings home the bacon for you, and if you do anything to handicap him or weaken him, it is much the same as though he were a coward and a traitor.

When you fill the home atmosphere with sunshine, he is twice armed. (Copyright, 1936, by The Constitution.)

NEW YORK, May 16.—(P)—
Dun's Review tomorrow will say:
"With the month of May more than half over, the course of business remains highly uneven and without really decisive trend, as a whole. Gains and recessions in activity are interspersed in more than usual measure, the fall of commodity prices has not been definitely arrested, adjustments in production continue, and there are also evidences of the operation of other forces which are natural to a period of economic change. The present experience has demonstrated anew the importance of the time element in a process of commercial transition, and there is a more general recognition now of the fact that a rapid recovery was scarcely to be expected, following a severe and far-reaching setback. Disappointment over the results in various quarters this spring is tempered by the knowledge that the marked tension caused by last autumn's speculative collapse has been relieved, and that the movement toward rehabilitation is under way. After an era of great expansion, with maximum records attained in many fields of enterprise, the subsequent reversal was the more pronounced, and it would not be logical to anticipate a quick rebound from widespread unsettlement. Allowance for those points is essential in appraising the existing situation, with its irregularities and sharply contrasting tendencies, and the absence of a broad advance.

Eastern Cotton Mills Cut Hours Greatly

BOSTON, May 16.—(AP)—The National Association of Cotton Manufacturers in the monthly bulletin today reports that New England cotton mills have gone much further in curtailment than those in other sections of the country.

Mills in the section, the bulletin says, have not operated even the full-time day shift of 55 hours a week and night work has been practically unheard of anywhere for some years. Other sections have adopted the 55-hour day week and 70 hours a week.

"In the first quarter of 1930 the average spindle in place ran 73.2 hours less than the legal limit in the New England states," the report says. "In addition to the fact that more than 3,000,000 spindles have been scrapped since 1922, the curtailment during the first quarter of 1930 amounted to 33.1 per cent when based on spindles in place and 9.1 per cent when based on active spindles."

During the past year the New England mills operated at only 81.8 per cent of capacity based on a 48-hour week. During the same period mills in the south operated 32 per cent overtime."

Retired Capitalist Dies Aboard Yacht

MIAMI, Fla., May 16.—(AP)—Dr. William J. Matheson, retired New York capitalist, internationally known dye expert and pioneer south Florida developer, died unexpectedly of a heart ailment late yesterday while returning here on his yacht from a Bahamas cruise. He was 74 years old.

Dr. Matheson died less than an hour before the yacht reached Miami and arrangements were made today for funeral services Sunday afternoon at the Stephens Episcopal church here. The body will be taken to Huntington, L. I., for burial.

He was a native of Elkhorn, Wis., and held the degree of doctor of laws from the University of St. Andrew, Scotland. He entered the chemical industry at the age of 20 and became chairman of the board and first vice-president of the Corn Products Refining Company. He also served as director in other large enterprises, including the Cuba Cane Sugar Company.

Dr. Matheson was a close friend of Governor Theodore Roosevelt, of Porto Rico, and on the latter's visit here last week en route to Washington the governor was a guest of Dr. Matheson at his estate.

He married Miss Harriet Torrey in 1881 and they had three children.

Thaw Again Will Try To Land in England

NEW YORK, May 16.—(AP)—Harry K. Thaw, who on his last visit abroad was refused admittance to England, was on board the Ile De France today in another attempt to crash that country's gate.

He reiterated questioners to William Glynn, a playwright, who said: "Mr. Thaw doesn't have to fear anything on the part of British officialdom under the new ministry."

At the time of his exclusion two years ago it was contended Thaw was a foreigner who committed an act for which he might be extradited.

United Light 'A' Talks Up 6-Point Gain During Day

BY CLAUDE A. JAGGER, Associated Press Financial Editor.

NEW YORK, May 16.—(AP)—The curb market was again purely a professional trading affair today. There was some bidding up of the utilities and United Light "A" developed marked buoyancy, but oil ran into moderate selling, and industrials and specialties were dull and irregular. Total sales only moderately exceeded $500,000 shares.

United Light "A" took the market by surprise with a sudden spurt of more than 6 points, within a point of its peak. This stock has been drifting along rather quietly, since its run-up some weeks ago on announcement of a natural gas distribution project. The stock has been under fairly steady accumulation, however, and the floating supply is believed to have been substantially curtailed.

Natural Gas Fuel was also a strong spot, surging up 5 points to a new high at 40 7/8, then losing some of its gain. The speculative enthusiasm for natural gas issues was apparently kindled anew by the news of the Columbia Gas-United Corporation affiliation. United Gas was firm and active, and a few others, including Electric Bond & Share, sold up more than a point, but such recent favorites as American Sugar

HOUSE PASSES ANNUAL NAVAL SUPPLY BILL

WASHINGTON, May 16.—(AP)—The House today passed a bill for the construction and modernization of the annual naval supply bill appropriating $382,415,000 for the fiscal year 1937.

It now goes to the senate.

The measure was amended to provide $3,194,000 for the initial outlay for the construction of the program as requested yesterday by President Hoover. The house also provided an increase from $400,000 to $750,000 to furnish talking machines to the lifeboats aboard ship and at shore stations.

An unsuccessful effort was made by Representative McClintock, democrat, to amend the bill to provide for the construction of the battleships Pennsylvania and Arizona in view of the London naval treaty. He contended that ships that had not been modernized should be scrapped under the pact. The measure carried 274 yeas to 160 nays.

The measure set aside $35,250,000 for construction work on 10 of the 18 8-inch gun cruisers which was authorized last year, but failed to provide for the construction of the 10th in view of the naval treaty pending in the senate, which would disallow their construction.

War Mothers On Continent Where Sons Fell

CHERBOURG, France, May 16.—(AP)—The former wartime port of Cherbourg today greeted 231 Gold Star mothers of the United States who arrived on the steamship America at 2:45 p. m.

The line came out of the port escorted by two French military planes. An enthusiastic reception was given the party.

Every member of the party arrived in Cherbourg with a great affection, however, by the tumultuous welcome.

Officials representing the government and the port administration met the mothers as they came ashore and gathered on the railway platform adjoining the dock.

Four short addresses were delivered, after which the train to Paris departed at 3:40 p. m.

A crowd of several thousand assembled on the dock cheered as the boat departed and while the mothers slowly disembarked.

There were masses of flowers waiting for them among which were 14 huge bouquets from Bentley post, and a letter from the war mothers' national flower for Mrs. Sarah G. Thompson, of New York, who had been elected president of the group.

Many of the gold star mothers were in their 70s and 80s, and had been full of interest and reasonably quiet. On the second day out the group had thrown a wreath into the sea in memory of the war mothers who lie beneath the waves.

It was when they finally reached the shores of France, where their sons had died that they felt most tenderly the emotions of grief and loss. Many of them had been in their long pilgrimage. Many were in tears as they walked down the gangplank and few eyes were dry in all the crowd when Madame de Roissy, of the Society of French Women, General Verillon, of the French combatants, and other officials had finished their remarks to the government and city of Cherbourg.

Senate Enacts Final Prison Reform Bill

WASHINGTON, May 16.—(AP)—The last of the administration's prison reform measures was put through the senate today with the adoption of the house bill authorizing two additional federal institutions.

The bill provides for a reformatory to be constructed west of the Mississippi river and for a penitentiary in the northeast section of the country which is now without any federal prison.

The senate made some perfecting amendments in the bill and it goes back to the house for concurrence in the measure. Previously the senate had approved other house bills setting up a new parole board and providing for the construction of the prison.

Newspaper Story Makes Fine Picture

"Young Man of Manhattan" previewed Friday morning at Keith's Georgia, is going to prove highly popular. The picture follows the feature talkie.

Taken from the successful Stetson serial and best-selling novel of the same name, the picture follows the written story closely. It is classed as a newspaper story, though this slightly is a misnomer. It would be more correct to style it a story about newspaper people.

"Young Man of the title is a sports writer in New York, it follows logically that much of the action involves famous sporting events. The screen shows glimpses of the Tunney-Dempsey fight at Philadelphia, the world series game at St. Louis, the Princeton-Navy football game, the six-day bicycle race and the Yankees in training in Florida.

The story is a poignant love story—about a sports writer and the movie actress who marries him. The story is a love story, though it is classed as a newspaper story.

Claudette Colbert is alluring as the wife and Norman Foster, a newcomer from the legitimate stage, makes a handsome sports writer. Which may or may not be realistic. (Refer to Ed Danforth for judgment). Our old friend Charles Ruggles is once again a reporter with an unquenchable thirst. The picture is a love story, though it is classed as a newspaper story.

If you like a compelling love story—a passing hint of tragedy, sports, beauty and realistic comedy—you'll like "Young Man of Manhattan." Which should make the "you" include everybody in the greater city.

SANDINO REPORTED BACK IN HONDURAS

MANAGUA, May 16.—(AP)—Information from official sources said today that President Caceres of Honduras, has telegraphed to President Moncada, of Nicaragua, that Augustina Sandino, Nicaraguan chieftain, who has been in Mexico, was seen in Honduras.

The telegram said Sandino was accompanied by ten men and presumably had crossed the frontier into Nicaragua.

Nicaraguan authorities still are investigating reports of the guerrilla chieftain's return. They say they have learned that he did travel through Honduras, into Mexico, and that he received there a $200 check from his father in Panama.

REV. DONALDSON URGES PASTORS TO REGISTER

It Is the Patriotic Duty of Every Minister To Vote in Primary Preacher Says.

Declaring it the patriotic duty of all ministers of every denomination to cast their vote in the coming primary, the Rev. C. N. Donaldson, D.D., 354 Murray Hill avenue, N. E., Friday urged the pastors of every church in the city to register promptly and to use their influence with friends to do likewise. Mr. Donaldson's statement follows:

"I am a clergyman, and this means also that I am a patriot; a lover of my country and my city. I hold that no person can be truly loyal to his God and not loyal to the country in which God permits him to live. John Wesley is reputed to have said: 'Cleanliness is next to godliness.' I believe patriotism is next to godliness."

"There is a soul so dead, That never to himself hath said, 'This is my own native land.' Let me paraphrase those great, patriotic words to be found on the statue of Ben Hill which adorns the capital of our state. 'He who saves his city, saves himself; saves all things. And all things saved bless him. But he who lets his city die, lets all things die; dies ignominiously, and all things dying curse him.' Permit me to mention this fine incident as illustrating a mother's patriotism for her country. It was given me by Bishop Beauchamp, of the M. E. church south; a man whom I greatly admire and love. As a passenger with him on the same steamer plying from Washington to Norfolk was Mrs. Taft, mother of the late president, and chief justice of our country. He had just received appointment from President Roosevelt to the position of governor general of the Philippine islands."

"The bishop expressed himself as surprised to Mrs. Taft, that her son should be willing to leave a large, lucrative law practice, and his many warm friends to take upon himself the onerous work of governing a people alien in language and nationality, so far from his native land. The prompt and emphatic reply from Mrs. Taft was: 'My dear sir, if my son, William, was not willing to make this sacrifice, or any other sacrifice for the good of his beloved country, I would not care any longer to be known as his mother.' This is the patriotic spirit of only one of our noble women. But let us thank God there are many thousands such in our land, many of whom are in our great city. Upon their devotion we must largely rely in the serious and vital work of cleansing our city of the official incompetency and pollution by which it has been disgraced."

"If only all the good people of all our churches, including the pastors, would promptly register now, and all use their influence to have their friends do likewise, and all not fail to vote in June, the victory will be won. Let us put into our new and beautiful city hall a new, clean council, which will not soil the fine hall dedicated to their use with cigar smoke and not poison God's pure, sweet atmosphere with civic and official impurity. What a blessing if we can only have honest, upright, capable men filling all the offices in our governing, splendid city. Men who will recognize 'Public office as a public trust,' and who will faithfully fulfill that trust in the fear of God and love for their city."

Opium Cache Found In Remodeling Home

W. D. Turner, contractor and a former city detective, started remodeling a house on Central avenue Friday. Secreted behind a mantle he discovered a store of opium valued, at bootleg prices, at $5,000.

The cache had defied a search several days ago by officers suspecting the house was used by alleged narcotic peddlers living in an adjoining house.

Turner turned the drugs over to City Detectives W. D. McGee and W. W. Ford, who stored it in the safe of the federal narcotic bureau. While the value of the opium seized, one ounce of raw opium and two grams of dust, was $500 at a legal sale, its bootleg value was estimated at $5,000.

Copy of First Deed To Be Given Coffin

Howard E. Coffin, wealthy owner of Sapelo Island, off the Georgia coast, is about to come into possession of a copy of the first deed to his property.

A record of the original deed conveying Sapelo, St. Catherine's and Ossabaw islands, as well as a tract of land along the coast, from the Indians to King George III, of England, is on record in the state department of archives and history. The original was dated April 22, 1758, and the record September 27, 1759. The record, a true copy of the original, will be photographed and sent to Mr. Coffin.

DEKALB NEARS 70,000

Enumeration Incomplete in Eight Districts.

Addition of 53 more names to the population lists of DeKalb county will place the county in the 70,000 class. It was announced at the local census bureau Friday.

With enumeration in the county not incomplete in eight census districts, the final count in the complete districts and the preliminary reports in the incomplete districts, now place the population at 69,947, it was said. It was thought highly probable that completion of the check now being carried on the eight incomplete districts would place the county's population at a figure in excess of 70,000.

"B-C" Stops Headaches and Quiets Nerves

When one of those sick, nervous headaches come and you want three minute relief, go to any drug store or soda fountain and ask for a package or dose of "B-C" (10c and 20c packages), the wonderful new preparation of a North Carolina druggist that is guaranteed safe and speedy, without depression or bad after effects. "B-C" relieves any kind of a headache, sciatic, neuralgic or female pain because it contains several ingredients that function together for the relief of pain, regardless of its origin. The "B-C" formula is one of the most important medical discoveries of recent years, accomplishing in a few minutes what no one drug formula can do under 1 to 3 hours.—(adv.)

City Is Promised Bronze Markers For Battle Sites

Memorializing the historic, almost forgotten battlefields of Peachtree Creek and Atlanta—two of the most important salients in Sherman's gigantic struggle for possession of wartime Atlanta—by erection of bronze tablets and stone markers, is assured for this city, according to Lieutenant Colonel Howard L. Landers, of the historical division of the war department, who is in this vicinity for a two weeks' study of historic battle sites.

Not only will areas be purchased which will set off the more important of these two sectors as military areas of historic value, but old structures which still remain and which once were wartime dwellings and other buildings will be suitably marked, he stated.

Such sites as are chosen by the war department's inspector will be completely mapped by experts of the army engineering corps and recommendations will then be made for adequate congressional appropriation of funds to carry on the work, which, Colonel Landers asserted, is expected to be completed within the next 18 months. States in which sites are selected and approved by the inspector later will be asked to erect suitable statues to their respective heroes, as no provision is made in war department regulations for memorializing state troops or their commanders.

The battlefields of Jonesboro and Ezra Church, the latter also a blazing sector in the campaign for the capture of Atlanta, also will come under the scrutiny of Colonel Landers in his quest for memorializing historic spots in this section.

Cops Chase Cops While Pursued 'Legger Escapes

Add proverb: It takes a policeman to catch a policeman.

A lonely bootlegger got a break when cops met cops and failed to see it that way. The 'legger got away. Plainclothes men chasing the suspected 'legger late Thursday night whizzed past two uniformed men who likewise were out to boost their pinching averages. To the brass-buttoned pair the two plainclothes men looked just like any other violators of the law, what with their breakneck speed and unlighted car and utter disregard for the uniformed men's order to halt. After a nip-and-tuck race through a maze of negro business streets, the policeman's car overtook that of the detectives. Guns were brandished, voices bellowed and flashlights played. Imagine the embarrassment of the uniformed officers, Tom Glover and John Hood, to find themselves looking into the extremely annoyed pans of Detectives Joe Allen and Gene Head. "Our mistake," they mumbled, as the suspected 'legger did a fade-out over the horizon.

Odd Stone Is Given Geology Collection

An egg-shaped, flattened stone, with the smaller end cut square so it may stand upon its end, was added to the collection of the state department of geology Friday. "It is a relic of the Indians," Dr. S. W. McCallie, head of the department, said. "We have several of them. What they were used for we do not know. Maybe it was for weights; or perhaps for some game where they were stood on end. 'Most of them are made of quartz. This one is from hematite, a mineral so hard that carborundum, ninth in order of hardness and next to diamond, barely scratches it. 'The Indians must have shaped it by patient rubbing with sand.' The stone was found by J. E. Morris, of Grovetown.

Tobacco Taxes Net Georgia $78,108.86

The state revenue department Friday announced collection of $78,108.86 in cigar and cigarette taxes during the past month.

The figure was considerably in excess of that collected in the corresponding month of last year, which was $46,191.50, but under the collections of the preceding month, when $84,703.11 was collected.

R. Eugene Matheson, revenue commissioner, said that six of the 14 inspectors of his department had been devoting their time to collecting delinquent occupational and automobile tag taxes.

C.M.T. Camp Medals Offered by Slaton

Former Governor John M. Slaton, head of the Military Training Camps Association for the fourth corps area of the army, for the third consecutive year has offered a gold medal for award at each of the seven citizens' military training camps which open in this area June 13, it was announced Friday by headquarters officials at Fort McPherson. The medals have been accepted by General Frank R. McCoy, commanding general of the corps area, and will be awarded winners among the 4,400 military students this summer.

Former Mayor Key Will Teach Class

Former Mayor James L. Key will teach the James L. Key Bible class at Grace Methodist church Sunday morning, marking his recovery from an illness which caused his absence for the last four Sundays. It was announced Friday by L. G. Fulton, president of the class. A special musical program has been arranged to include Mrs. Adrian Huff, soprano of the St. Paul Methodist choir, and Miss Elizabeth Goodwin, whistler, who has been presented frequently over radio and at Sunday school gatherings.

Napier Will Attend Securities Meeting

George M. Napier, attorney-general, will leave this afternoon for Washington, where Tuesday and Wednesday he will attend a meeting of the advisory board of the United States veterans' bureau and a national meeting of securities commissioners. Mr. Napier will visit members of his family in Philadelphia Sunday and Wednesday will return to Georgia. Thursday he will deliver the address of welcome at a peace officers' convention at Carrollton. He will return to his office Friday of next week.

BENEVOLENCES SHOW GAIN OF $208,284

Report Will Be Submitted to General Assembly of Presbyterians.

The twentieth annual report on stewardship in the Presbyterian church, United States, released here Friday by Dr. Roswell C. Long, secretary, lists contributions to benevolences during the year ended March 31 at $4,570,258, an increase of $208,284 over the previous year.

"In view of the business depression throughout the country and dire predictions on every hand of loss of ground by the church, I consider this the most significant report on benevolent contributions in the history of this office," Dr. Long said. "The report indicates real sacrificial giving."

The report will be submitted to the general assembly of the church in Charlottesville, Va., next Thursday. In the total of benevolent contributions is included $1,105,548.34 for foreign missions, $522,370.16 for home missions, $308,852.44 for Christian education and ministerial relief, $85,532.19 for religious education, $16,018.29 for Bible cause, and $20,200.93 for the assembly's training school.

Considerable space in the report is devoted to the need of publicity for church activities. In addition to publicizing work the stewardship committee reports promotion of the Presbyterian progressive program, the Presbyterian Foundation and the annual every-member canvass. Distribution of 2,173,065 pieces of literature in connection with the year's work is reported.

Red Men Will Hold Instruction School

The sixth semi-annual spring convention of the Atlanta district school of instruction of the Imperial Order of Red Men will convene, with several hundred members present, at the wigwam of the fraternal order, 160 Central avenue, at 3 o'clock this afternoon, where election of officers will feature one of two sessions to be held today. D. E. Remund, district sachen of the Red Men, Friday night announced that probably as many as 500 would be present for today's ceremonies and entertainment features, which will include a supper meeting and a degree contest.

FIGHT ON SIMMONS DISMISSED BY JUDGE

Humphries Upholds Court
Clerk's Right To Hold That Position.

The right of J. Walton Simmons to hold the post of clerk of Fulton superior court was upheld Friday by Judge John D. Humphries, who dismissed quo warranto proceedings instituted by Mrs. Ida R. McGill, a taxpayer.

Judge Humphries held that the law requiring persons to pay state and county taxes six months prior to an election in order to become an elector refers to the general election, and not to special elections. The general election this year is in November. Simmons paid his back taxes several days before entries closed for the special election of a clerk to succeed the late Thomas C. Miller, and six months prior to the general election, and therefore he is qualified to hold the office, Judge Humphries decided.

Judge Humphries said he had gone into the constitution thoroughly on the subject and also had studied various decisions. It was announced that the plaintiff will appeal the case. Paul L. Lindsay represented Mrs. McGill. Sam Olive and Mark Bolding appeared as counsel for Simmons.

High Court Upholds State Poll Tax Law

On notice by county commissioners able-bodied men must either turn out with pick and shovel for road work, or pay a specified sum in lieu thereof, the Georgia supreme court ruled Friday. The decision was in the case of A. G. Moreland, of Banks county, who, after refusing either to work the road or pay the equivalent of his labor, was tried and sentenced to pay a fine of $15 or serve 30 days on the chain-gang.

On appeal he contended that the chain-gang sentence was illegal, as there was no chain-gang in the county at the time. The supreme court said that the chain-gang was in process of organization at the time and affirmed the sentence, upholding the road work law.

FLOWER FESTIVAL TAKES PLACE AT WRENS NEST TODAY

Miss Hooper Will Reign Over Snap Bean Pageant

The stage is set for the annual flower festival to be held at the Wren's Nest this afternoon at 4 o'clock, when 150 children take part in the crowning of Miss Margaret Hooper queen of the May, who will reign over "Snap Bean Farm" for one year. The little girl, dressed in white, with light blue and pink streamers, will lead the procession, coming in from the historic rose arbor and form an avenue through which the queen and her subjects will march. The garden bearers will be led by Bobby Pace and Mary Perry, dressed as forget-me-nots, and will carry baskets filled with flowers to scatter before the queen, the group comprising Bobby Pace, Mary Perry, Helen Carter, Lorraine Reese, Nellie Carroll, Peggy Falkenberg, Sarah Jones, Richardson, Jane Lankford, Arlene Metzger, Mary Dallas, Jane Coffey and Emily Stewart.

Address of Welcome.

Alice May Hooper will give the address of welcome to hundreds of guests. Then the heralds, Robert Franklin and Ann Rutherford, will announce to the attentive audience the arrival of last year's queen, Marion Brandon, who will reign on her throne until the new queen arrives. She will be accompanied by her maid of honor, Hilda Stallings. A company of maids and knights will march in couples to the stage. Other heralds, Marguerite Dural and Ira Campbell, Jr., Barbara Hastings and Morris Herzberg, whose trumpets of gold will tell that the real queen, Miss Mary Hooper, is approaching, will lead the procession. The queen, wearing a crown of flowers, canopy held above her head by Billy Mims and Billy Hollingsworth, as she winds her way down the flower-strewn path to her royal throne.

Writers' Club Holds Dinner Meeting.

The Thursday evening dinner program of the Atlanta Writers' Club, given at the Biltmore hotel, assembled a group of Atlanta and visiting writers. Dr. Weightman F. Melton, authority on the works of Edgar Allan Poe and Thomas Holley Chivers, spoke on "The Poe-Chivers Controversy," bringing out many interesting phases of this argument which seem to have been overlooked by other commentators upon this subject, which during the past few years has occupied an important place in the realm of literature. Dr. Melton admitted the influence of Chivers' poetry upon the works of Poe, and also acknowledged a striking resemblance, but feels that it never amounted to plagiarism on Poe's part. An observation made by Dr. Melton was his comparison between certain parts of Goethe's "Faust" and Poe's "The Raven," outlining a striking resemblance in the symbolism of the two works. Goethe, using the black dog and Poe the raven to reveal, or perhaps to keep the secret of their stories.

Mrs. Howard Matthews gave a talk on "Literary Lights of the Zodiac," and at present there seems to be a revival of interest in astrology, this ancient forerunner of astronomy, has developed to such a high point by the Chaldeans. Mrs. Matthews outlined the influence of the various signs of the Zodiac in the realm of the creative writer, naming a list of outstanding writers under each; going back as far as Biblical history for certain characters, and bringing her subject up to the present by naming a number of Atlanta's own writers, and the influence of the signs upon their life and work.

Members of the Writers' Club welcomed Mrs. Nellie Womack Hines, of Milledgeville, Ga., and are indebted to her for the very charming musical program which was rendered by the pupils of Miss Margaret Hedger, including the following numbers: "The Maiden and the Nightingale," "To Know," sung by Miss Frances Owens, and "When Mary Said," sung by Miss Dove, and "Why Do I Love You?" sung by George Allen. Miss Irene Lettich was accompanist at the piano. The lyrics and music of these numbers were written by Mrs. Hines. Mrs. Hines is also a playwright of note. Robert Jester Harbour, whose dancing is always a charming addition to the programs of the Writers' Club, gave a tap dance in costume.

Daniel Whitehead Hickel, president of the Writers' Club, named the nominating committee which will nominate the officers for the 1930-1931 session of the Writers' Club. He announced that manuscripts for the annual prize contest of the Writers' Club must be submitted to the various divisional chairmen not later than June 1. COME AGAIN! AH, BOY! HOW GOOD IT LOOKED TO ME! YOU FEELING YOU HAVE NEVER BEEN A THOUSAND MILES AWAY FROM HOME—YOU DON'T KNOW WHAT THIS HOMECOMING MEANT TO ME. HERE WAS THE OLD RIVER BANK! THE OLD TREES, THE OLD HOLLOW, THE OLD SHACK!

THE MORNING SUN OF SPRINGTIME SIFTED THROUGH THE SOFTLY SWAYING BRANCHES AND FELL IN SPLOTCHES AROUND THE PLACE I STOOD UPON. AND I LOOKED ACROSS THE RIVER TOWARD PELHAM STILL SOUND ASLEEP IN ITS TUMBLEDOWN HOUSES.

AND THEN MY MIND WENT BACK TO CUBA! WELL, THERE'S NO PLACE LIKE HOME, BE IT EVER SO HUMBLE. I HAD ARRIVED HOME LAST NIGHT, TOO LATE TO SEE ANY OF MY CLUBMATES. BUT EARLY THIS MORNING I OPENED MY EYES AND FELT A LONGING

TO SEE THE OLD RIVER BANK, AND I SNEAKED OUT ALONE. GEE! IT WAS GREAT. THE BIRDS WERE MAKING MUSIC IN THE TREETOPS AND I WAS SO HAPPY. SOON, I SAID TO MYSELF, I SHALL SEE MY CLUBMATES ONCE AGAIN.

"HOW do you always have such ravishing mayonnaise?" a renowned hostess was asked.

"Since I learned the secret of Mrs. Duke's, my mayonnaise is always heavenly.

"Friends invariably used to rave over my salads, particularly the mayonnaise I made. It was good... usually, but sometimes, the all-important times, it seemed to me, I failed.

"Once I produced a concoction like Hollandaise sauce when I would have given ANYTHING to serve a salad that would make my guest's jaded appetite stand on its hind legs and cheer.

"In desperation I sent to the store for mayonnaise. I tasted it. MARVELOUS! It was better than my best. It honestly was. Since the time I discovered Duke's, I have never made mayonnaise again."

Duke's is utterly unlike the usual bought kind because it is home made. No cooking—no mustard—just the choice yolks of eggs, fine salad oil, lemon juice and seasoning beaten—beaten—beaten into a golden, fluffy consistency.

If your grocer does not carry Duke's Home-Made Mayonnaise, you will find it really worth while to go to another store to get it even if you have to walk several blocks away from your usual shopping trail.

TWELFTH INSTALLMENT.

Cassy got into her own room, and dropped her purse, her fur, her hat in the center of the floor. She was conscious of nothing but exhaustion and cold; her teeth chattered. She reached blindly for her nightwear, slipped into it, rolled into bed, and pulled the covering over her.

It was very cold. Christmas night might well be cold, but the day had been hot. Her teeth chattered, and Dan, who had been fumbling about vaguely, pale with concern and sympathy, came to touch her hands.

"You're freezing!"

"Doesn't it seem cold to you?"

"Not so very."

"But don't look so scared, Danny!"

He drew a chair to the side of the bed and sat there, looking at her sympathetically.

"Anything I could do for you, Cassy?"

"Just—get me warm! It seems to me I have never been warm in my whole life."

"You'll warm up." He was not thinking of what he was saying, and she looked at him in surprise. Suddenly, in an old tone, he began.

"Cass—"

She looked at him, turning over to lie on her back, her face flushed, her hands icy, and her head rocking.

"Cass," he said, clearing his throat, "have you thought—you know, that this might be something else?"

Instant comprehension leaped into her eyes, her heart beating fast. She regarded him steadily, not moving a muscle.

"You know—it might be that," Dan suggested, watching her face.

Cassy swallowed with a dry throat, and patted his hand.

"It is, Dan," she said, with a little effort.

"How d'you know?" he asked quickly.

"I asked a doctor. Ruth's doctor."

"And he said—"

"Said there's no mistake about it."

"Ha—! What do you know about that?" Dan stammered, his wistful boy's face lighted by bewilderment and surprise. "You poor kid," he added, a little timidly, a little awkwardly.

Cassy's cold fingers continued to cling tightly to his hand. She watched him anxiously.

"Isn't there some way to get out of it, Cassy?" Dan asked presently, rather awkwardly and doubtfully.

Her pale face grew whiter, and, gripping his hand with sudden fear and entreaty in her voice, she said, "Dan, I won't!"

Suddenly her lips were shaking, and her face bathed in tears.

"To— to get out of something, because we were afraid of it," she faltered.

"Well, anxious," Dan began, tears in his own anxious blue eyes. "I'd only be sorry if you— if I'd be up to you—"

He floundered. "You take darn good care of me," he added, a little thickly, after a pause. "I don't see why you couldn't take care of a couple of us little fellows."

Suddenly she was sitting up, her thin arm tightly about him, her wet cheek pressed against his. They spoke with long hesitations between phrases.

"Dan, I thought you didn't mind."

"Cassy, don't cry!"

"I can't help it!"

"But listen. It means an awful lot of work for you."

"I'll love it!" she laughed, through bitter tears.

"Everyone else manages it," Dan said, in a strong voice.

"Oh," Cassy breathed on a long, tired, contented sigh, lying back luxuriously, but her fingers still holding his. "I shan't mind anything, now that you know, and don't care! I'll be all right, you'll see. I've been worrying so, and trying to keep up, but now I'm all right. Oh, Danny, what a relief!"

"You're freezing!"

"I'll warm up now."

He left the bed, and began to gather her scattered things and put them away. Cassy, shuddering as she watched him, more than once caught the puzzled look in his eyes, now that "Isn't it the darndest thing to think of us with a kid," he said, more than once.

Suddenly he left the room and Cassy sat up and drew the overcoat he had thrown on the foot of the bed over her other bed covers. The shivering went on; she wondered if she had ever been warm.

"Half past 10," she thought, looking at the alarm clock. "Danny'll come to bed soon and then maybe I'll get warm!"

Ten minutes, 15, elapsed before Dan came back. When he did appear, it was with a kerosene stove dangling from one hand and an oil can from the other. A long, flat box, wrapped and tied, was under his arm.

"Oh, Danny," Cassy said eagerly. "What an inspiration! Oh, now we'll be all right!"

He set it down, filled it, scratched a match. The discolored ceiling, a disc of heartening orange light appeared, the heavy, bitter cold air began to retreat to the corners of the room.

"There!" He wiped his hands and went into the kitchen.

"What are you doing out there, Danny?"

"Never you mind what I'm doing!" He put his head through the half-open door. "Could you do a cup of tea?"

Every fiber of her half-frozen being stirred.

"Oh, yes, of all things in the world I'd adore it!"

"And here's your new hot-water bag, Mrs. Wallace."

"Mm?"

"Did you go to the drugstore at this hour of night?" Cassy was incredulous.

"I did." The heavenly incredible hotness of it was at her feet; her whole body shook with the ecstasy of returning comfort.

"Here you are," Dan said, coming in warily with a little board held steadily, as a tray. Up on it were the teapot, the cream bottle, the sugar, and a shaggy heap of amateur food. "It's one of the shelves. I just lifted it out."

Dan explained of the tray.

Her feet on the hot-water bottle, her thick wrapper about her shoulders, Cassy sat up against the pillows to enjoy the most delicious food she had ever tasted in the world. Warmth penetrated her whole hungry, cold, exhausted being, color came back into her brown, thin cheeks.

Presently they were both laughing. The kerosene stove, borrowed from Mr. Harney, burned cheerfully, and an agreeable warmth permeated the room.

"Oh, Dan, I'm so glad you know!"

"I don't know why I didn't guess before!"

"I don't know why I let myself get all wrought up! You seem no sooner to get a grip on a problem than you have to face another," Cassy mused.

"If we got a grip on our original problem, I'm the rose of no-man's land," Dan observed, turning out the oil burner. Cassy's weak, happy laughter rang out again.

She lay awake long after he was asleep that night, but it was a contented wakefulness, filled with new thoughts and new plans.

"Christmas night," she thought drowsily. "And there's my star, to show me the place where the joy of all the world—"

The new apartment was on the ground floor, and had actual sunshine in the kitchen and back bedroom. These rooms looked out upon a cemented yard and two vacant lots. The front rooms, the sitting-room with Dan's bed in the wall, and the parlor, were very dark and cold.

"New" furniture, second-hand, bought in carefully estimated instalments, made the place exciting from the start.

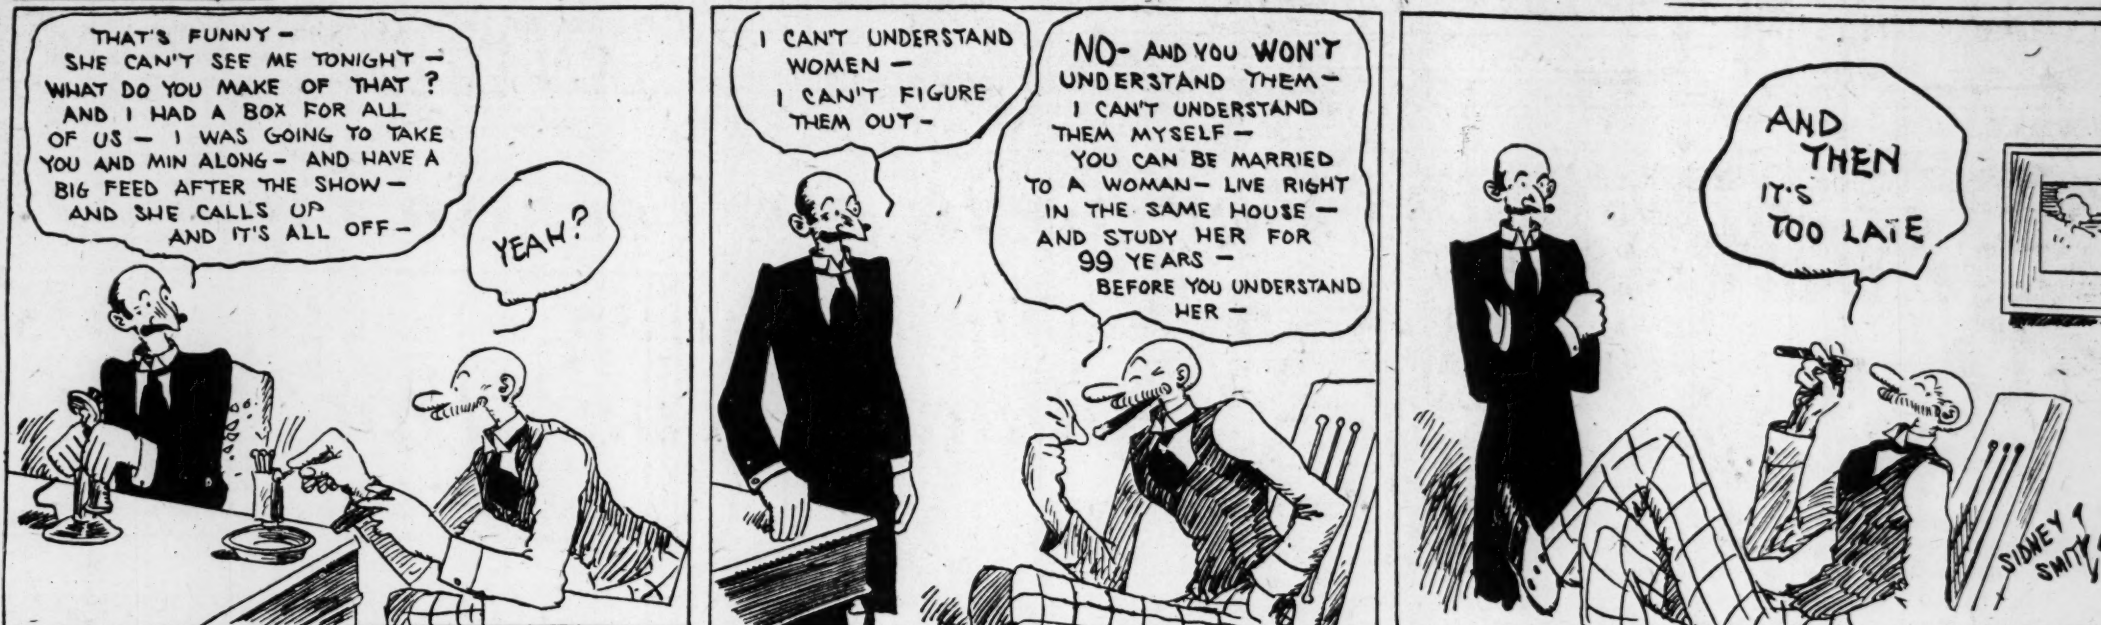

On the back porch she could keep the baby's carriage, the brooms and the garbage pail, and this made room in the kitchen for the little table upon which she and Dan had the first meals in the new quarters—and in the end all their meals. To begin with, they apologized to each other for the informality of it, but presently they were eating there regularly.

Since Tommy's birth, Cassy had been conscious of a deep fatigue. There seemed to be no good reason for it. She had been busy all day long, before Tommy's arrival; she could hardly be more than that now. Returning from the hospital, she had felt splendidly. Health, energy, love of living had come flowing back into her, and once again she had felt lithe and light, eager to be at home again.

LOUISVILLE, May 16.—Side issues of some interest lend a touch of the unusual to the fifty-sixth running of the Kentucky Derby tomorrow.

For the first time in its history, the horses will be started from stall-gates, a desperate modern invention to improve the chances of an even flying start.

Loud speakers mounted on poles in front of the grand stand will call the race while it is under way. This never before has been tried at a Derby.

And finally, a real live earl in a glass cage, will afford a sideshow that will have 150,000 eyes standing out like hat-pins.

LOOK LIKE DOG HOUSES.

The starting stalls look like a row of dog houses stretching across the track. I mean a series of gimmicks that look for the world like the kennel you built that time for old Rover. The dog houses are about knee-high and are mounted on stringers of wood and the whole set is on wheels.

The outfit is dragged by draught horses into the proper place in the track just before the race and snaked off again as soon as the horses have started. It provides a sort of fender between each horse and prevents their kicking each other. The horses are led into the stalls from the back and are supposed to leave by the front.

The signal for leaving is the same old barrier mounted on the dog houses at the ends of the row. It works fairly well. The horses are stall-shy. They walk in all right and usually walk right on out. It still takes some time to get the brutes started.

WHISPERING SPEAKERS.

The loud speakers here seem to whisper softly. They can be heard murmuring unless the crowd gets to yelping too loudly. But Derby day they will not be noticed save by the little folks who will ask daddy what those tin things up there on the pole are for.

SURE-FIRE ATTRACTION.

The only sure-fire innovation is Lord Derby, the seventeenth earl of the house of Stanley, who will be on exhibition in a glass cage right out in front.

When Frank James, brother of Jesse James, was here to see the Derby in 1889 they let him roam through the crowd. He conducted himself with dignity in spite of the terrific commotion he caused.

It seems sort of unkind to the earl to cage him up, if not downright disrespectful. The earl would behave.

FIRST CHANGE.

They have been running these Kentucky Derbies ever since 1875 and the three innovations of 1930 are almost the only changes that have been made in the program.

Whether the changes can be classed as improvements remains to be seen. Of course, there is the radio—dear me.

It has been only a few years since the first radiocast of a Kentucky Derby was given. I feel sure that improvements in transmission and in the actual calling of the race will be achieved. Many will remember that the announcer gave a beautiful word picture of the stirring scene the year Whiskery won and blew up completely when the race started. He called the wrong horse at every pole and only after the race was finished and Whiskery's number placed on the board, was Whiskery's name mentioned.

And last year when they got away in the mud and Clyde Van Dusen hustled into the lead and stayed there all the way tin-canning the whole field after him, his identity was not established in the radio version of the race until after the race was over. However, great improvements have been made since last year in the announcing business and it is a cinch it cannot be as bad as that again.

Clem McCarthy, a real wideawake racing observer, is to call it for one chain and his version should be substantially correct.

However, the whole thing can be straightened out in a few minutes after the race is over by telephoning the newspapers.

Champagne for Derby Is Cider at $12 Per Qt.

By Ed Danforth.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 16.—In spite of predictions that a smaller crowd than usual would witness the Kentucky Derby tomorrow, Fourth and Walnut roar with what appears to be an old-fashioned jostling throng. Automobiles from every state in the union and from Mexico and Cuba are lined up along the streets. Hotel lobbies are jammed; rooms at double and triple prices were full. Night clubs and midnight vaudeville shows played to capacity houses.

The supply of illegal liquors appeared not to have been diminished by determined raids on incoming truck caravans.

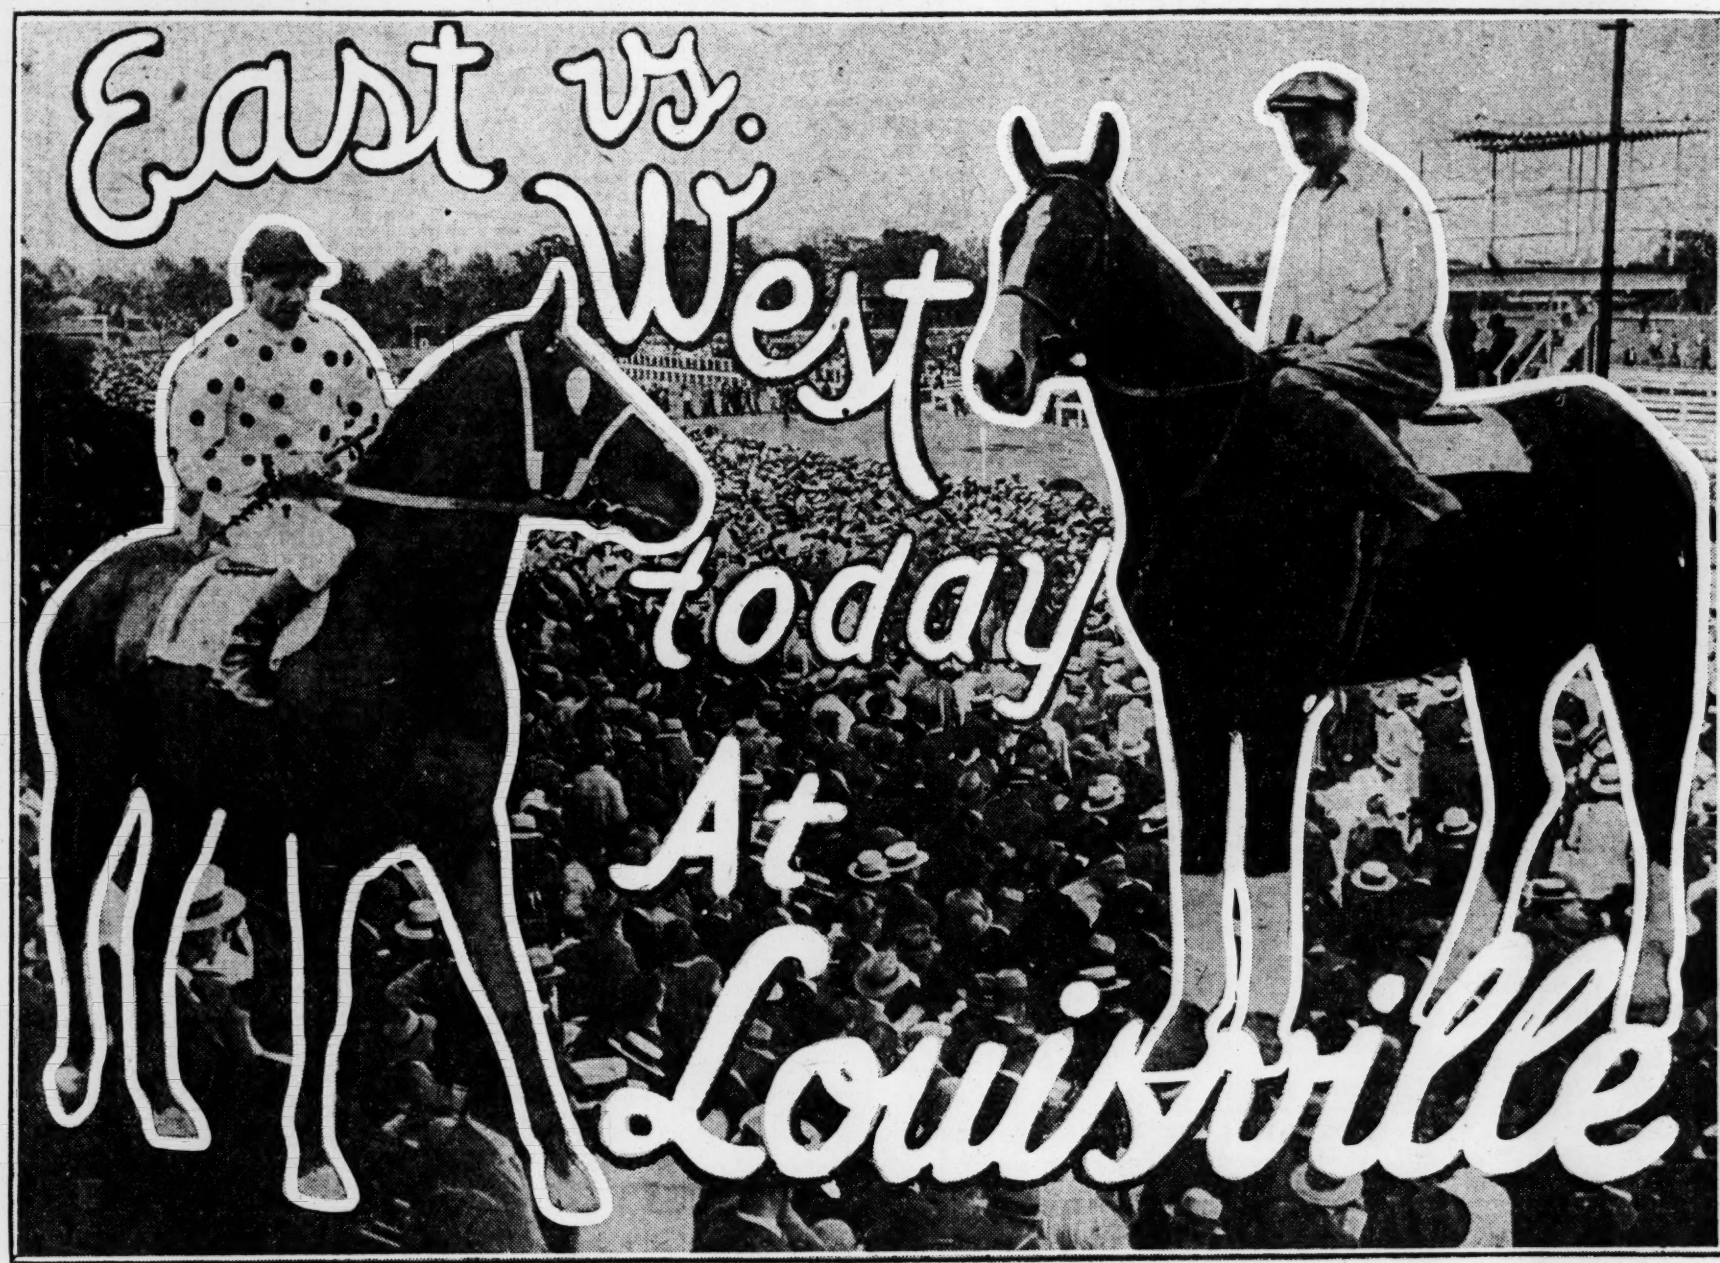

Strangely enough one heard resounding through the night calls of "Tech," "Georgia," and "Alabama" from high up in the Seelbach hotel. Your correspondent hunted in vain for the source of the familiar yells.

The festivities were marred by only one distressing circumstance so far as I could learn. A well-known and popular Louisville sportsman invited many guests in to quaff a beaker of champagne, which it later was learned had cost $12 delivered. When the corks were popped it was discovered to be cider. The subsequent scene was most pitiable.

Georgia Beats Tech in Opener Here, 7 to 3; Messenger Holds Travelers as Crackers Win; Gallant Fox and Tannery Are Heavily Backed

Every Derby offers the annual contest of the West vs. East. The East has the big favorite this year in Gallant Fox, shown at the left with Sande up. Gallant Fox, winner of the Preakness, is the big stake winner of the year. Kentucky and the West are backing Tannery, right. They are the leading figures in the big drama today. Sande, the greatest of jockeys, will have a leg up on "The Fox." Willie Garner, a famous and capable jockey, will ride Tannery. There is a chance for an upset as the race looks rather "open." One hundred thousand people are expected to witness the race.

GEORGIA BEATS JACKETS, 7-3

Bulldogs Go One Up in Series at Tech; Play Today.

Bunching hits every so often and whenever permitted by the more-or-less drizzling rain which fell through out the game, Georgia's Tech added the 1930 series with the Jackets, 7-3, on the Rose Bowl field Friday afternoon. The victory gave the Bulldogs a clean sweep for the three games already played.

As a ball game, the affair lacked the traditional color and punch expected of the Jackets-Bulldogs tussles. Rain, making even spectating more of a curse than a blessing, made play a positive pain. The wet grass made fast travel for the fielders an impossibility and made the ball a slippery pellet which proved harder to handle than the greased pig the boys love to talk about.

The Bulldogs won by virtue of the fact that they were able to smack the ball. Both teams collected 10 hits. Tech's went for 12 bases. Junior Frink's smashing triple being the only extra-base blow on the list. Georgia's were good for 17 bases. "Carfish," Smith, Cliff McGaughey, and "Buckie" Davenport all touched. Ray Brosnan for doubles, while McGaughey and Davenport each added triples to their totals.

This led Davenport, who hails from Norcross, grabbed himself a lot of laurels Friday. He led the Bulldogs at bat with three hits in five times at bat. He scored one run and drove two. And he handled four chances at second base without a slip. McGaughey, who was playing before the home folks, got two hits in five trips to the plate, scored two runs and spent a busy afternoon at shortstop, taking 13 chances and bowing to superstition just long enough to mess up one play.

The Jackets, not to be outdone, also advanced a pair of stars for approval. Ike Farmer led the stick attack with three hits in four attempts. He drove in one run. He was credited with six putouts and took part in a snap double play, taking a third strike on Hamilton and shooting it to first to end the inning. "Catfish" Smith, stationed there. Jimmy Frink is the number two man. Jimmy, playing his last-but-one game for the Jackets, hit that one triple which put him in position to score. He handled

Five Are Grouped In Field for Derby

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 16.—Grouped in the mutual field for the Kentucky Derby tomorrow are Long's, Uncle Luther, Alibi, Dick O'Hara and Busy. A ticket on one of these horses is good regardless of which wins.

Only once has a field horse won the Derby, that was Flying Ebony in 1925, with Earl Sande up.

Busy is considered an extremely doubtful starter. Dick O'Hara is given no chance, and the others are rated a fair chance, with Uncle Luther well liked in case of rain.

AMERICA WINS TO RETAIN CUP

Bobby Jones Leads U. S. Stars to Victory Over British.

By Frank H. King, Associated Press Staff Writer.
SANDWICH, England, May 16.—(AP)—With 10 matches won and only 2 lost, Walker cup honors today went to the United States for the sixth time. At a ceremonial dinner in old Guild hall at Sandwich tonight Bobby Jones, captain of the American team, was again given the international golfing trophy which Britons never have won.

Jones' men today gave Roger Wethered's team the most decisive defeat a British team ever received in this country. The largest crowds ever to see Walker cup matches in England watched the contests.

The Prince of Wales followed the matches with days, the fourtimes yesterday and singles today, with a set of big binoculars added to his equipment today. He really needed a ladder to see over the crowd, numbering more than 5,000. There were 5,760 paid admissions.

In singles matches today the British were able to win only one, T. A. Torrance drubbing Francis Ouimet, 7 up and 6 to play. As the Americans won three of the four foursomes, the final score was 10 to 2. Two years ago, at the Chicago Golf Club, the Americans won 11 to 1. Torrance, then as now, winning the only singles match for the British.

Today's contests were finished in an almost dead calm continuance of the ideal weather of yesterday, a rare

CRACKERS TRIM TRAVELERS, 6-3

Andy Messenger Goes Full Route; Roy Carlyle Hits Triple.

By Ralph McGill.

Hitting and hustling behind real pitching, the Atlanta Crackers swept through the Little Rock Travelers' defense to register a 6 to 3 victory at Spiller field Friday afternoon.

They can play when they bear down and they did Friday. Andy Messenger, solemn and slim, started strong and finished in that same condition. This caused great consternation in the stands, the inhabitants of which have grown used to frantic activity in the bull pen and a succession of new faces on the mound.

Andy Messenger, the strike-out king of the Texas league last season, was never really in danger. Aside from one or two little flurries of hitting the Travelers did him no great damage. They got to him for seven hits and only two of their three runs were earned.

CRACKER LEADERS.
Jack Sheehan, Roy Carlyle and Cy Rosenthal led the hitting brigade for the Crackers. They were swinging their sticks in blustering fashion and they got results. Cy Rosenthal had a triple, double and single in four times up. Jack Sheehan had a single and two doubles. Roy Carlyle, the Norcross citizen, launched the longest triple of the day and had a single to boot. He drove in three of the six runs. Oh, yes, it was quite a day.

The Travelers had a slugger, too. Poco Titit, from Pocatella, Idaho, out where the big potatoes grow, slammed under a triple and a double. He was the only Traveler to get as many as two hits.

Messenger started auspiciously. He struck out the first two men with a nonchalance that aroused the house to excitement. He did not keep up that fanning but he did add one more to it. And he walked no one.

BEST PITCHING.
It was perhaps the best pitched game of the year so far as both three were concerned. Not a man was walked and Messenger struck out three. Moore, who worked for the Travelers, had good control, his offense of the afternoon being one wherein a pitched ball grazed Johnny Jones' shirt, allowing him to go to first.

As evidence of the ill-fortune that dogs the Crackers' track is the one error and its story. Here of late every misdeed the Crackers make provokes a costly one. Jimmy Johnston, who has been playing a smart and jam-up game at third with fewer errors than any other third-sacker, threw one in home Friday in an effort to catch a runner trying to score on the infield play. The ball slipped from his hand because it was wet from a slight drizzle that was falling, and the throw went low. Wingo attempted to trap it and lost it, the run scoring. Some day perhaps good fortune will smile.

CRACKERS SCORE.
The Crackers scored one in the first inning on two singles and an infield out. They added another in the third with Sheehan's second single

Ed Danforth Selects Tannery To Win Derby

Gallant Fox Second, Bradley Entry Next; Watch Out for Uncle Luther If It Rains.

By Ed Danforth, Constitution Sports Editor.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 16.—Guessing the winner of the Derby is a pastime that requires absolutely no training nor unusual intelligence. A child can do it as soon as he can utter coherent syllables. In fact, the less technical knowledge of the races one has, the better off he is, provided he is not deaf.

I like Tannery to win the race. That guess comes from the impulses in which stubbornness and sectional loyalty play a prominent part. Half the turf world is waiting for the sunrise, Gallant Fox, Earl Sande and I told you so. The other half is shouting Tannery, Buckeye Post, Gallant Knight and Crack Brigade.

My reasons for stringing along with Tannery were not hard to find. Tannery looks like a better horse for the derby route tomorrow than Gallant Fox. Tannery has beaten the best 3-year-olds in the west and they look like a stouter lot than Gallant Fox has beaten.

Tannery likes the Downs track and has worked impressively since coming here from Lexington. Gallant Fox has shown nothing since coming here that tends to increase confidence in his ability to pick up a load and carry it over a distance of ground.

Tannery was a better 2-year-old than Gallant Fox. He won five out of eight races while his eastern rival won only two out of seven. Tannery this year has won his only two straits, trimming among others Buckeye Post and Breezing Through. Gallant Fox has won both his starts and his most impressive performance was beating Crack Brigade in the Prekness.

PLAYED OUT.
Gallant Fox, however, was pretty well played out at the finish of that race and Crack Brigade is no world beater himself.

If Gallant Fox could ride Earl Sande instead of vice versa, he would have the race at his mercy. Sande stands out over the other jockeys in the race like a barn on a hill. If Gallant Fox wins, as nearly everyone says he will, it will be as much to the credit of Sande as to the colt.

Earl Beats Cold; Will See Derby

LEXINGTON, Ky., May 16.—(AP)—Lord Derby, having fought off the stubborn cold and throat infection that marred his visit to the Blue Grass nurseries of the thoroughbreds, today was assured by his physicians that he could attend the 56th running at Churchill Downs tomorrow of the famous Kentucky racing classic that bears the name of his family. He will present the gold cup to the owner of the winning horse in the Derby. He also plans to make a brief talk to the radio audience that listens in on the race.

body knows him around here—and if Tannery wins, as they expect him to, the yell that will go up from the packed lawn tomorrow will be the keen high-pitched yell that their forebears raised when the Indians retreated in haste from an attack on the block-house. Tannery has done everything asked of him.

He has won both his races this year at Lexington, beating the Bradley pair soundly in his last time out.

Not a few of the home folks think highly of the chances of the Bradley pair—Buckeye Post and Breezing Through. They were not convinced that Buckeye Post cannot beat Tannery this time.

Uncle Luther, owned by Luther Stivers, a Lexington tobacco man, is another local colt who may make good, they say, especially if the track is muddy. Gallant Fox does not care for sticky going; Uncle Luther simply eats it up.

SURPRISE ENTRY.
A surprise last minute entry of Alcibiades, the great filly belonging to Hal Price Headley, of Lexington, caused a shiver of excitement to run through the home guard ranks.

Alcibiades had been racing poorly in the east but finding the cuppy going of the Downs under her feet the other day, she came out field handily and looked like a real race horse again. Many a sentimental wager will be dropped in on the daughter of old Supreme.

Chicago's big noisy delegation, where business judgment does not dictate a wager on Gallant Fox or Tannery, will support Hal Foot, a very fast colt owned by the Nash brothers. Gallant Knight, a handsome black colt owned by the Audley Farms, of Virginia, is classed as a westerner and is not an outsider exactly.

THE CALIFORNIAN.
And then there comes Longus, that ran second in the Agua Caliente handicap. Hence Longus cannot be entirely ignored as a western chance. The 2-year-old filly, of the Three D stable, Dick O'Hara, owned by Pay Joyce, a Chicagoan, is just in there. "I would start him even if I knew he would be double last," Mr. Joyce has stated. Thus no doubt many owners think and start their pets for sweet sentiment and an afternoon's airing.

The decision of the race may make notable turf history instead of merely the recording of a new name in the equine hall of fame.

If Gallant Fox wins, he will be the second horse ever to win the Prekness and the derby. Sir Barton did it in 1919, winning the derby first, then the Prekness. That was Sir Barton's first turf victory, incidentally, he was a poor two-year-old.

Also, for Sande it would be his third derby victory, an honor shared with Isaac Murphy, the great colored jockey of 40 years ago. Sande already has ridden Zed and Flying Ebony down in front.

ONE—TWO.
In case the Bradley pair run one-two it would be the already unique position of the Idle Hour colors in having finished one-two in two previous derbies.

Alcibiades, the only filly in the field and a good one, has an opportunity to become the second filly ever to win the race. Regret holds this distinction aloof now.

The derby is just one race. It is the fifth on a card of seven other races on one day of a long race meeting. It lasts only a fraction over two minutes. But it is packed with the thrills of a year and the suspense of an eternity.

Young Stribling Talks to Wife From Steamship

MACON, Ga., May 16.—(AP)—Telephoning from the steamer Leviathan, upon which he and his father are en route to Europe, W. L. (Young) Stribling, Macon fighter, talked with his wife tonight for several minutes.

Mrs. Stribling stated that her husband's voice came in very clearly and distinctly. He stated that the ship was then 1,500 miles out and that they expected to dock in New York Monday afternoon.

"Pa" Stribling talked with "Ma" Stribling by trans-Atlantic phone also on Wednesday night.

AMATEUR TITLE IS MAJOR GOAL IN ENGLAND

Last Big Effort Seen as Atlantan Prepares for Tournaments.

By H. G. Salsinger.
Sports Editor Detroit News.

LONDON, May 16.—This may be the last year of Bobby Jones' career as a tournament player. He has confided to friends that he will engage in no more championship competition after 1936. Increasing demands of his law practice make it impossible for him to give the required amount of time to golf practice. There are other handicaps.

Jones is making what he considers his last big effort this year. He has trained faithfully for the major tests of 1936. He is in the best condition he has been in for several years, is from 6 to 10 pounds lighter and playing better golf. Most of all he wants to win the British amateur championship, the only major golf crown that has escaped him so far.

CORRECT FAULTS.
If Jones had a fault as a golfer it was in his intermediate approach shots. His mashie niblick attempts, at from 120 to 75 yards, were often marked by indecision. He never played the shot to the limit. His mashie niblick shots were too often loose and faulty. He lobbed the shot and got little backspin. He has corrected this fault and removed the only visible flaw in his game. By changing the wrist action Jones has achieved precision. His pitch shots are now hit with compactness.

Equipped to play better golf than in previous years Jones finds a greater handicap than ever in his galleries. They are larger. Driving through a crowd and waiting at each tee until a few thousand humans come to a stop and settle down is more severe than actual play. Jones never has a moment of relaxation.

On every course there are from two to four holes golfers recognize as "relaxation" holes. They are easy and the golfer can let down and lose nothing. He will concentrate on five or six consecutive holes and then he comes to one where he can relax. He is able to get a little rest and get par at the same time. But every hole is a test for Jones because of the crowds. He finds no temporary mental relief.

LARGE GALLERIES.
The largest galleries in the history of golf have followed Jones. His practice rounds have been shot through narrow lanes bordered by people. He has been unable to practice shots like other golfers. He is forced, by virtue of his position in golf, to deliver performances worthy of his reputation. He is under complete pressure every time he tees off.

The very crowds that idolize Jones and come out to cheer him have made golf an arduous struggle and a grind for him instead of a game and sport.

BARBARE FINED.
HUNTSVILLE, Ala., May 16.—In a game marked by umpire McMenon sending Manager Walter Barbare of the Talladega Indians from the park and placing a fine of $25 against him for sending a player and not announcing name, coupled with thunderstorms and a wet field, the Huntsville Stingers fanned out 22 hits off three pitchers for 13 runs to win their third straight game here today, 13 to 7. Talladega played good ball and got the best out of all breaks.

Higginbotham, of Huntsville, clouted a homer with one on in the first inning, while Wade, Huntsville's shortstop, secured four hits and three runs out of five official times at bat.

The game was postponed several times during showers. Talladega plays Huntsville tomorrow.

Turf Puzzle.
Mrs. Payne Whitney's colt, Twenty Grand, is the sensation of the New York tracks, and is said to be worth $100,000, and not the amount of his name. His name is a puzzle to the fans.

MARION TURPIE - LOSES MATCH

Mrs. Gaut and Miss Kennedy Will Battle Today for Women's Title.

SEDFIELD COUNTRY CLUB, GREENSBORO, N. C., May 16.—(AP)

A sun-tanned miss from the wide-open spaces of the gusher country and a battle-scarred veteran of a dozen Dixie golfing wars will battle it out tomorrow for the women's southern golf championship.

Mrs. Dave Gaut, of Memphis, who is heading for her fourth southern title with the throttle wide open, meets Miss Anne Kennedy, of Tulsa, Okla., playing her second season under the big top, for the premier links honors below the Mason-Dixon line.

The Memphis entry today entered the afternoon to the title by vanquishing Mrs. Marion Turpie Lake, of New York and New Orleans, one up on the 19th hole, while the southwest's standard bearer was winning as she pleased from Mrs. Kennon Rodwell, of Savannah, Ga., 4 and 3.

WHIRLWIND FINISH.
The finals, therefore, give promise of developing into a whirlwind struggle with the age-old issue of youth vs. age the predominating feature.

Tonight the experts appeared to think it is largely a question of which finalist left the most golf strewn over the treacherous Valley Brook course today.

The plucky little Mrs. Lake, well accustomed to the rigors of championship play despite her youthfulness, treated Mrs. Gaut to one of the hardest tussles of the Tennesseean long and brilliant in southern golf.

For 15 holes it looked like the tall, poker-faced entry from the banks of the Mississippi, would coast in with room to spare. Then came the turning point and from then on nobody dared predict what would happen.

In the other semi-final between Miss Kennedy and Mrs. Rodwell the issue was never in doubt.

Badly off the game she exhibited in winning her earlier matches, Mrs. Rodwell was utterly unable to get going and dropped the first five holes to the westerner, who took advantage of this commanding lead to breeze in with scarcely a threat from the Georgian.

GLENN COLLETT DEFEATED, 4-3, IN FINAL ROUND

American Girl Beaten After Great Showing in British Tourney.

By Victor Eubank.
Associated Press Staff Writer.

FORMBY, England, May 16.—(AP)

Miss Diana Fishwick, a mere slip of a girl in her teens, today defeated Miss Glenna Collett, American champion, four up and three to play, to win the British women's golf championship the very first time she tried.

Miss Collett lost to Miss Fishwick at the 32nd hole after the clever American girl had fought her way through six rounds and defeated three of the greatest players on this side of the Atlantic. As a matter of fact, it was the actual count of holes, Miss Fishwick was the victor after the morning round when the players went to luncheon with the British girl five up.

PUS COST TITLE.
Putting lost the day for the visiting title holder, although many of her other shots were not all that they should have been. Miss Collett played as though she was very tired, which she should have been after opposing the English champion, Miss Molly Gourlay for 21 holes, and barely nailing out Miss Enid Wilson and Hilda Cameron on the 18th green.

It was a day of summer weather and bright sunshine as though made for the American. A gallery of 2,000 in the morning and 5,000 in the afternoon showed the interest in the match although the British really had little hope for the youthful Diana's success.

Glenna was off to a good start, winning the first hole but she missed a five-foot putt at the second to see the match squared. Miss Collett took three putts at the fourth and from then on she had trouble with her erratic putter.

The match saw-sawed with the American drawing level at the sixth and Emory are officially entered in the 1936 "Technique" Athens race, which was off to a good start, winning the first hole but she missed a five-foot putt at the second to see the match squared. # Y. C. A. A. Baseball Leaders Face Tough Games in Round Today

GORDON STREET HAS HARD FOE IN GRANT PARK

North Atlanta Baptist Meets Northwest Atlanta at Waterworks.

League leaders of the Y. C. A. A. are facing their hardest games in the final series of the first round slated for Saturday and the four clubs that have survived this far are scheduled to meet their nearest rivals. North Atlanta Baptist, topmost team in the Dixie league, heads the list as they are scheduled to meet the Northwest Atlanta club at the waterworks, and as the latter club has lost but one of four games played they are certain to give them a tough battle.

Gordon Street Presbyterian—only undefeated team in the Fulton league, must invade the home diamond of the second place club—Grant Park Methodist—for their game and as the parkers have been hammering the ball hard in their last few games the leaders will be in for plenty of trouble to hold their perfect record. With a dual tie existing for first place in the Sewanee league and all top division clubs meeting those of the lower half, only an upset can change the relative standings of the clubs.

Mary Branch Methodist, winners in its last two starts, will endeavor to repulse the invasion of the league-leading College Park Baptist team, whom they meet on the Steel plant diamond. Another good game for the league fans is the Lowrytown Baptist-Mt. Zion Methodist set to at Candler field, as the winner will move into second place. Piedmont league fans are pinning their hope of stopping the rush of the College Park Baptist nine toward the first half crown on Park Street Methodist as this game will complete the first round and the boys from the southern suburb have won every game by wide margins. How many will Cowart, strikeout king of the Georgia league, add to his long list of victims when he faces the Mt. Zion crew is the query of all church league players. The games will all start at 3 o'clock with the following schedule to be played:

DIXIE LEAGUE.
Twenty-first Century Bible Class vs. Kirkwood Methodist, at Kirkwood.
Pep Class, Baptist Tabernacle, vs. Peachtree Christian, at Northwest Piedmont.

Hale Class vs. Friendship Class, at Oakland City.
Southside Baptist vs. Capital View Methodist, at Adair park.

PIEDMONT LEAGUE.
Imman Park Baptist vs. Orchard Knob, at Orchard Knob.
Liberty Methodist vs. Oakhurst Presbyterian, at Oakhurst.

GEORGIA LEAGUE.
Mary Branch Memorial vs. Mountain View Baptist, at Atlantic Steel.
Lowrytown Baptist vs. Mt. Zion Baptist, at Candler field.

FULTON LEAGUE.
Lutheran Church of the Redeemer vs. Central Presbyterian, at Southwest Piedmont.
Alpha Class, Wesley Memorial, vs. Patricia Memorial, at U. S. Honor farm.

Fulton Faces Hard Battle.
Hapeville will give Fulton Bag and Cotton Mills a hard battle in the City league Saturday afternoon at Candler field. The two teams are browsing just under the top of the City league and should give a good exhibition. Southern Railway is favored to bump off Exposition, as they defeated the league leaders last week.

The classic of the day should be the game at Almond Park between Southern Spring Bed and Co. "B" of the 122nd Infantry, Co. "F" has been riding along rather smoothly for the past few weeks, having lost only one game, while the Spring Bed team has been both strong and lucky in all of their starts. This game should bring out some good baseball and plenty of interest, for its outcome will point to the ultimate winner in the Atlanta league.

All of the games in the Granite league should be good ones, but none of them are for the championship. Georgia Duck and Chamblée are both favored to win over their opponents, but only by slight margins. Any of these games should be well worth watching.

CITY LEAGUE.
Whittier Mills vs. Southern Bell at Northwest Piedmont, Bell vs. Hanna, umpire.

Officers Elected In Golf League

McNeel, Dan Sage and Griffin Are Named; Six Club Loop Planned.

Morgan McNeel, of Marietta, was elected president of the North Georgia Golf League Friday night at the Ansley Park Golf Club at an organization meeting. Dr. Dan Sage, of Ansley Park, was selected vice president and Bee Griffin, of Forrest Hills, was named secretary.

The board of directors will be composed of one member of each club, to be selected by the clubs in the league. L. R. Hunter, of West End; Ed Miles and Bee Griffin were named on a committee to draft a schedule.

It was voted to limit each team to 12 players, except when Marietta was involved, and only eight players will be used in the matches with Marietta. The Cobb Country Club membership is not as large as some of the others. The Nassau scoring system will be used.

A perpetual plaque will be given to the winning club to be kept one year and will rotate with the winners. A permanent trophy will be awarded the winning team.

It is planned to have a six-club league with Rome Country Club as a new member. Ingleside Country Club has been extended an invitation to join before the schedule is made up.

Those representatives present Friday night were Morgan McNeel and W. A. Dupree, from Marietta; L. R. Hunter, from West End; Bee Griffin and Tom Stewart, from Forrest Hills; Dr. Dan Sage, L. W. Granade and R. L. Nichols, of Ansley Park, the hosts, and Bill Harmon from Rome Country Club.

Ansley Park is the defending champion, having won the last year's championship in a close race. It is planned to play a match every other Sunday on a home-and-home schedule, wherever possible.

Tech High, Fulton Win in Prep Race

Smithies Beat G. M. A. 9-2 and County Lads Beat Decatur—U. S. B. Ties.

Tech High and Fulton retained first and second place respectively in the city prep baseball pennant race with victories Friday afternoon and University and Commercial, battling to move out of the cellar position in the league, called their game because of rain in the ninth inning.

Tech High defeated G. M. A. 9 to 2, at Grady field and Fulton won, 8 to 0, from Decatur at Piedmont park, before the rain started. The Tech High-G. M. A. game was played in a slow drizzle during the last three innings.

John Chambers was the shining light in the Smithies victory. He gave the Cadets seven hits, a majority of which came after the rain started and struck out 15 batters. He contributed two singles that scored runners and along with English and Boyd, shared hitting honors.

Clark pitched for G. M. A. and five errors and a wet ball in the last innings caused his defeat. Five of the Tech High runs resulted from errors.

Missing Six Months

BARTON, Vt., May 16.—(P)—A six-month old mystery was solved here today by Fred Martel, a fisherman, who recovered the body of Grover Hemmings, 32, of Mount Airy, N. C., and Bebee, Que., from Crystal lake.

Hemmings had been missing since November 19, 1929, after customs patrolmen had chased two men in an automobile from the border to a spot near the lake. The men abandoned the car, which carried Canadian ale, and ran in opposite directions. The officers lost sight of both but heard the cries of a man for help. It was one of the men stumbled into cratic force of Senator-elect Vance's unsuccessful contest at the polls.

By going to the polls it is the belief of some committee members they can make first-hand check the voters and also on the way to the Pennsylvania legislature a party is allowed to employ war at $10 a head to protect its interests at the polls. The duties and the money involved in the process also are attracting the interest of the senate inquirers.

Meanwhile, plans for the early election of Vance on the basis of the senatorial primary in that state being held up pending a decision of the senate on the tariff bill.

the lake and drowned but a search failed to yield the body.

In January 1965, Attorney Raymond J. McInerney, of Mount Airy, received a letter from James Hemmings, of Mount Airy, saying that his son had not yet returned home. Graham Hemmings had a wife and five children.

Miss Helen Moore Goes Under Knife

Miss Helen Moore, 35-year-old daughter of Councilman Wiley L. Moore, one of the mayoralty candidates, was taken to George Baptist hospital Friday night for an operation following an attack of appendicitis.

Early this morning it was said at the hospital that the condition of the patient was critical.

the hospital unit in Cook County, Ill., following the operation, was authorized the federal government to take over the Illinois waterway.

Yesterday afternoon. The killer escaped through the woods while the three remaining officers pursued to aid their fallen comrades.

The raiders had sighted a still in a ravine and were approaching it stealthily in an effort to capture the ringleader, M. J. Hinson, New York county deputy, and Luke Hinson, 31, deputy of Lewis county, were going over the rim of the ravine, they were shot. Deputy Hinson was killed instantly, and Hinson wounded so seriously that he died early today in a Columbia hospital.

Upon information given by Hinson's officers, M. J. Hinson was later arrested John P. Himes, Jr., 47, on a murder charge. He was holed corn when the officers arrested him and denied knowledge of the slaying.

Newton is survived by his widow

HIGH LIGHTS OF HISTORY

Registered U. S. Patent Office.

WHEN THE GREAT GERMAN DRIVE OF MARCH, 1918, BEGAN ON THE SOMME, FOUR AMERICAN DIVISIONS WERE IN THE TRENCHES ON THE WESTERN FRONT. THE MOST-EXPERIENCED "1ST" WAS SOON MOVED FROM THE TOUL SECTOR TO TAKE PART IN STOPPING THE DRIVE IN PICARDY. THE OTHER THREE, THE "2ND" (REGULARS) AND THE "26TH" AND "42ND" (NATIONAL GUARD), HAD BUT RECENTLY GONE INTO QUIET SECTORS FOR THEIR FIRST "TRICK" IN THE TRENCHES.

THEIR TOUR OF DUTY WAS A PART OF THEIR FINAL PHASE OF TRAINING FOR THE GREAT BATTLES TO COME. THE UNITS OF THESE THREE DIVISIONS WENT INTO THE LINE BRIGADED WITH THE FRENCH.

THE ENEMY PROCEEDED TO TEST THE METTLE OF EACH AMERICAN DIVISION AS IT CAME UP TO THE LINE. MARCH 14, 1918, THE GERMANS RAIDED AMERICAN POSITIONS NORTH OF ST. MIHIEL, BUT WERE BEATEN OFF WITH HEAVY LOSS. -TOMORROW- THE 42ND BAPOLVILLERS.

POLITICAL ANGLE

Taylor Says Clerk Was Not Provided Because Formal Request Had Not Been Made.

More than 250 citizens of the ninth ward, calling by the Marshall & Pendergrast drug store at Little Five Points Saturday morning and afternoon to register for the city election, expressed indignation when they found that a registration clerk had not been provided at that point by Registrar Walter C. Taylor, city clerk.

It had been announced that a registration clerk deputized by Taylor would appear at the Little Five Points at 8:30 o'clock Saturday morning to handle registration of citizens in that section. When informed that they would be unable to register at "Little Five Points," the callers voiced belief that they were victims of a political trick.

W. Paul Carpenter, attorney who is a member of defense counsel in Taylor's trial for bribery now under way before Judge Virlyn B. Moore in Fulton superior court, is a candidate for council to succeed Taylor in the ninth ward. He is opposed by Homer C. Foster, who was endorsed by a citizens' political rally in that ward recently.

Blames Politics.
"There must be politics in it," declared John C. Rasbury, of 1190 Euclid, N. E. "Failure to put a registration clerk at Little Five Points indicates an effort to keep down the registration of this ward. General indignation has been expressed by ninth ward citizens this morning over the matter."

T. B. Perry, of 1005 Adair, N. E., said: "There is something wrong about the failure of a registration clerk to show up." Mr. Perry declared that the people of the ninth ward had been put to great inconvenience by their needless trip to Little Five Points, and asserted that the whole matter "smacks of politics."

W. N. Kilgore, of 573 North Highland, N. E., said that he and his wife went to Little Five Points to register, and were disappointed. He pointed out that announcement had been made that "this was the right place," and declared that he thinks "it is some of Walter Taylor's work."

Registrar Taylor, when asked by a Constitution reporter to explain the situation, declared that he had received no formal request for a registration booth in the ninth ward. This was opposed to a written statement by Mrs. Fannie Mae Dabney, who, it was said, had called at Taylor's home Friday to request that he provide a registration clerk at Little Five Points Saturday morning.

Mrs. Dabney, in her written statement said: "To all who called Saturday at Marshall and Pendergrast to register: I wish to request that you go to the city hall Monday to register as the registration taken at Marshall and Pendergrast Saturday was

Notice of Contest on Nominations for Executive Committee.

Notice of a contest on the nomination of County Commissioners W. L. Gilbert, Paul S. Etheridge and Walter C. Hendrix to succeed themselves in the general election November 10 was filed Saturday with the Fulton county democratic executive committee on behalf of Alex A. Whitley, Nelson T. Spratt and Don H. Griffith, defeated candidates in the March 19 primary.

The notice was filed by Attorney J. Mallory Hunt on behalf of the defeated candidates, and charges illegal and fraudulent voting in the primary. The contestants allege that in many cases, living persons, voters, cast ballots in the name of dead persons on the registration lists.

Hearing of the contest will come before the democratic executive committee of the county, as this body was in charge of the primary. Mr. Hunt said, the notice was made out by the members of the executive committee and to the successful candidates.

Saturday was the last day of the time limit for filing the notice, it was said. The notice was served upon Albert Howell, chairman of the committee, Saturday afternoon, and Jackson D. Thomas, secretary, is also to be served as an official of the committee.

The population of 107 of Georgia's 161 counties was fixed Saturday at 1,830,886 in an unofficial tabulation of official census returns.

This compares with the 1920 count of 1,736,238 and is an increase of 94,648 during the 10-year period.

Of the 107 counties tabulated, 61 had population data showing a decrease. Every county in the period of expansion of industrial Georgia the large counties have grown larger and most of the small counties have grown smaller.

The returns show a decided trend of population towards the cities and census officials agreed that industries are largely responsible for the shift from farm to town.

A striking example of this trend is evidenced by returns from the fifth district, of which Athens is headquarters. Every county in the district has reported except Elbert, Greene, Morgan, and Walton, and each county showed a decrease.

However, 12 of the 14 counties in the third district, which adjoins the fifth, and of which Gainesville is headquarters, show large increases. The Gainesville area has enjoyed industrial growth during the period.

The general increase of 94,648 in the 107 counties should not be taken as a ratio for the state's total increase. Many of the large counties have not reported. None of the counties in the 12th district, with Savannah as census headquarters, has reported. However, that is the only district that has not reported at least a few tabulated.

The tabulated returns furnish many interesting features, including Little Grady county, down on the Florida line. This county increased its population from 1,908 to 3,176. The fourth district, made up of Fulton and DeKalb counties, also showed a tremendous increase. The eighth district, of which Macon is headquarters, presented an interesting situation. Seven out of the eight counties reported, and all but Bibb showed a loss, indicating to census officials that many persons in the rural districts had simply moved into town. The same situation existed over in the tenth district, where Columbus is located. Muscogee county showed a good increase, but neighboring counties lost.

The first district, enjoying the industrial expansion in the Rome area, had a good increase, but the Marietta district was barely holding its own. Every county in the sixth district

Monday's Senate Vote Will Decide Death or Eventual Passage of Controversial Measure.

WASHINGTON, May 17.—(AP)—Intensive drives for votes were under way in the senate today preparatory for Monday's critical test on the tariff bill.

Republican leaders were striving hard to swing four or five votes their way to enable them to gain a decision against the export debenture and legislative flexible tariff provisions, opposed vigorously by President Hoover and the house.

Democratic chiefs were marshaling all available strength to repeat their former victories on the two amendments. They were promised the support of the republican independent who helped the minority write the disputed provisions in the bill.

President Hoover has refused to take a hand in the controversy. He has made his position clear on both amendments in formal statements and in messages to congress and feels it is not up to him to act further until a bill is sent to him.

The house has turned down the senate's debenture and flexible proposals by big majorities and its conferees have refused to negotiate further with the senate managers until the latter are given authority to work out a compromise.

The senate conferees, pledged to insist on retention of the propositions, will ask the senate Monday to relieve them of this tie.

Democrats on the senate finance committee, meeting today with Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, the minority leader, decided to ask separate votes on the two items embraced in the bill.

"We won on both of these proposals before and we hope to win again," Senator Robinson said after the meeting.

Senator Simmons, democrat, North Carolina, conceded that a democratic victory on either amendment would put it up to the house to decide. The branch persisted in its opposition to the bill would die.

The debenture amendment was adopted by the senate several months ago by 42 to 34, with 19 senators paired or not recorded. The flexible provision taking away authority from the president to change duties if they approved, 47 to 42, with six paired or not recorded.

IN CITY PRIMARY

Contests Will Be Waged in All But Six Posts To Be Filled on June 18.
Heated Races Forecast.

Forty-six candidates will contest for 22 posts in the municipal government in the June 18 primary election. When the time limit for qualifying expired at noon Saturday there were only half a dozen posts left in which there will be no contest.

With four candidates for mayor in that race and heated contests in almost every aldermanic, councilmanic and school board contest for the nomination, with graft charges and political corruption being pressed by successive Fulton grand juries and city officials on trial in criminal court, the hottest political campaign in years is looked forward to.

The four qualified candidates for mayor are Councilman Wiley L. Moore, of the seventh ward and chairman of the finance committee of council; former Mayor James L. Key; Alderman Ben T. Huie, of the third ward, whose remark on the council floor last fall precipitated the probe of graft and corruption, and William H. Johnson, city warden.

Those unopposed are Judge A. W. Callaway, of the first division of the recorder's court; Councilman H. Turner Lochr, of the first ward; Councilman William T. Knight, of the fifth ward; Raymond Curtis, for council from the 10th ward and success W. Garland Cooper, who will retire; Dr. N. W. Baird, seeking the post of school commissioner from the seventh ward to succeed Dr. McIntosh M. Burns, who is now president and who did not reoffer, and Commissioner John T. Hancock, school commissioner from the eighth ward.

Others who qualified are entitled to make the races for the respective posts which they seek follow:

For judge second division of the recorder's court, Judge Murphy M. Holloway retiring; John L. Cone, city paymaster; Frank F. Fling, John E. Chambers and Homer Denton.

For alderman, first ward, Bert F. Pennington, incumbent, and Guy Coleman; 5th ward, Mayor Pro Tem, J. Allen Couch, incumbent, and James E. Bowden, former incumbent; 10th ward, J. Everett Millican, incumbent, and John C. Mackey, prominent in civic and fraternal circles.

For council, 2d ward, Howard C. McCutcheon, incumbent, and Philip Rosenbaum; 3d ward, Ed Almond and G. Dan Bridges, seeking to succeed Charles L. Chosewood, who retired; 4th ward, Joseph E. Bergan, incumbent, and J. E. Adams; 6th ward, Luke Arnold, incumbent, and John M. Owen; 7th ward, Zack Layfield, J. T. Marler and J. C. Aldred.

For council, 8th ward, W. Paul Gagner, incumbent, and Homer Foster; 11th ward, William H. Johnson, incumbent, and Cecil V. Whidden; 12th ward, William E. Saunders, incumbent; Thomas W. Jones and H. M. Tatlin.

For School Board.
For board of education, fifth ward—James W. Maddox, incumbent, and H. J. Penn, former member of the board; sixth ward—Mrs. E. E. Parker and James P. McGrath; Mr. Jones, who announced his candidacy in opposition to Councilman William E. Saunders, under indictment growing out of the investigation of the graft conditions in the municipal government, Saturday issued a statement outlining his platform.

The incumbent several days ago issued a statement in which he declared himself innocent of any charges and stating that he would take his case directly to the voters of the ward, seeking vindication at their hands.

The race promises to be a heated one. Probably the hottest contest in the entire primary will be waged by Alderman Couch and his opponent, James E. Bowden. Mr. Couch, who is under indictment, and issued a statement declaring he would "ask the voters to decide" during the campaign, but would depend on the "honest, fair and unattached voters of Atlanta to vindicate me of the charges as I believe the courts will do when they hear the true facts."

Jones' Statement.
Text of Mr. Jones' statement follows:

"I made a race for councilman in the twelfth ward two years ago and received approximately 300 votes, and although defeated, I am consoled by the fact that this vote indicates that I made many friends in my ward, and I am deeply grateful for their former support, and I now call on my friends to rally to the cause and lend their support and influence in my behalf.

"It is my desire to make a clean, gentlemanly race, and I do not propose to engage with any candidate before the people of my ward in any discussion of the merits or demerits of any defense of any member of the present city government, who is at this time under a cloud of suspicion; believing that the principles of honesty and integrity demand of any person

FARM MAGAZINES IN CONSOLIDATION

Southern Ruralist and Progressive Farmer
Combine Creates Big Paper.

Merger of two large southern farm magazines which will bring to Atlanta the largest publication of any kind south of Philadelphia and one of the largest farm magazines in the entire United States was announced Saturday by officials of the Southern Ruralist Company, publishers of the Southern Ruralist, which will join with the Progressive Farmer Company, of Birmingham, in creating a publishing establishment here next January which will produce a new farm journal with a circulation of 1,135,000 readers.

The new concern will be known as the Progressive-Ruralist Company, with headquarters of the publication offices in both Birmingham and Atlanta. The merger, it was announced, involves printing machinery and equipment, plants, circulation and real estate to the amount of $2,500,000 and eventually will bring to Atlanta a 25 per cent increase in the present annual pay roll of $250,000 of the Southern Ruralist Company.

Decision already has been reached by officials of the two concerns in selecting the new name for the combined publication in the southeast. It will be known as the Progressive Farmer and the first issue is expected to come off the presses next September 1.

Divisional offices will be permanently maintained in Birmingham, Memphis, Dallas, Louisville and Raleigh, it was said, and sectional editions of the magazine will be issued covering the territory for which these cities are the centers. Dr. Clarence Poe, for many years president of the Progressive Farmer Company, will be president of the merged publications, and John S. Pearson, now secretary-treasurer of the Progressive Farmer, will be general manager, with L. D. Hicks, acting as production manager of the new paper.

Announcement as to the other officers will be made at an early date. It was declared, although it is definitely agreed that no reduction will be made in the staff of outstanding agricultural authorities who have made the Progressive Farmer and Farm Woman and the Southern Ruralist such conspicuous successes in the farm periodical field. It also was said that plans are being perfected for a material improvement in the editorial, typographical and mechanical makeup of the publication.

In making public the merger decision officials admitted that "some little time" will be required to complete the actual physical consolidation due to the fact that the combined publication will own and control its own mechanical equipment, but it is confidently expected that the southeastern edition of the Progressive Farmer will make its debut in Atlanta by the first of September.

The Ruralist Press, which has been conducted as the commercial printing division of the Southern Ruralist Company, has been reorganized as the Ruralist Press, Inc., and will be operated as a separate corporation, but will continue to directly benefit the heart.

ALBERT HOWELL HEADS LOCAL BAR

Dean Edmunds, of University of Georgia Law School, Makes Address.

Nominated by Judge Shepard Bryan as a man who had befriended more lawyers than any other practitioner at the local bar, Albert Howell Saturday night was elected president of the Atlanta Bar Association to succeed Sanders McDaniel. The nomination of Mr. Howell was the only one presented at the annual meeting held at the Capital City Country Club, Brookhaven, and his election was by acclamation.

Preceding selection of officers was a dinner presided over by retiring President McDaniel at which Dean H. N. Edmunds, of the Lumpkin School of Law at the University of Georgia, discussed the development of law and the modern methods of training candidates for license to practice.

Hits "Baiting Judiciary."
Standing out in a brief speech of introduction presenting Dean Edmunds was an observation of Mr. McDaniel, which later was partially challenged by the guest speaker of the annual dinner, that "the baiting of the judiciary was no new sport discovered by the United States senate and indulged in by that truculent body today," a line which won prolonged applause from the more than 150 Atlanta lawyers assembled for the occasion.

Alexander W. Smith was unanimously elected vice president of the association for the coming year, and William Matthews was re-elected secretary. The outstanding accomplishment of the association in the past 12 months, President McDaniel noted, has been the presentation to Fulton county of a portrait of Judge George L. Bell.

Touching upon the development and power of the courts, and making a pointed reference to the previous statement of Mr. McDaniel, Dean Edmunds declared that the hands of the executive and legislative branches of the government were tied by the judiciary and that the theory of coordinate government becomes fiction when the courts control the other two branches.

Mentioning the nominations of Chief Justice Hughes, and of Circuit Court Judge John J. Parker to be associate justice of the United States supreme court, Dean Edmunds, after tracing the enactment of legislation aimed at paralleling high court decisions, said:

"Is it any wonder that the senate of the United States, with its confirming power, looks into the character and characteristics, the mental trend and the social and legal background of nominees for membership on the supreme court?"

Law School Objective.
One of the objectives of the reorganized law school at the University of Georgia, and at all modern law schools, Dean Edmunds said, was to make a man, who will be faced with the exigencies of practice, think in the terms of the older lawyers, especially judges. Modern conditions, he pointed

BY ED DANFORTH,

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 17.—Gallant Fox, the big red colt, running with a long, lithe stride, loped down a rain-darkened track this afternoon to win the fifty-sixth Kentucky Derby.

Hunched up on his back, the red polka-dot silk blouse billowing in the wind, sat Earl Sande, the sly old fox of the turf. Behind him stood a stream of the best three-year-olds in America, vainly trying to catch the Red Fox and the Sly Fox that was riding him.

It was no use. Like a fairy tale come true, the son of Sir Galahad III galloped away in search of the gold chalice of racing, and found it waiting for him in the hands of royalty at the end.

Gallant Fox moved into the lead as the plunging, flying thoroughbreds turned into the back stretch, and was never headed. From the moment Sande gave him the rein he stepped away to prove he was as good as the east said he was. As they turned for home Sande touched the tightly held whip and Gallant Fox lengthened his stride to coast home winner by two lengths.

Gallant Knight came with a superb burst of speed in the stretch to finish second, two lengths in front of Ned O. A length back was Gone Away, a head in front of Crack Brigade, firing fast. Longacre came next. Then Uncle Luther, then Tannery, the hope of the Blue Grass. Far back in the bunch were the two Bradley horses badly beaten.

There was no questioning the best horse won. Gallant Fox made a show of his field, running the mile and a quarter in 2:07 3-4, a covered nod for the cuppy track. Had Gallant Knight been able to push him he might have done better. Save for those two light taps from Sande's whip at the head of the stretch, the colt did not have to be urged.

As Sande and Gallant Fox sped past the pagoda where Lord Derby stood squinting and unmoved, the excited beaming of 70,000 people, the crowd that had been lining the

Oglethorpe University Holds Commencement Rites Today

Eight Honorary Degrees Will Be Awarded to Prominent Citizens and 54 to College Students.

The eleventh annual commencement exercises of Oglethorpe University will be held at 11 o'clock this morning in the First Baptist church, featuring the presentation of honorary degrees to eight outstanding citizens and regular degrees to a class of 54 young men and women. Dr. Thornevald Jacobs will deliver the address and investiture.

The baccalaureate sermon will be delivered by the Rev. Wilbur A. Cleveland before the senior class during the evening ceremony beginning at the church at 7:45 o'clock tonight. The salutatory address will be delivered by Fred Snook, of Atlanta, while the valedictory, which was to have been delivered by Wade Bryant Arnold, of Spartanburg, will not be delivered this year. Young Arnold died recently and the students decided to honor his memory by leaving his name on the program for the valedictory address, but not substituting its delivery by another speaker.

A splendid musical program, including the singing of the alma mater song and hymns by William Taylor, an Oglethorpe student whose parents have won him wide recognition, will illumine the commencement program. J. D. Hoffman and W. L. Hambrick, of the First Baptist church, will direct the remainder of the musical program during both morning and evening services. Dr. Ellis A. Fuller, pastor of the First Baptist church, will take part in both phases of the exercises.

Clouds, Rain To Stay Today, Forecast Says

With C. F. von Herrmann, head of the local United States weather bureau, forecasting a day of clouds and rain, the forecast for today and tomorrow was predicted for Sunday.

Mr. von Herrmann early last week had a little trouble with his forecasts. The barometer or something went wrong. When he said "rain" it was fair, and vice versa.

But the local weather prophet soon struck his accustomed stride. A "fair" prediction held good, and for the remainder of the week Mr. von Herrmann reiterated "rain" with a monotony second only to the rain itself.

While showers have been frequent during the past week, they have not been heavy or of long duration. The weather is said not to be unusual for this season of the year.

Saturday's low temperature was 62 degrees, and high was 75. Today's thermometer readings will show approximately the same.

Bishop's Brokerage Record Scanned

NEW YORK, May 17.—(AP)—Record of the transactions of Bishop James Cannon, Jr., with the former brokerage firm of Kable and Company, was made accessible today by United States District Attorney Tuttle to John G. Holland, counsel for the United States senate judiciary committee.

Mr. Holland, arriving from Washington to examine the data on behalf of the subcommittee investigating the brokerage firm of Kable and Company, studied carefully accounts and letters pertaining to Bishop Cannon's "partial payment purchases" of stocks.

He returned to Washington today but will return next week to continue perusal of the records which, collected by federal investigators, led to the indictment and conviction of Harry L. Goldsmith for mail fraud in connection with the company's affairs.

CARVER SOBS STORY OF FAMILY'S SLAYING

Florida Realtor Tells Jury How Wife and Son Were Slain.

SEBRING, Fla., May 17.—(AP)—Amid sobs and with quivering voice, William E. Carver today told a circuit court jury a pathetic story how his wife and infant son were hacked to death with a hatchet in their home on April 2, and directly accused Ben Whitehead, negro servant, as the slayer.

Carver, on trial for the slaying of his wife, also is charged with the hatchet murder of his two-year-old son, Lee, and the fatal shooting of the negro. He claimed he shot Whitehead after the latter lashed his wife and son to death while the family was taking a siesta.

"On the morning of the day of the tragedy," Carver said, "I had gone to play golf, returning home about noon. After lunch, he said, his 11-month-old daughter, Frances Louise, was put to bed in her room. Carver and son went to sleep in Mrs. Carver's bedroom.

"I went into my bedroom to take a nap," Carver said, "and was suddenly awakened by screams. I ran into her bedroom.

"He said he saw the negro just outside his wife's bedroom door with something in his hand and got his pistol. He said he did not see the negro hacking his wife and child. Carver said he fired the pistol, and the negro staggered and did not fall to the floor until the weapon was empty.

"Then I shot," he screamed, "and I shot him down. I saw him get up again and I wanted to kill him. The dirty skunk—any other white man would do."

Z. D. Harrison To Realize Dream of Lifetime Today

BY W. O. KEY, JR.

When Zadock Daniel Harrison, clerk of the Georgia supreme court, receives from Dr. Thornevald Jacobs his honorary bachelor of arts degree at 11 o'clock this morning at the First Baptist church, it will mean the realization of his life's dream—a dream which ordinarily would have come true nearly 70 years ago when he walked the campus of old Midway, with his chum, Sidney Lanier.

War drums and the call of his beloved Southland tore the young junior grade Harrison away from the old Oglethorpe of Midway. He was just 18 and already had distinguished himself at his studies when the batteries of Fort Sumter were silenced in a gesture of defiance that quickened the pulse of nations. And the lad Harrison marched away from Oglethorpe never to return.

When peace came young Harrison came back to his native hearth; but his hopes of winning a college degree he had sought while a student at the university dwindled. Years passed, and with them went by one old friend of his youth passed on. A decade, half century, three score and ten years rolled on with the inexorable certainty of destiny, and Zadock Daniel Harrison was separated from the object of his longed-for dream by more than the human span.

But today his alma mater remembers. Today at the eleventh annual commencement exercises of Oglethorpe University, President Jacobs will honor an undergraduate alumnus with all the honor of an institution proud of such a son. In the company of many other distinguished honorary recipients of high degrees he will be remembered, and though 70 years have separated the "distinguished Oglethorpe student from the scenes of the old campus at Midway there is little doubt that he will recall old scenes of his early manhood and faces that are no more, as he receives the scroll and hood of his degree.

Struggle Toward Goal

There will be some, too, who will recall the earlier and arduous struggle of Zadock Daniel Harrison, for his life has been a full measure of struggles and objectives finally attained. Carver said he fired the pistol, and the negro staggered and did not fall to the floor until the weapon was empty.

First Georgia Peaches Received in Atlanta

It was at the Oglethorpe of old Midway, too, that the lad Harrison talked and walked with the poet, Lanier. In the cool of the evening, beneath shadowy oaks and sycamores, the two young patriots trod, and even today Mr. Harrison can remember the thin sweet notes that emanated from the poet's mouth as he sang the poem was playing on his flute—the flute that he carried with him through college and through the war.

Other memorable notes of his college days included the ringing of the college clock open to all students and the prize he received was a volume of Goldsmith's works, which now rests in the present Oglethorpe library.

He recalls even today the secession convention at Milledgeville in 1861, which he attended with a group of former Oglethorpe students, standing next to the president, Dr. Samuel T. Amodeo, and as Herschel V. Johnson spoke after secession Dr. Johnson's arm was thrown about his shoulder. Later Thomas R. R. Cobb carried the day and Georgia voted to secede.

Authority To Sue City for Damages Granted by Court

The Georgia court of appeals Saturday upheld the right of a citizen to sue a municipality for injuries received on a sidewalk, regardless of whether or not the city had knowledge of the condition which caused the injury.

VICTOR H. HANSON.

The case was that of Mrs. H. J. Brady against the city of Dublin. Last May she fell and broke her leg when the cap of a sidewalk water meter slipped off and tripped her. Her suit for $3,000 damages was dismissed after municipal authorities contended that she had not had sufficient time to become aware of the condition of the meter cap.

The court of appeals declared that actual proof that the city knew of the condition was not necessary, reversing the lower court.

Exception was also taken to a ruling from Chattahoochee county dismissing a petition for mandamus brought by the board of commissioners against the Seaboard Railway to compel the railroad to build a bridge over the river.

The lower court had dismissed the petition on the theory that all suits for the benefit of a county must be brought in the name of the county and not of the commissioners.

A judgment for the Bank of Tocon in a suit brought by Mrs. F. K. Crump to collect $10,798.84 alleged to have been deposited in the bank was upheld by the court of appeals. The evidence in the case authorized the verdict, the court said.

Staff Invited To See Bas-Relief of Jacobs

Employees of the Jacobs Pharmacy Company have been invited to visit the Burns Cottage, on Confederate avenue, at 2 o'clock this afternoon to see a marble bas-relief of the late Dr. Joseph Jacobs, a founder of the club, given to the Burns Club by Alex. Anderson and James Watt, of the Tate Marble Company.

In accordance with the ancient Scottish custom of entertaining visitors, tea and cakes will be served to those who call at the clubhouse to see the bas-relief, which has been mounted in the wall. The bas-relief is a remarkable likeness of Dr. Jacobs, who was an expert of the organization. Dr. Jacobs' interest in the post Burns was so great that he collected one of the finest libraries in the world.

A number of prominent members of the club will be at the cottage this afternoon to receive the callers.

$127,868 Realized By Auto Tag Sales

Automobile license tag sales in April amounted to $127,868.44, it was reported Saturday by George H. Carswell, secretary of state.

The figure is considerably under the receipts in March, when sales aggregated $281,624.94. Mr. Carswell said that the decrease represented the regular seasonal decline in tag sales. Receipts probably will show a marked increase in August, he said, at which time the license fee is reduced one-half.

NEWSPAPER PROVES DETROIT WIDE OPEN

Police Doubt Stories and Reporters Lead Raids on Gamblers.

DETROIT, May 17.—(AP)—Led by newspaper reporters sent out to prove to authorities that stories in their paper of wide-open gambling were accurate, police squads this afternoon and tonight made nine raids in downtown Detroit and arrested approximately 300 persons.

Most of the places visited were described as handbooks, where the interest of crowds centered on the running of the Kentucky Derby. The largest number taken into custody at one place was 90, at No. 25 Cadillac square, half a block from the city hall.

The police also reported finding black jack and other games in operation, and seized equipment of those forms of gambling as well as form charts and other paraphernalia used in handbooks.

The reporters, working for the Detroit Free Press, volunteered to go to police headquarters to the raiders from police headquarters to the raiders where they were going.

The Free Press said that the raiders were a result of a statement of Police Commissioner Harold H. Emmos, questioning the accuracy of stories of wide-open gambling which have been appearing in that newspaper for several weeks.

The commissioner was told that reporters would show him the places in which they wanted to raid, and the challenge was accepted.

"The raids were somewhat of a revelation to Emmos and to Police Superintendent Patrick J. McGrady," said the Free Press, which added that both Emmos and the reporters were satisfied with the manner in which the raids were conducted.

The Free Press said that the reporters and police found the gambling houses open to the public, with no locked doors and that no difficulty was experienced in getting into the houses and otherwise obtaining evidence.

son who holds a position of trust, and more especially a governmental position of trust, that that person should in deference to his friends and the public at large voluntarily vacate his office pending the investigation of any charges brought against him, and such person should not present himself even to the public until the investigation is complete.

"I elected I pledge my unstated efforts to my ward and to the public at large to do an honest, upright, businesslike city government."

"I do not advocate any radical changes in the present form of our government, but I do believe that the fault lies not so much in the government itself but in the manner in which it has been administered, and in believing as I do, it is my earnest desire to advocate and support any changes or reforms desired by the people by their own referendum."

"I deeply sympathize with the honest and efficient employees of our present government and shall advocate their retention by our government of those who prove faithful and trustworthy."

"I advocate a more businesslike management of our public schools under a proper budget system, and shall endeavor to secure sufficient appropriation to keep our schools on a high plane of efficiency and to pay the salaries of our city school teachers and other employees in that department."

"I shall advocate and strive for reforms of our taxation laws that will raise sufficient revenue for all purposes and at the same time more equitably distribute the burden of taxation on our citizens."

"Believing that the salvation of our government depends entirely upon the exercise by our citizens of their right of suffrage, I shall advocate such reforms in our present registration and election laws as will eliminate unnecessary red tape in registration and balloting and shall ask a repeal of all laws which work a disfranchisement on our good citizens."

"I am fully cognizant of the responsibility and trust reposed in the office of a public official, and I now ask myself qualified for the office which I seek. I promise if elected to faithfully, honestly and diligently discharge the duties of that office without favor or affection, and I now ask the honest, upright people of my ward to favor me with their vote and influence at the polls on June 18— that with the help of God and the cooperation and advice of the good people of our fair city we may restore our government to its former pre-eminent position of fair and trustworthy reputation throughout the land as the Gate City of the South."

Citizens Indorse McGrady.

Joseph P. McGrady, who bears the indorsement of the citizens' committee from the sixth ward in his race for the board of education post from that ward, is secretary-treasurer of the Georgia Manufacturers' Association and president of the Atlanta Safety Council. J. T. MARLER, Candidate for Council.

F. Wooten, administrator, Philip Walters, secretary and Earl R. Sider, treasurer.

Dr. Burns, retiring president of the board of education, Saturday issued a statement in which he declared that his practice forced him to resign his office.

"It is with a great deal of regret that I withdraw my name from the list of candidates for the board of education," Dr. Burns said. "I am in the final year of my three-year term as commissioner of the seventh ward, and have spared no efforts in trying to represent my constituency in the capacity. I have been faithful to my duty as a member of the board in standing for and supporting a program of education for the children of Atlanta which is, I believe, second to none in the entire country."

"In order to fulfill my duty properly, both as a member of the board and as its presiding officer, for the past eight months I have had to make great sacrifices and regardless of how much I might desire to continue in this work I am compelled to retire at the end of my present term."

"At the insistence of my many friends I reluctantly announced that I would run to succeed myself in the coming primary. Learning, however, that we had a splendid citizen in the seventh ward who might be persuaded to allow his name to be placed on the ballot instead of my own, I spared no effort to persuade him to offer for my place."

"Dr. Baird is a man of ability and will in every way make a desirable representative from our ward on the board. He has my full indorsement, and I urge all of my friends who had intended to vote for me to give him their support."

out, have interrupted the excellent basic training that older members of the bar received from veteran lawyers under whom they were tutored, and this deficiency must be cured in intensive training of students. For the close interest of the legal fraternity as a whole, Mr. Howell expressed his appreciation.

In nominating Mr. Howell to succeed Mr. McDaniel as head of the bar, Mr. Howell declared that ordinarily he found it easy to talk "anywhere, any time and on any topic," but that in the case of his associates, accepting the honor that had been conferred upon him, carried with it an embarrassment—"but one that is happily mitigated by the consciousness that it alone is not a tribute to me but a tribute to the other members of this bar."

Called upon to respond to the ovation that greeted his election, Mr. Howell declared that he was registered and ready to vote in the coming city election. "How they shall vote, of course, is strictly up to them," but as long as a sufficient number of intelligent voters are registered and do vote, the interests of the community are safe," he said.

REGISTRATION CLERK DENIED 9TH WARD

not legal. Mr. Taylor failed to place a man there deputized to take registration as he had promised to me at an earlier date."

When the registration clerk failed to show up the names of those who called at the drug store to register were taken in the hope that some way would be found to make such registration legal without the necessity of putting the citizens to further inconvenience. It was explained that it was necessary to have a deputized clerk, a notary public, take the registrations.

Taylor explained that in order to avoid a "bust" in the ward, he had called in the city, he needed a formal request. He said that formal requests for booths came from several other sections, and were complied with.

As a result of Saturday's episode at Little Five Points, more agitation for registration all over the city was predicted. It is expected that all citizens of the ninth ward who failed to register when they called at Little Five Points Saturday will go all the way to the city hall Monday in order to have their names registered.

On the city registration lists, as Taylor said Saturday he would not send anyone out to Little Five Points before the registration lists close Monday night.

Russell Urges Registration.

Thomas Russell, president of the Chamber of Commerce, Saturday night urged all citizens to register who have not done so, and to go to the polls and vote, in order that the voice of the people may not be sidetracked.

Registrations were being taken Saturday at a booth in the Peachtree Arcade, at a booth on Stewart avenue and at a booth at the corner of Stewart and Peachtree streets. The men are: John Edwin Grace, Freeman Gunion and George Prince, convicted in Memphis of the murder of John L. Lay, and Louis Bell, a negro, each convicted in Memphis of criminal attack.

BRAND URGES LIMIT ON F. R. BANK STOCK

Government Institutions Are Evading Payment of Taxes, Congressman Charges.

WASHINGTON, May 17.—(Special.)—Whether banks that are members of the federal reserve system should be permitted to make additional subscriptions to the capital stock of the federal system should be determined by congress, in the opinion of Representative Brand of Georgia.

The Georgia congressman, who himself is a banker, declared that he believes the federal reserve banks are evading payment of the revenue franchise taxes into the treasury by the simple procedure, he said, of increasing their capital stocks.

"The government organized these banks," he said, referring to the federal reserve institutions. "They were to pay a franchise tax when organized. The national banks are paid nothing on their reserve funds and the state member banks are paid nothing on their reserve funds; and for the years named during the life of the system of the federal banks they paid nothing into the treasury of the United States."

He therefore concludes that they may arrive at a point, as I have already stated, when the government will get nothing by way of revenue franchise tax from any one of the 12 federal reserve banks.

In other words, the Georgia representative told the House that the 12 federal reserve banks by such an increase in their capital stock on the part of national banks and state member banks could entirely all the franchise tax and absorb all the profits of the federal reserve system.

Pistol Is Found On Alleged Robber

Douglas Furlough, living in Decatur, was held up and robbed late Saturday night of $3 by two negroes, one of whom, B. E. Giles, 38, living at 215 Cooper place, was subsequently arrested by Call Officers Dailey and C. E. Floyd and identified by Furlough.

In the possession of the negro was a .38 caliber pistol and, it is said, a part of the money which Furlough said had been taken from him. Giles was charged with highway robbery and his bond fixed at $10,000.

All counties in the Griffin area lost except Spalding and Upson, and they had normal growth. Five of the six counties in the Augusta area reported to report showed decreases, but Richmond county, of which Augusta is the seat, has not reported and is expected to show a good increase.

Six counties in the Dublin area reported and all showed decreases. The Valdosta district just about held its own. Returns from the Americus and Thomas districts were few. The Thomas district was fairly well balanced.

NEW FRENCH LINER HAS MODEL LAYOUT

Trim Ship LaFayette Pulls Anchor for Maiden Voyage.

HAVER, France, May 17.—(AP)—France's newest liner and her largest Diesel-motor ship, the S. S. LaFayette, of the French line tonight sailed for New York on her maiden trip bearing collateral descendants of the hero of the American revolution for whom she is named.

Marquis Jacques De Dampierre, great-grandson of the sister of the famous Marie Jean Roch Yves Gilbert De Motier, Marquis De LaFayette, was on the bridge as the new trans-Atlantic liner moved out of port. He and the Marquis and their son Henri, will be received in New York by the Thomas Jefferson Memorial foundation.

Scenes of the American revolution, and pictures of LaFayette, Washington, Rochambeau, and others in lacquer, decorate the walls of the vestibules. They were painted by the artist, Guy Arnoux.

The LaFayette is 600 feet long, 83 feet wide and can carry 1,091 passengers. She is of 22,000 tons. The crew numbers 485.

Up with the times, the LaFayette is equipped with eventual wireless telephone service and has a most complete series of wireless installations. Comfort and safety are the dominant ideas of the big oil motor ship. The hull is divided into 11 sections by 10 water-tight partitions and has a double bottom and double sides along the engine room.

Steam heating is used for the public rooms but in the cabins there are hot and fresh air pipes so passengers can regulate the temperature to suit themselves. Electric radiators warm the outside walls of the port-holes.

Son of Couzens, Fired, Re-hired, To Get Air Again

DETROIT, May 17.—(AP)—The experience of being fired on Wednesday, rehired on Saturday, and the certainty of being fired again next Monday has befallen Frank Couzens, the millionaire son of a millionaire father, who doesn't need the job at all. Couzens is the son of Senator James Couzens.

Last Wednesday Frank Couzens resigned from the street railway commission at the request of Mayor Charles Bowles, who charged that he had failed to cooperate with him and the other members of the commission.

The mayor and his family left yesterday for their country at Louisville. Likewise departed from town the four ranking members of the city council, Councilman John S. Hall, a dentist, succeeded to the position of acting mayor over the weekend.

His first act on reaching city hall today was to summon Clark Branson, the mayor's secretary, and direct him to have delivered to Couzens a letter informing him that he had been re-appointed to the commission.

Branson demurred and later, consulting the corporation counsel regarding the legality of the move, but not until the acting mayor had informed him, "I'm mayor, and this letter is going out."

"When you're mayor, he mayor," he said to newspapermen.

The corporation counsel thinks the appointment illegal and that the matter rests until Mayor Bowles returns to his office Monday.

"My hair had been falling out for years until it was mighty thin in spots and had turned gray, too, so I bought one thing and then another but nothing helped me until I saw Lea's Hair Tonic advertised. It is wonderful stuff," declared Albert Janna, who, like many others here, is no longer gray or bothered with dandruff or falling hair.

"I didn't have faith in Lea's but gave it a trial anyhow and am glad I did for it works like magic. Results were astonishing and I feel I recommend Lea's Hair Tonic to every body and think gray-haired men are foolish not to use it. It makes a man look years younger and better groomed."

Ronny Johansson, the fascinating Swedish dancer, will be presented to the members of the Fine Arts Club in the ballroom of the Piedmont Driving Club on Thursday, May 22, at 3 o'clock, as the closing program of an interesting and delightful year.

Miss Johansson made her brilliant debut in Vienna and since that time has been received with acclaim in Prague, Berlin, Stockholm, London and in this country. Her repertoire is as varied as it is unusual, ranging from the lyrical and delicate to the vigorous and dramatic type of dancing.

Her appearance before the Fine Arts Club will be a brilliant occasion. Miss Johansson has selected the following program: (1) "Menuet," Paderewski; (2) "Scherzo," Gade; (3) "Gavotte Joyeuse," Mozart; piano solo; (4) "Alla Marcia," Rachmaninov; piano solo; (5) "Polka," Glazounov; Intermission; (6) "Waltz," Strauss; piano solo; (7) "Mazurka," Kargars; piano solo; (8) "Allegro Vivace," Arensky; (9) "Rustic Dance," Grieg.

Members of the Fine Arts Club have enjoyed a particularly interesting year, the programs including such artists and lecturers as Cornelia Otis Skinner, Dorothy Thompson Lewis, Harindranath Chattopadhyaya, John Cowper Powys, Dr. Frederick Koch and the program planned for the last meeting. This program will be in a lighter vein and will be a picturesque and colorful closing for the year.

Present officers of the Fine Arts Club are: Mrs. Reginald Fleet, president; Mrs. Ewell Gay and Miss Nan Stephens, honorary presidents; vice presidents, Mrs. Arnold Broyles, Mrs. George Brown and Mrs. William D. Ellis III; secretary, Mrs. Frank Neely; treasurer, Mrs. Robert Street; executive board, Mrs. George Alston, Ten Eyck Brown, William Shallenberger, Edwin Peeples and Mrs. Turner Jones.

Picture Bazaars Close In Wake of Communism

RUSSIA'S WORLD FAMOUS TRADE MARTS PASSING

BY JAMES A. MILLIS,
Associated Press Correspondent.

BOKHARA, U. S. S. R., May 17.—(AP)—Communism and co-operative trading have brought great changes to Bokhara's bazaars, which for centuries were known around the world for their famous rugs, silks, spices, oils, perfumes and dyes.

Since virtually all trading in the soviet union is now confined to government and co-operative organizations, the local bazaar keepers—who, in their long patriarchal beards, their flowing silk robes, their spotless white turbans and oriental sandals, are most picturesque, have been forced either to sell out or to close shop.

When American newspaper correspondents and their wives recently visited Bokhara as guests of the soviet government they bought up nearly all the remaining khakals (long silken coats of brilliant colors, which make the wearer resemble an animated rainbow), rugs, wall tapestries, table covers and other articles which make their Moscow apartments appear like oriental harems.

But there are few such articles left. All of the fine rugs made by the inhabitants are bought by the government at its own prices and exported to the large department stores of the world capitals. The same applies to embroideries, table covers and other examples of handicraft.

With the closing of the bazaars the government is fast modernizing this ancient city, and all the color and mystery of Bokhara seem to be vanishing. The visitor no longer sees long trains of swaying camels, laden with the rich merchandise of China, India, Afghanistan and Persia, plodding laboriously through the narrow and dusty streets led by bearded figures mounted upon donkeys in Biblical fashion.

Wonderful mosques and medreses (divinity schools), which made Bokhara a center of ecclesiastical learning and second only to Mecca as the holiest place in Islam, are half in ruins and appear to be utterly deserted. Storks and cranes build their nests in the vaulted recesses of the medreses, for no one dares disturb these sacred birds.

Even the picturesque water carriers, with their pig-skin sacks bulging with water from pools and swamps, are disappearing. They have been part of Bokhara since Alexander the Great invaded Turkistan, but the soviet government has installed modern water systems to take their place.

Gone also are the street dentists, and shoemakers, letter-writers and other picturesque characters of the east, but unchanged and seemingly unchangeable are the quaint customs of the general population.

Men still wear long padded coats over white pantaloons and thus resemble walking bed quilts. Women are attired in equally long gaudy-colored coats of silk or velvet, with thick black veils of horsehair.

The government has attempted to liberate women from their ancient trappings, but most of them still keep their heads and faces heavily shrouded.

Special Legislative Status for Bill Will Be Sought.

WASHINGTON, May 17.—(AP)—House republican leaders have decided upon a two-week postponement of action on the Reece plan to authorize the leasing of Muscle Shoals by a board to be appointed by President Hoover.

Representative Tilson, of Connecticut, the house republican floor leader, said today that a plan to bring up the measure under the suspension of rules of the house next week had been abandoned. Special legislative status, he said, would be sought, however, before the session is adjourned.

The Reece plan is a substitute adopted by the house military committee for the Norris resolution to provide government operation. Although there is some opposition to the new measure, Chairman Snell, of the house rules committee, has said he believed the administration followers were strong enough to force adoption.

Under the new plan, drafted by a sub-committee headed by Representative Reece, republican, Tennessee, the $160,000,000 project would be leased for 50 years to private interests for the production of fertilizer and electric energy. Completion of the project at a cost of about $37,000,000 would be required of the lessee.

OTTAWA, Ill., May 17.—(AP)—Judge Frank J. Hayes, in Cass County circuit court today sentenced the Rev. James A. A. Wilson, of Mendota, Ill., to serve one to 14 years in the state penitentiary for shooting Amos Elliott, his church sexton.

The case will be appealed to the supreme court and Judge Hayes granted a writ of certiorari of the sentence until September 1. Defense attorneys said bail would be furnished in a few days.

Present officers of the Fine Arts Club are: Mrs. Reginald Fleet, president; Mrs. Ewell Gay and Miss Nan Stephens, honorary presidents; vice presidents, Mrs. Arnold Broyles, Mrs. George Brown and Mrs. William D. ## German Motor Expert Is Fatally Wounded

BERLIN, May 17.—(AP)—Max Valier, German pioneer in experiment and research with rocket motors, was fatally injured today when he was struck on a model of a new liquid oxygen rocket.

A piece of the recoil motor blew out and struck Valier in the neck. His jugular vein was severed. Two scientists working with him at the time were uninjured.

Valier and the German scientist, Paul Hensel, had been testing the new motor together and only recently made successful tests with it.

Max Valier, who was the chief German exponent of the rocket principle, died last April 19, after attaining a speed of 50 miles an hour in a rocket car of his own design, which he had equipped with Dr. Paul Hensel's "wet rocket" motor.

The car, with Valier at the wheel, covered a distance of two miles, which was believed a record for rocket cars.

The Hensel motor used in the test was so small that a dozen could have been mounted on the rear of Valier's rocket car, but Dr. Hensel refused to consider the sea on the grounds that the car could not stand more power. He said his motor could develop 40 to 50 horsepower.

Richmond Police Find Murder Clue

RICHMOND, Va., May 17.—(AP)—Richmond police holding several pistols, one of which they believed was used in the slaying of Harry Rohm, Richmond leather dealer found shot to death last night.

Richmond police were working on the first tangible clue in the murder mystery that has baffled them for five days.

Ballistic experts were examining the weapons, and comparing their bullets with those that killed Rohm. Officers carefully guarded details of the discovery of the guns, saying simply they regarded them as strengthening theories they were working on.

Captain A. S. Wright, chief of detectives, believed that if his officers could definitely establish the fact that the victim was shot early in the night of May 12, police work would be expedited. They believe he was slain about 11 o'clock after first conclusions.

Owner of Lottery Is Killed by Rivals

NEW YORK, May 17.—(AP)—James Christo, 35, of 228 West 15th street, Norfolk, Va., was shot and killed tonight in what police believed was retaliation for Christo's endorsement of a lottery in his territory.

He was cornered in the open parking space of a Kenmore street garage, and shot four times. A fifth bullet went wild and inflicted a flesh wound on a little girl standing nearby.

Police said Christo, who was known to them as James Christole, had a police record. They said he had gone to Norfolk to evade enemies, returning recently after he thought the old animosities had been forgotten.

Baltimore-Hamburg Mail Deal Closed

WASHINGTON, May 17.—(AP)—Postmaster-General Brown today signed the contract with the Roosevelt Steamship Company, of New York, for carrying mail from Baltimore to Hamburg, Germany, by way of Newport News and Norfolk.

Drama Group Will Present 3 One-Act Plays This Week

Aside from the pathetic side of being a "papa," there is also a very humorous angle as portrayed in the one-act comedy of that name to be presented Wednesday night by the Drama Workshop of Atlanta under the auspices of the St. Mary's Guild of St. Philip's cathedral. Above are shown three of the leading characters (left to right) William Wilkinson as Jack; Lillian Clement as Anna; and Harvey Camp as Papa.

Dramatic interest during the coming week will center on the presentation by the Drama Workshop of Atlanta of three original one-act plays produced by members of the local guild which will be staged Wednesday night at Egleston Memorial hall.

The bill to be presented by the local thespians comprises comedy, drama and the more sophisticated blend of more in plays entitled "Papa," by Emily Vanver Ramage; "Wanted," by Mary Martin Ramage, and "Thinking Makes It So," by Caroline Pierce Dillard.

"Papa," the first play to be presented, is an amusing story of a henpecked husband and in its rehearsals has shown unusually good characterization both by the playwright and by the members of the cast which includes exceptionally gifted talent, among whom are Mary King, Harvey Camp, Lillian Clement, Emily Warren and Willie Wilkerson.

A dramatic phase of life in New York city is the theme around which the serious act of the bill, "Wanted," is woven. Miss Dillard has prepared a convincing story of varied types of people in the metropolitan atmosphere and reveals broad sympathies. The cast is composed of Catherine Crawley, Jessie Boyd, Sarah White, Lillian Clement, Emily Stead, Emily Warren and Peter Marshall.

The subtle comedy by Caroline Dillard deals with the triumph of mind over matter and, of course, bears the optimistic title, "Thinking Makes It So."

It is a well-developed and interesting play and the cast encompasses some of the most outstanding talent of the Drama Workshop. Frances K. Gooch, who will play the leading role, is professor of dramatics at Agnes Scott college and is widely known as an authority on the drama. She is supported by an unusually capable group of actors, including Caroline McKinney, Ruth Pirkle, Fielding Dillard, Herbert Allen, John Wesley Weekes and Polly Peters.

All three playlets will be staged under the direction of Mary Ben Wright, who has had wide experience in the theater.

American Music Now Recognized As Entirely New

CLEVELAND, Ohio, May 17.—(AP)—This country now produces music which speaks the American language without foreign accent and is recognized in Europe as equal to that which the Old World has produced, it was asserted tonight by Werner Janssen, who recently became the third man from this country to receive the Prix de Rome.

The winner of the much coveted award, which is granted by the Academy of Rome to musical composers of outstanding ability, said that Europe has come to recognize a definite "American idiom" in music. It is built upon the crooning negro melody and jazz with the spirit of American life as a background.

The negro melody is not imported, Janssen said, for it was born in the south under American influence. The spirit of the African is not in it.

The Prix de Rome fell to Janssen, who is only 30 years old, as the result of his compositions, "New Year's Eve in New York" and "The Obscures of a Saxophone."

In all his compositions Janssen takes the color of American life from the streets, tall buildings, jails, anywhere that people move, and produces their strange sounds.

In composing an orchestration dedicated to the "squadron of death," he called in mechanics from the Cleveland airport to give their judgments as to the correctness of his reproduction of the sound of the airplane propeller.

INVESTIGATOR DENIES PLOT AGAINST PYLAINT

Chief of Police Accused Through Liquor-Buyers' Evidence Only, Jones Declares.

Charges of prohibition law violations against J. S. (Shorty) Pylant, chief of police of North Atlanta, are the result of direct evidence obtained against Pylant and not because of any plot against the chief, Johnny Jones, chief investigator for the Stone Mountain circuit solicitor general, said Saturday after Pylant had arranged $500 bond.

The plot charges are said to have been made by Dean Arthur Libby, of Oglethorpe University, mayor of North Atlanta, who laid Pylant's arrest Thursday night to accusations made by taxicab drivers who have "stands" near the university.

Investigator Jones said that neither the cab drivers nor anyone connected with Oglethorpe, either members of the student body or faculty, had anything to do with the cases against Pylant.

"We have several persons who say they bought liquor from Pylant," Jones said. "I cannot reveal their names for it would be injurious to the case against him. Some of them live in North Atlanta and others in Chamblee."

Pylant's bond for $500 was signed at the DeKalb county court house Saturday by Cobb Caldwell.

The case tentatively is set for a hearing before Judge Frank Guess in the criminal division of the DeKalb city court on May 26.

Pension Payment Asked To Assist Vets To Reunion

Governor L. G. Hardman has been asked by Colonel Robert deL. Lawrence, state pension commissioner, to authorize an immediate payment of at least $25 on the current pension to Confederate veterans, it was learned Saturday.

The immediate payment was asked, it was said, in order that veterans contemplating a trip to the general reunion in Biloxi, June 3, might have the use of the money on the journey. Payment of the full quarterly pension of $50 was asked if it were possible, and $25 if not.

The payment of current cigar and cigarette taxes into the state treasury last week gave a total of about $150,000 in the fund specially allocated to the pension department. The sum, it was said, is large enough to finance payments of $25.

Governor Hardman has taken the question of an immediate payment under advisement, it was said.

Plans for the reunion are being formed by the young sons of the veterans' organization in the state. Through the courtesy of the Atlanta and West Point Railroad, the Louisville and Nashville and the Pullman Company, it was learned Saturday, the old soldiers in the veterans' home here will be given free transportation to Biloxi. A special car will leave June 2, only about 20 of the veterans will make the trip, it was said.

Princess Mary Visits New Liner

GLASGOW, May 17.—Delighted to be the first woman to tread the decks of the new Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Britain, now building on the Clyde, Princess Mary, who paid a surprise visit to the builders' yards recently expressed great admiration for the ship. The princess, who made the 100-foot ascent to the decks of the white liner in the workmen's electric hoist, made a thorough inspection of the vessel and was heartily cheered by the workmen.

The visit of the princess is the first royal tribute to the great 40,000-ton liner built for the St. Lawrence service. The second royal tribute will be the launching of the Empress on June 11 by the Prince of Wales. The launching of a commercial liner by the heir to the throne is a precedent, and the recent announcement that the prince would sponsor the vessel was hailed as another evidence of the royal family's deep interest in Canada and things Canadian.

Officers Are Named By Red Men's School

The Atlanta District School of Instructions, Improved Order of Red Men, held its semi-annual spring convention at the wigwam, 160 Central avenue, S. W., Saturday night with 100 representatives in attendance from the various tribes in and around Atlanta.

Daniel, of Atlanta, district junior sagamore; Fletcher W. Laird, Atlanta, district chief of records. The new officers were installed by Past Great Sachem John C. Cook, of Atlanta.

Among the great chiefs present were Milton J. Daniel, C. C. Gillett, Frank E. Smith, George F. Barrett, Jesse R. Lee, great senior sagamore, Charles H. Welch, of Canton, delivered an interesting address.

Luncheon was served by the ladies of the degree of Pocahontas and degree work was staged by the Pocahontas Braves of the degree staff of the Atlanta district school of instructions and several degree teams from the tribes. Degree work was directed by J. B. Davenport, director of the degree staff of the Atlanta district school of instructions.

Prisoner's Death Laid To Acute Alcoholism

A verdict of death as a result of acute alcoholism was returned Saturday by a coroner's jury after holding an inquest over the body of H. P. Mulkey, 48, an insurance man, found dead in his cell at police headquarters, where he was being held on a charge of drunkenness, early Saturday morning.

Mulkey, who lived at 687 Peoples street, S. W., was arrested Friday afternoon by Patrolman B. O. Carroll and charged with drunkenness.

Prisoners at the jail reported early Saturday night that he was sitting in an upright position in his cell, and about 3 o'clock Saturday morning the turnkey, R. A. McDaniel, saw that he was still in that position. Investigating, he found that Mulkey was dead.

The body was removed to the undertaking parlors of Harry G. Poole, where the inquest was held Saturday morning by Coroner Paul Donohoe.

Baptists End Convention With Dry-Nation Stand

Will Work To Defeat Any Candidate Out of Sympathy With Existing Prohi Laws.

NEW ORLEANS, May 17.—(AP)—

The Southern Baptists tonight adjourning their annual convention here under a definite stand to war for a dry nation, to fight for defeat of any political candidate who does not frankly advocate the present prohibition laws and with silence over the movement to amend the constitution.

Two of the last acts were a request to the churches to provide a budget for the denominational state papers to solidify their position in the church and an appeal to the churches to usher in an "old-time Baptist spiritual evangelism to preach the doctrine of sin and salvation and reclaim the backslidden churches."

The evangelistic campaign was agreed to after the convention accepted the suggestion of J. H. Anderson, of Knoxville, Tenn., lay leader for the south, that the "soul-saving campaign" be financed privately without burdening the convention's financial budget of $3,000,000 further "at this critical moment."

"Those intellectual, or hand-picked, or gunboat evangelisms in which some are trying to reflect upon our mass or church revivals," declared Dr.

Want Debits Paid.
In a move to "get our debts behind us," all efforts to increase the budget by new emergency campaign or appeal met defeat while special endowments were favored individually for carrying on and enlarging upon secretarian Christian education in the schools and colleges of the denomination.

The convention promised continued support to its colleges and missionary institutions over the south on the present budget basis including assistance for the American Baptist Theological Seminary at Nashville, where negro preachers are educated by the National Baptist Convention, Inc.

The convention made emphatic pronouncement in adopting the report of the commission on social service given by Dr. A. J. Barton, chairman of the executive committee of the Anti-Saloon League of America, when they declared a war to the bitter end against the "unreason, fanaticism and desperation of political adherents and organizations who seek to have the prohibition laws removed or modified. In this fight the convention said."

"Others may have their straw ballots but the friends of prohibition, so-riety and good government will have their ballot at the ballot box in November and will elect senators, representatives, governors and other public officials unhesitatingly committed to the perpetuation and enforcement of our prohibition laws."

The 1931 convention goes to Birmingham.

U. S. Urged To Employ
Atlanta Architect

WASHINGTON, May 17.—(Special.)—Because the government at present is carrying on an extensive building program throughout the country, probability of engagement of an Atlanta architect to assist the government expert in designing the new approved Atlanta postoffice loomed Saturday as a result of efforts of Representative Ranspock, of Georgia, to bring about such an appointment.

In recommending this step Mr.
Ranspock emphasized the fact that he had no particular Atlanta firm or individual architect in view, but merely urged upon the supervising architect's office the advisability of having an associate architect located in Atlanta for the postoffice work. In the event that his request is favorably acted upon the government architect will consider all Atlanta applicants, it was said.

TWO STATES IN FEAR OF FLOOD BY RAINS

TEXARKANA, Ark., May 17.—(AP)—

The threat of a flood spread over the Red river valley today as the recent heavy rainfall sent the river to flood stage at Fulton and near the flood mark at Index.

A Texas and Pacific trestle over a creek near Queen City, Texas, 20 miles south of here, was washed out, necessitating rerouting of trains by Shreveport. A dam on the same road was washed out three miles west of Texarkana. Damage at both points was repaired within a few hours and traffic was resumed.

The river stood at 24.4 feet at Index today and was rising steadily.
Flood stage is 27 feet. Little danger to the levee there is expected unless a stage of 30 feet is reached, but backwaters may inundate some lowlands in that section. Lowlands near Fulton already have been inundated.

The weather bureau predicted a stage of 32 to 35 feet at Fulton tomorrow which is expected to send water near the top of a levee and present a dangerous situation. Many roads in this section already have been covered by water.

GREENWOOD, Miss., May 17.—(AP)—

A rainfall of 1.25 inches during the night recorded at 7 o'clock this morning, with the downpour continuing has given rise to fears for levees on the Tallahatchie river around Glendora 30 miles north of Greenwood.

Heavier rainfall in the upper reaches of the Cold Water and Tallahatchie rivers add to the prospects of floods on the lower Tallahatchie.

Rainfall at Greenwood since Thursday night, May 8, totals 8.01 inches.
The Yazoo river at Greenwood on May 8 registered 4.5 feet. The reading this morning was 23.4, a rise of 18.9 feet during the week.

BUREAU PREDICTS OVERFLOW.

NEW ORLEANS, May 17.—(AP)—

Overflow of the Ouachita river Sunday between Arkadelphia and Camden, Ark., was predicted late today by the New Orleans weather bureau.

The report forecast a rise of the river at Arkadelphia reaching 13 to 15 feet, with a flood stage of 12 feet at that point. The overflow will affect only pasture lands in the vicinity,
it was said.

The bureau said that the river at Camden, where 30 feet is flood stage, would rise to between 33 and 36 feet from May 19 to 21.

Rise of the river was attributed to heavy recent rains in Arkansas.

New Federal Judge For State Unlikely

WASHINGTON, May 17.—(Special.)—

There is little likelihood at the present time that a new federal judiciary for the northern district of Georgia will be created by congress, in the opinion of Georgia representatives who are more inclined to the idea that certain changes may be made toward reorganization of the existing three federal districts of that state in an effort to more equally distribute federal court business.

While it is admitted among members of the house judiciary committee that the courts in United States Judge Samuel H. Sibley's district in northern Georgia are crowded, it is their belief that this congestion can be relieved through a readjustment of the existing federal judiciary districts in middle and south Georgia.

This uncertainty is emphasized by observers who point out that the Georgia representatives in the lower house themselves are rather sharply divided on the question of the necessity for an additional federal district in the northern section of the state.

Veterans Meet Here On Way to Reunion

Atlanta will be the point of concentration for all Confederate veterans in Georgia who intend to attend the fortieth annual reunion of the United Confederate Veterans to be held June 26 at Biloxi, Miss., it was announced Saturday by General John J. Hunt, commanding the Georgia division.

Prediction was made by General
Hunt that "one of the largest delegations in the history of the reunion will be present at the Biloxi gathering and it was pointed out that all railroads have named a low round-trip rate for veterans and their families attending. The round-trip fare from Atlanta to Biloxi for the reunion is $8.25.

In making the announcement General Hunt urged that wherever possible veterans and accompanying families in Georgia arrange to have their tickets routed through Atlanta in order to take advantage of the special trains that will be operated from this city on June 2.

'Doctor' Tom Lovell Dies at University

ANN ARBOR, Mich., May 17.—

(AP)—"Doctor" Tom Lovell, friend of several generations of University of Michigan students, is dead.

The cockney cobbler, who carried the words "poet, traveler and free thinker" after his name, and who claimed to be one of the "four great Americans"—Washington, Lincoln, Roosevelt and Lovell," came to Ann Arbor 25 years ago from London, England. He died yesterday, 70 years old.

"Dr. Lovell mended students' shoes and sold autographed copies of his poetry to undergraduates. He also composed songs and considered "the Dickey bird song" his "greatest work." Several times he announced himself as candidate for president of the university and always maintained he would have been president "if the students had their way."

Youth Slays Lover, Then Kills Self

MAMARONECK, N. Y., May 17.—

(AP)—Parental objection to their romance was believed by police to have been the motive behind a murder and suicide today which took the lives of a 15-year-old schoolgirl and her 27-year-old lover.

The girl, Sarah Sherman, was shot through the head three times by Charles Long, a waiter, who then turned the gun upon himself.

Police said that the girl's father, Hyman Sherman, had objected to the romance and had ordered Long from his home upon every occasion he found him there.

Graham Sedan Prize Offer Will Terminate This Week

Final Extra Credit Allowance Ends Saturday Night; Close of Constitution Campaign Near.

The final week of the last $30 club offer and $1,075 Graham sedan offer in The Atlanta Constitution's $25,000 prize campaign is at hand, and the enthusiasm being shown throughout the field of prize seekers indicates that this bonus offer will eclipse previous ones by far.

The last $30 club offer will end Saturday night at 9 o'clock, just one week before the campaign itself comes to a conclusion. This week will decide the winner of the $1,075 Graham sedan to be given as an extra award to the candidate turning in the highest amount of new subscription business during the five weeks ending May 24.

All $30 clubs of new prepaid subscriptions earn 80,000 extra credits and all $30 clubs of new contract subscriptions earn 40,000 extra credits turned in during the three weeks ending May 24.

Candidates throughout the field are working their utmost to build $30 clubs. Never again during the remainder of the campaign will new subscriptions be worth so many extra credits as they are now, during the period ending next Saturday night. It is the supreme opportunity coming at the crucial period of the campaign.

NEW YORK LIFE AGENTS TO MEET HERE MONDAY

Five hundred representatives of the New York Life Insurance Company from the southern and Gulf departments, covering the area between Wilmington, Del., and New Orleans, will gather in Atlanta Monday for a two-day meeting at the Atlanta-Biltmore hotel. The meeting is being held in honor of the fiftieth anniversary of Thomas A. Buckner, senior vice president of the company, who, with other home office officials, will attend the meeting. He celebrated his fiftieth anniversary with the company on April 7, it was stated, and those attending the meeting in his honor are winners of a contest conducted during the preceding three months as a compliment to Mr. Buckner's long service.

John M. Slaton, former governor of Georgia, will welcome the visitors to Atlanta at the opening business session Monday afternoon. A banquet will be given at the Biltmore Monday evening, at which Mr. Buckner will be the principal speaker. An interesting coincidence is that Mr. Buckner, of the New York office, began his connection with the company almost simultaneously with that of Robert L. Cooney, of Atlanta, who recently celebrated his fiftieth anniversary with the same company. Mr. Cooney will introduce Mr. Buckner at the banquet. Other home office officials who will participate in the two-day session are Arthur Hunter, second vice president and chief actuary; Charles H. Langmuir, third vice president, who is connected with the agency department, and Dr. William Bolt, medical supervisor. The meeting will be of an educational character, it was stated, and is of considerable importance inasmuch as the New York Life Insurance Company has upward of twenty million dollars invested in Georgia alone, with approximately seven millions invested in Atlanta.

Change in Designation Of Peaches Is Made

The designation of "unclassified," as applied to culls, was changed by Eugene Talmadge Saturday in promulgating rules and regulations for the grading and marketing of peaches. A change from the designation, in use in the past, was recommended 10 days ago at a meeting of peach growers at the capitol. The term "orchard run," recommended by the meeting, was not adopted by Mr. Talmadge, who feared it would be a misnomer, but "commercial" was chosen instead.

"Marketable," "Ungraded," "Red Rinds" and "Early Rose" will be shipped as U. S. fancies, U. S. 1s, U. S. 2s, and commercial, without size requirements, the regulations state.

"Orleans," "Hillocks," Georgia Belles, shipped as U. S. fancies and U. S. 1s, must be not less than 1 1/4 inches in diameter. The U. S. 2s and commercial grades of these varieties will have no size requirements.

"Elliptics," "Brackets" and "J. H. Hales," shipped as U. S. fancies and U. S. 1s, must be not less than 1 7/8 inches in diameter. The U. S. 2s and commercial grades of these varieties will have no size requirements.

STATE TAX SYSTEM: ATTACKED BY PERRY

Candidate for Governor Believes Real Estate Should Be Removed as Source of Revenue.

Definite opposition to the ad valorem system of taxation was voiced Saturday by J. A. Perry, member of the public utilities commission and candidate for governor, in a statement in which he takes the position that state revenues "can and should be raised from other sources than real estate."

The raising of all tax moneys on a budget system through which the entire expenses of the state government would be computed, and the administration of all tax moneys through one agency are strongly favored by Mr. Perry's card. Reduction of the number of state house departments is also declared to be vital to the welfare of the state government.

The card is as follows:

I have received several requests from different citizens over the state for an expression of my views on the subject of "needed changes in our method of taxation."

I have heretofore stated that a reorganization of the administrative departments of our state government must be brought about looking to economy and efficiency. Without intending to direct individual criticism toward any function of our state government as it is now set up, there could be no successful contention that our present method of raising revenues, through the various departments, bureaus, commissions and what not, makes for efficiency of governmental accomplishment. Quite naturally it has become an over-expensive system and its correction will work for economy and efficiency. The duplication of functions and the clashing of authorities under the existing system is not only a burden on the taxpayers of the state, but it is a handicap to the development and progress of the people of the state in their own affairs.

Very true, in taking this position I have the active combined opposition of those occupying positions in the departments that must be done away with, but we have numbers of departments in different branches of our state government which serve no purpose other than affording political offices. Not only is such a condition unnecessary, and a greatly increased cost of governmental operation, but in addition it is too frequent that interference results within the everyday conduct of the peoples' business.

A little later I shall call names of those affected and who are interesting themselves in perpetuating the unfortunate condition in which we find ourselves at this time.

Political answers for economic questions in Georgia must stop. We must get out of debt and stay out of debt. One person out of every ten who has any gainful occupation in the United States is now being supported by the other nine. No business on earth could exist under such top-heavy operating costs. This practice, applied in the operation of our governmental affairs, both state and national, has brought our tax cost to the burdensome condition we are now experiencing.

It is my firm conviction that our present so-called system of ad valorem tax on real property is not only inadequate, as a source for supplying necessary funds to operate our several forms of government, municipal, county and state, but that it is so burdensome itself as to become a burden, particularly in our smaller communities.

I believe the time has come for giving consideration to relieving the individual home, household and kitchen furniture of the possible danger of one's family being thrown in the street through the issuance of a tax bill.

I believe the state should go slow in interfering with the details of municipal governments and do so only when absolutely necessary, but there should be certain fundamentals in the construction of municipal organic law which will be uniform in effect; and, one of these should be so designed as to lay down the general principles of municipal taxation and define its specific purposes, leaving to the voters of the individual municipality, the right to apply its local self-determination in fixing its municipal limitations.

I am entirely sure that it is the duty, as it is the right, of the state to clearly define limitations for the levy of taxes, not only as to purposes but as to maximum levy. This should have been done long ago. Indeed, it is not the state tax that is giving the citizens of Georgia their chief concern in matters of taxation but it is the county and municipal taxes, without limitation save in the judgment of one administration after another, until it has reached a point where it is now a heavy burden.

There must be a definite maximum levy provided, by constitutional amendment, beyond which no county can impose a tax burden upon its citizens, and direct forms of taxation must not be allowed diverted from their original purposes under any circumstances.

Opposes Ad Valorem Tax.

It is my view that real estate should be removed entirely from the state's source of tax revenue. Real estate held and developed for purely commercial business purposes should be restricted as a source of taxation to the communities in which it is located and where the business it is used for is carried on, and then under specific limitations as to maximum levy and the objects for which the revenue derived therefrom is to be used. Stated differently, leave the real estate of every county and every municipality, with the limitations above noted, to the control and judgment of the people locally and relieve it entirely of state tax.

Revenues for the conduct of the state government can and should be raised from other sources and should be raised on a purely budget system through which the entire costs of all state functions would be computed. These sources of taxation for state purposes should be reserved to the state exclusively and all items of tax subjects from which state funds are derived should be administered through one state agency of collection, the entire proceeds placed in the state treasury as a common state support fund; and the general assembly should apportion it on budget by specific appropriation and without permitting the present scope of departmental electricity beyond the provisions of the law.

These are subjects which address themselves to the function of the legislative branch of our government and over which that branch exercises a direct and final control, subject in major instances, of course, to ratification by the people of the state.

If elected governor, I shall present such conclusions to the general assembly next convening and shall urge their earnest consideration and adoption. It is entirely within the jurisdiction of the governor of our state to prevent extravagant and unwise appropriation of state money which can be paid only through the burden of taxation, and while it is my purpose to exert my every effort to harmonious co-operation with the general assembly in its best endeavors, I am going to be very candid in saying that I shall unhesitatingly veto any extravagant appropriations tending toward an excess of expenditure over income, and will veto any appropriation unless ample provision has been made to pay same.

I do not want to create the impression that I would exercise an arbitrary attitude, it will be my purpose to render all possible assistance looking to advantageous legislation along these lines, but at the same time I will oppose any expenditure of money calculated or tending to waste and extravagance. I shall endeavor to carry my end of the burden of responsibility whenever these problems are to be confronted and at the same time I shall hold myself perfectly free to direct attention to that responsibility if it falls elsewhere.

NEW THEATER OPENS IN BUCKHEAD JUNE 2

New Structure Costing $250,000 Built Specially for Sound Pictures.

Greater Atlanta's newest theater, the Buckhead theater, will open its doors to the public on June 2, it was definitely announced Saturday. This, the first theater located in Buckhead, will seat 1,050 persons, with 800 on the orchestra floor and 256 in the balcony.

This is the second theater built in Atlanta constructed especially for presentation of sound pictures, all others have been built during the silent picture era. The new-amenement home has been built, from the start, with the idea of providing the best possible equipment and the best acoustical conditions for the audible screen. Engineers, architects and sound experts have worked together with this end in view.

The building fronts 100 feet on the Roswell road at the intersection of the Buckhead road. The very heart of Buckhead's business section. Four stories are included in the project, two on either side of the theater lobby. The lobby is 20 feet wide and has a depth of 50 feet. Political

The construction is fireproof throughout, consisting of steel, concrete, hollow tile and stone. Daniels and Spruell are the architects with George Spruell the contractor.

The new theater is owned by the Southeastern Land Company, of which Mr. C. M. Adams, of Buckhead, is president. Other officers are Mrs. J. S. Donaldson, vice president; E. O. Hildebrandt, secretary, and William R. Trout, treasurer. The officers form the board of directors with the addition of George R. Lowery and Mrs. Fannie M. Lowery. The investment involved, all local capital, is approximately $250,000.

Management of the new theater will be in the hands of Willis J. Davis, long identified with the Ponce de Leon theater as part owner and co-manager. He withdrew from this connection several months ago to devote his entire attention to the new Buckhead theater, of which he is an important stockholder.

The policy of the new theater calls for the best sound pictures procurable, with comedies, novelties and sound news reels completing the programs. There will be a complete change of program three times a week, each feature playing for two days.

Flournoy Will Wreck Old City Hall Building

The contract to wreck the old city hall building at Marietta and Forsyth streets Saturday was sold to W. C. Flournoy for $377.50 by order of Judge John D. Humphries, of Fulton superior court. Louis H. Foster, appointed receiver recently on the petition of workmen who alleged they had not been paid by J. V. Fain, former holder of the contract, was instructed by Judge Humphries to turn the work over to Flournoy.

Sale of the contract was ordered by Judge Humphries after Foster had reported that it was impossible to meet the demands of the laborers by operating under the receivership. Money received from the sale of the contract will be used toward a settlement with the workmen, it was said.

Osteopaths To Meet In Atlanta Next Year

Atlanta has been selected by the Georgia Osteopathic Association for its 29th annual convention, which will convene here during May next year, it was announced following adjournment of the recent convention at Macon. Dr. Alexander Bell, of Atlanta, was named secretary, and Dr. Gusie Phillips, of this city, treasurer.

Naval Reserve Unit To Start Cruise July 5

Dates for the annual cruise of the Atlanta unit of the United States naval reserve have been announced as July 5 to 19. The local unit of more than 100 men will leave here July 4 for Charleston, S. C., from where they will sail the following day on the destroyers U. S. S. Lawrence and U. S. S. Humphrey, according to instructions from the navy department at Washington, D. C., received by radio at the local reserve headquarters, and coming here from the headquarters of the sixth naval district at Charleston, S. C.

Atlanta's unit, known as headquarters, first and second fleet divisions of the sixth naval district, U. S. N. R., will sail from Charleston near yard for Newport R. I., where they will join the crack scouting fleet of the United States navy and participate in maneuvers near that port.

What is known as "liberty" or shore leave, will be granted the Atlanta men in the port of Baltimore, where the two destroyers will arrive on Saturday, July 12. Swarms of Washington, Philadelphia, Atlantic City and New York to this point will enable the local reserves to visit any of these cities while enjoying shore leave. The destroyers Lawrence and Humphrey will sail early Monday morning for Newport, from where the scouting fleet will leave for target practice and special drills. Following this the destroyer will return to Charleston and the Atlanta battalion will disembark on July 19 to return to Atlanta.

Lieutenant Harry F. Bobbs is the commanding officer of the Atlanta battalion and the first and second fleet divisions are under Lieutenant W. C. Wroe and Lieutenant M. R. Sanders, respectively.
